THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. ...

THE Democrats of Berlin, N. Y., are entitled to the credit, such as it is of being first to apply the philosophy of boycotting to the matter of compelling changes in the offices. They have held a meeting and resolved that they will not send a delegate to a party Convention nor cast a vote for a Democratic ticket as long as the present Postmaster of their town shall remain unbound. The idea is a very practical one as well as an obviously logical one. There is no reason why they should help to sustain the Democratic party if it has become a mere contrivance for keeping Republicans in office.

KEEFEY is going to transfer himself to New York, it is said; and New York is powerless to prevent him from doing so. This suggests, we regret to observe, that in one respect, at least, the people of Italy and of Austria have the advantage of those who live in the Empire State of the American Union.

"A NEW cure for felons" is advertised by a New York firm. The Cleveland Administration cures felons, or tries to do so, by appointing them to office.

"GRANT PARK" is likely, ere long to be the name of the site selected for the burial place of General Grant.

THE President of the United States who are dead are nearly buried in the neighborhood of the homes which they occupied.

THE President has found time to investigate the matter of tonnage duties away off at Boca Del Toro, and he and Secretary Bayard have put forth a proclamation on the subject for the benefit of the shipping interest of Central America. But the fatigued and hankering Democrats right here at home are thrust aside with the implication that "hard tack and sorbels" is good enough for them in this era of new-fangled reform.

Charlie Hayes' Crime.

Boston, Sept. 19.

Charlie Hayes, the colored cleaner who cut the throat of his mistress, Matilda Robinson from ear to ear, Sept. 3 was brought back to Cambridge from Portland this morning. His crime was committed in a fit of jealous rage. Hayes is in an exceedingly nervous condition and constantly trembles all over. He was arraigned this morning and readily pleaded guilty to the indictment of murder. He told at some length the story of his crime, speaking somewhat incoherently at times. Said he: "I went home that evening between the hours of 6 and 7. It was the time that I usually return from work. On entering the room, I said in a pleasant tone, Hello Toots, how are you tonight I usually called her Toots; seldom if indeed ever, calling her Matilda. She was somewhat under the influence of liquor, and appeared to be in a surly mood. 'I am on the warpath,' she said; 'you'd better look out. I am going to have a row with you.' This reply kind of worked up my feelings, and I spoke up rather sharply, saying that I guessed she had been intimate with colored company to suit me. For an answer she struck me in the face so forcibly as to cause my nose to bleed. I did not strike her in return but placed my arms caressingly about her neck and forced her gently down beside me on the bed. At this point the Jones woman came in. We all three talked together for a short time when I got up and went out for a bottle of Medford rum, of which we all partook freely on my return. What followed I do not know, having as it would seem lost my identity for the time. After I committed the deed [at this point in the narrative the prisoner dropped his face in his hands and appeared to be laboring under some great mental strain.] I went on Brewery street and up into Main street. Thence I crossed over to East Cambridge, and after drifting about some time took a train at some way station, and seemed to be dazed and I don't know exactly where I went. Finally I got to Portland and found my brother's house. I did not try to hide myself." Hayes is a mild-looking rather handsome man. He was committed for further examination Wednesday.

Murdered by Moonlighters.

Nashville, Sept. 19.

Henry Moore and Bates Bradley who were yesterday arrested for complicity in the murder of Deputy U. S. Marshal Miller, in Sumner County were brought to this city to-day and arraigned before Commissioner Baxter. Waiving examination, their bond was fixed at $1,000. Moore gave bond but Bradley was sent to jail in default. It is thought other arrests will be made when the full evidence of witness is obtained. It is apparent that Miller's movements were known to the moonshiners, that he was shot five times from an ambush when he reached a lonely spot; that his body was at once buried, and the grave concealed so that it could not be found unless the most careful search was made. The testimony of witnesses who could not be induced to testify against Bradley when arrested several weeks ago will be secured without trouble, as he is safe behind the bars and intimidate them no longer. It is believed that some light will be thrown on the murder of Deputy Marshal Seagraves and the attempted assassination of other deputies in the same region. The revenue officers are investigating the attempted murder of Special Deputy Prole near Jamestown, Fentress County and as the name of his assailants are known, the officials do not anticipate much trouble in arresting them. They are also on the lookout for Riley Pyles, the murderer of Commissioner McDonald, in Overton County as it is understood he is lurking near his home but is snared by friends of the sp

MEMORIAL CAR

Remembrance of S. ROBINSON Campaign

Washington, Sept. 19.

Among the clerks discharged from the Treasury last week was Mrs. M. E. Kail, of Ohio. Mrs. Kail is a well-known lady of literary ability and author of several poems of merit. She is poor, and with her children depending on her salary for a living. She went to Auditor J. S. Williams to see if her case was hopeless and ask why she was discharged.

"Because you are an offensive partisan," was the reply with the roughness and impoliteness characteristic of Mr. Williams.

"Was I not efficient and faithful and was not my work satisfactory asked Mrs. Kail.

"Certainly. No complaints to make. You are simply put out because as I tell you, you have been an offensive partisan."

"In what did my offensive partisanship consist?" was Mrs. Kail next question.

"You wrote a campaign song for the Republicans in Ohio," was the reply. "Good day."

The Apolis.

Washington, Sept. 19.

Dr. D. Clark Stockstill, of this city has been appointed physician at the Haskell Indian School at Lawrence, Kan. Mr. Stockstill was for two years resident student at Washington Infirmary, continuing his studies at the Columbia College, where he graduated last spring.

Secretary Manning to-day dismissed Jabez Fox, a fourth class clerk in the Register's office. Mr. Fox is the pastor of the Swedenborgian Church on Capitol Hill. The reason given by Register Rosecrans for his removal is that it was the pleasure of the appointing officer.

Judge Chenowith, First Auditor of the Treasury, has returned to the city. He is inclined to credit the charges against the Coast and Geodetic Survey Bureau. In regard to the publish report that Acting Superintendent Thorn had allied himself with some of the old officials of that bureau and had placed himself in antagonism to the reforms recommended and completed by the report of Chenowith committee of which he (Thorn) was a member, Mr. Chenowith said that he "discredited absolutely any such report concerning Mr. Thorn."
