GOVERNOR BRODIE'S MESSAGE

To the Twenty-Second Legislature.

Governor Alex. O. Brodie read his first message to the twenty-second legislative assembly last Monday and it is wholly credible to the author. The document throughout bears evidence of thought and careful preparation. Below a few of the most important features of the message are given.

He recommends that the filing of the articles of incorporation, which is now done in the office of the secretary of the territory, be done in the auditor's office and the fees therefrom converted into the territorial treasury.

He recommends that a law be made to regulate the taxation of mines by putting a levy on the output of the mines instead of the ground which they occupy.

He recommends that better attention be paid to the collection of poll taxes as they go to support the schools. The amount collected in 1901 was $46,553.64 and in 1902 $23,942.61. A decrease of $22,611.13.

He states that all offices in this territory, where possible, both territorial and county, should be made salaried, and all fees turned into the territorial or county treasury. He states that the assessor should be elected instead of appointed.

The governor urges that the eight-hour law be carefully considered as it might not be satisfactory to all of the industries, and would do more harm than good.

He recommends that the force of Arizona Rangers be doubled as Arizona is too large a territory to be covered by twelve men.

He says that the territorial prison is a very expensive institution and some way should be devised so that it could be made to help support itself.

He urges that a law be made to tax corporations doing business outside of Arizona when they are incorporated under the laws of the territory. He states that it is no more than just because capitalists take advantage of the liberal corporation laws of Arizona and should be made to help the territorial government.

He asks for power to use the National Guard and the Arizona Rangers to maintain a strict quarantine along the Mexican border on account of the bubonic plague raging in that country.

There are numerous other things which the governor recommends that will promote the general welfare of the territory, if his plans are carried out.

According to the recommendation of Gov. Brodie committees were appointed from both branches of the legislature to visit and inspect the following territorial institutions:

The Northern Arizona Normal School, Territorial prison, University of Arizona, Insane Asylum and Capitol Building and grounds, Reform School and Tempe Normal School.

The outlook is that the law-making body will have a very busy session for the next sixty days in which some very important business will be transacted.

Range Decision.

The United States supreme court has reversed the decision of the supreme court of Wyoming in the case of John Kelley, plaintiff in error, vs. Oliver S. Rhoads. The case deals with an incident of seven years ago, when Kelley drove a herd of 10,000 sheep from Utah through Wyoming to Pine Bluffs, Neb., for shipment to the east. The sheep were several weeks on the route, and during this time grazed on the public and private lands of the state. Kelley was assessed $250 in taxes by Rhoads, the treasurer of Laramie county, and this amount was collected from him, on the grounds that his sheep were in Wyoming, and terefor taxable. The matter was taken through the courts, and Rhoads was sustained in instance until it went to Washington. On the ground that such interference, if carried to excess, would interfere with interstate commerce regulations: the supreme court, with instructions, for proceedings not inconsistent with the opinion rendered. This means the return to Kelley of his $250. Justice Brown, who delivered the opinion of the court, stated that it was plainly evident that the plaintiff found it cheaper to drive these sheep through Wyoming than to ship them, and there was no law to prevent their grazing on public and private lands as they went along.—Albuq.
