Territorial Items Gleaned From Our Exchanges and Condensed for Our Busy Patrons.

The Southern Pacific will build a railroad eating house at Nogales.

A contract has been let in Tucson for the building of a $25,000 opera house on Stone avenue.

Col Thomas Fitch has removed to New York and engaged in the practise of law at No. 50 Broadway.

A poultry association has been organized at Phenix. The idea is to give an exhibition of fancy fowls next winter.

Large creosote works are soon to be erected at Williams. The works will be one of the most powerful and complete in the United States.

The business at the Tucson and Prescott land offices has fallen off to such a degree that there is talk of consolidating them at an early date at Phenix.

J. C. Herndon has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Prescott National bank, and Morris Goldwater has been elected temporary cashier.

Coyotes are running mad now and those going into the country had best go prepared for them. One of the boys on the 3 C ranch was treed by one of that species this week.—Stockman.

Tom Woody, the Jerome miner, who is accused of shielding L. C. Miller, the escaped prisoner, was examined at Jerome last Thursday and bound over to the grand jury with bonds fixed at $1,000.

Fred Moore, the young man reported killed by Indians near Rucker last week, is in town. The report is believed to have had no further foundation than the fears of an imaginative colored man who thought he saw Apaches.—Range News.

Parker, the train robber, was taken from Flagstaff to Prescott on Saturday last by Sheriffs Ruffner and Cameron. He has recovered from his eighteen day's hardship in eluding the officers and shows his former defiance of his custodians.

Thomas Cameron, from Yavapai county, sentenced to five years for robbery, who escaped from the wood camp up the river on Dec. 7, and was recently recaptured at Paris, Texas, was returned to prison by Superintendent Nugent the other day.

With continued favorable weather the grape crop of the Salt River valley promises to be large. The Thompson Seedless will produce larger bunches and berries this season than last. Heading commenced Monday in the vicinity of Glendale.

The Japanese laborers who were imported to work on the canaigre farm near Tempe, do not seem to be meeting with favor with the management, or something else is wrong, as a large number of them have either quit work or were discharged.

The prisoners in the Tucson jail last week sawed two iron bars out of a window and made a rope twenty feet long out of Mexican sombreros preparatory to making their escape. The plot was discovered by the jailors before it could be carried into effect.

The probate judge yesterday received a letter from an Indianapolis attorney enquiring the whereabouts of Leah H. Borne, who is a beneficiary of an estate in that city. The woman lived here two years ago with her two children and was last supposed to be living at Camp Verde, but all track of her has been lost.—Gazette.

Outlaw Parker was captured by S. S. Preston, assisted by nine Navajo Indians, about sixty miles north of Tuba City on the 26th ult. When the party came upon Parker he was asleep. Preston brought him to the Colorado river, where he met Sheriffs Ruffner and Fairchilds, who were on Parker's trail. He was taken to Flagstaff.

Attorney General Wilson left on Saturday for Washington for the purpose of protesting against the confirmation of Col. McCord. It strikes us that it is in mighty bad taste for the gentleman to engage in such a transaction, and both he and the strikers behind him will feel mighty lonely when this affair is over.—Phenix Gazette.

In no portion of the world is the atmosphere clearer than in Arizona. Prof. Lowell appreciates this fact, as witnessed by the return of his observatory from the City of Mexico to Flagstaff. The dome of the new observatory at Flagstaff is the second largest wooden dome in the world, and the telescope is the next in size to that of the Lick observatory in California.

E. Gilmore, a young gentleman, a new comer to Jerome, had the misfortune to break his right arm Thursday. He was riding on horseback to the sawmill in Yager gulch, to look for work, when his horse stumbled going down a slight incline, throwing the young man, he coming in contact with a rock with so much force as to break his arm. Drs. Cody and Carrier attended to his injuries.—Arizona Mining News.

The last crop bulletin issued by the weather bureau says: "In Salt River valley a few farmers have begun cutting wheat. The strawberry crop has about all been marketed. The few apricots of the early varieties that escaped the March freeze are ripe and coming to market. Oranges have fallen from the trees until, notwithstanding the increased size and age of the trees and orchards, the crop will not exceed that of last year."

The Arizona Copper company is now working more men and producing more copper than at any time in the history of Clifton, which has been a steady producer of copper for twenty years, and the end is not yet. The work of erecting to immense new fire-proof buildings is now being pushed, one to be used as a power house for the entire plant and other for the Bessemer converters which are to be put in just as soon as the building can be completed.—Oasis.

The body of an unknown man was found last Tuesday a few miles below Needles lying along side of the railroad track. Nothing that would disclose the identity of the man was found on the body. A revolver was clutched in the dead hand and a bullet hole in the head showed it to be a case of suicide. A few small coins were found in the clothing. The man was light complected with red hair and moustache. He was buried by the county of San Bernardino.—Mohave Miner.

Donnelly, the individual who has been posing as the savior of man, and who for several years has been boss of a colony of his believers near Tombstone in the Huachuca has run up against the grand jury of Cochise county and indicted on a charge of cruelty to children. One of the charges is that he stripped the clothes from a child, placed a rope around it and plunged the helpless one several times into ice cold water pulling it out by the rope and then whipped it with a buggy whip, making its mother hold it while he did the dastardly deed.—Phenix Gazette.

The office of the clerk of the supreme court will shortly be removed from the Fleming block to two rooms in the court house annex, opposite the judicial chambers. The board of supervisors has rented them to the department of justice at $200 a year. The object of the change is to secure greater proximity to the court room. While the present offices are platial, their distance from the court house makes the clerk earn his salary in lugging heavy records from his office to the court. The county now derives from the department of justice rent amounting to $300 annually.—Republican.

What Is Pooling?

The following extracts from a speech delivered in the United States Senate by Hon. O. H. Platt, of Connecticut, in 1887, are as true to-day as when he uttered these words ten years ago. Indeed, this speech, in the light of present events, reads more like a prophecy than a warning. Exactly what Senator Platt said would happen has come to pass. "A pooling contract is based—that is to say the percentage of freights or the portion of freights which each company agrees to be satisfied with—is based upon the results of traffic for several years under free competition; and it is a strange thing that, however fierce the competition, the amount of competitive traffic which a road secures is practically the same. This apportionment of traffic, then, is based upon what returns for some years under open competition—when competition has been fierce and when it has not been fierce—have been secured by each competing road.

"The fact to which I have alluded shows that there is forever competing railroad its natural, normal share of the competitive business, business which will come to it whatever the competition may be. A competing railroad company may be justified in saying that such share of the competitive business belongs to it so long as it maintains only reasonable rates for doing it. It is upon that theory that the apportionment is made. If it constitutes an agreement for the prevention of competition, for non-competition, it is this, that the railroad company will not fight for more than its natural share of the business. Its object is, as I have shown by the quotation from Judge Cooley, to remove the inducement which exists for railroads to enter into ruinous competition or into unnatural strife for business which does not belong to them.

"It may be said that the purpose of pooling is to maintain and establish equal and stable rates. What is this bill for? What has been the purpose of the committee in this bill? They have heard from all over this land that one of the chief and greatest causes of complaint against railroads was the fluctuation of rates, rates which were up today and down tomorrow, up for the retailer and down for the wholesaler, and fluctuating up or down as the caprice of the railroads or the emergencies of the competitive strife should require. Look at the report of the committee, look at the testimony before the committee, and you find that one of the main objects of this bill is to make rates stable and permanent when they have been found to be reasonable. I challenge proof of it. I heard petitions presented at that desk this morning praying for the passage of this bill. For what purpose? To prevent excessive rates, discriminations, and pooling. It shows the utter and lamentable ignorance of what pooling contracts really are. There is not a man who ever studied them, there is not a man who ever investigated their operation, but what will tell you that the main purpose of them is to prevent discriminations; and yet here we have a bill in which we propose to make criminal the means which the railroad companies adopt to prevent discrimination. Others may agree to do it for the sake of getting legislation. I will not."
