Office of the Tombstone Mill and Mining Company.

PHILADELPHIA, August 10, 1886.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE TOMBSTONE MILL AND MINING COMPANY:

MINING PROPERTIES.

The Company is now free from litigation. That with the Way-up Mining Company, after continuing for four years, was settled on the basis of a mutual compromise, this Company obtaining the Way-up mining right, and that of the Gilded Age (a claim belonging to the same parties), upon the payment by us of a sum about equal in amount to the judgments resting against the two properties—both being patented claims. The Gilded Age lies parallel with the Way-up, its end line being the side line of the Good-enough opposite the Combination mine. Two prospecting shafts have been sunk on it, but the ore so far discovered is of very low grade. Prospecting will be continued through the Combination mine.

The rich ore known to have existed in the Way-up mine, beyond the Good-enough side line, was extracted before we gained possession of the former, at which time only a small body of low-grade ore was in sight. We are now engaged in prospecting that portion of the property through the second level of the Toughnut mine, which has been carried across the Good-enough claim sixty feet into the Way-up, passing through numerous stringers of ore, in limestone. An ore body of good grade, opened on this level last winter, within the Toughnut claim, furnished a large proportion of the ore which sustained the mill for several months. The vein here is still being worked, but it is impossible to estimate the ore remaining in it, for the reason that all the working places consist at present of stringers and chutes of which we see but the end we are working, but past experience leads us to hope for the discovery of new ore bodies by following this ledge on existing and future levels—a system which has heretofore invariably led to the opening up of deposits of greater or lesser extent in connection herewith, every stringer and chute of ore presenting itself being faithfully followed. The exhausted ore bodies of this region were all traceable either to or from this vein.

The Good-enough and Toughnut mines are parallel claims, each 1500 feet in length, but slightly overlapping at the ends. The present Toughnut workings, so called, occupy the south-easterly ends of these two claims. The Combination mine and the North-west mine occupy respectively the north-westerly ends of the claims. These workings were twice abandoned during the last four years on account of the low grade of the ore in silver. We were enabled to resume them in consequence only of our improved facilities in operating the mines and mills. These facilities enabled us, without loss, to clear out and assort the waste from the Girard mine, leaving it ready for prospecting. The same operations in the Combination mine yielded us a small profit, and we are now preparing to extend them to the old North-west mine with the hope of a like result. It may also be possible to further develop the Defense mine from this connection.

The West Side mine has not been worked for ore for some months, but Shaft No. 3 is used for a line of steam pumps which raise 220,000 gallons of water every twenty-four hours from the sixth level to the two large tanks of the Girard mill, holding 35,000 gallons each. From these, water is furnished by gravity to the Amalgamating and Concentrating mills, and distributed to the different mines for steam and other purposes. This sixth level, West Side, is 474 feet from the surface, and seems to mark the normal water level of the district. We succeeded at one time in keeping out the water while a winze was being sunk to a depth of sixty feet below the level, on the vein. Samples of ore were taken daily. Fifty-four samples averaged—Silver, 47.50 ounces and gold $5.59 per ton; lead, thirty per cent. This ore body is small, but its good grade is an encouraging fact in connection with the future of the mines of this district below the water level. It is also interesting as showing a great improvement in the West Side vein immediately at the water level, as the ore taken from between from between the fifth and sixth levels of that mine did not average fifteen ounces of silver to the ton.

(The burning of the Grand Central Hoisting Works and destruction of its pumping plant, in May last, was a serious disaster. It may indefinitely postpone the draining of the mines of this district.)

Some work was done on both the Defense and East Side mines during the year 1885, but it did not result in a profit to the Company. Their further development is reversed for the future.

But little work has been done on the Owl's Nest or East Side, No. 2, since our last report.

In the fall of 1885 arrangements were made for thoroughly prospecting the Lucky Cuss claim, a mine which had yielded considerable milling ore in early days, but had latterly been worked mainly for manganese for the furnace, the chutes of which ore had also given out. Very satisfactory results were obtained. A large body of excellent manganese ore has been developed containing rich lumps of carbonate and chloride ores. The latter is so intermingled with the manganese that an attempt to mill a portion of it has convinced us that the whole should go to the furnace, and it is being reserved for that purpose. By the time the furnace again starts, this mine will be supplied with steam power hoist, a horse-power having been heretofore employed.

Systematic exploration of the Tribute was commenced along with that of the Lucky Cuss, and equally satisfactory results have been obtained. No material amount of work had been done on this mine beyond that necessary to secure a United States patent. Last winter, after a number of surface cuttings had been made, a tunnel was driven where the mining claim runs up the mountain side, from which drifts were carried and a winze sunk. A vein of ore was discovered which may yet connect with the West Side ledge. It is of good width and grade, and very free milling. Twenty-five per cent. of its value is gold. A second winze is being sunk on the vein to a depth of 75 feet from the first level, and a vertical double-compartment shaft is already down over 100 feet from the surface. The engine, boiler and gallowa frame are in place on the ground, and hoisting by steam will commence with the opening of connections between the shaft and the second level. We have reasons for hoping that this will be a valuable mine.

The Company is now the undisputed owner of sixteen contiguous mining claims, and holds U.S. patents for 225 acres of mining ground, the workings within which have reached the water-level at but one point, shaft No. 3 of West Side mine.

By Order of the Executive Committee,

GEORGE BURNHAM,
President.

W. J. CHEVNEY,
Secretary.

CAPTURED.

A Tombstone Confidence Man Comes To Grief.

Some weeks ago a smooth talker named J. W. Abbott was in this city and stopped at Mary Tack's lodging house. During his stay here he told of having about $821,000 worth of bullion which was enroute to San Francisco from Guaymas and also of a marvelously rich cave that was filled with precious gems and plunder placed there by pirates. So well did he talk that he induced Mary Tack to entrust $700 of her hard earned money to his hands. He then made himself scarce and went to San Francisco not having fulfilled his promises. Mary became suspicious that all was not right and placed the matter in the hands of Sheriff Hatch, Sheriff Hatch immediately got out the necessary extradition papers, and telegraphed to Chief Police Crowley of San Francisco who detailed detectives Bowen and Byran to hunt up Mr. Abbott and place him under arrest which they did and he now languishes in jail awaiting the arrival of Bob Darrah who has been appointed a deputy Sheriff by Bob Hatch, and who left this morning for San Francisco to bring Mr. Abbott back.

The following clipping taken from the San Francisco Call will show what Abbott thinks about it:

Abbott's recent arrival from Tombstone was arrested at the Russ House yesterday afternoon by detectives Bowen and Byran and booked at the Central Police Station as enroute to Arizona to answer a charge of obtaining money under false pretences. Interviewed in "the tank" by a Call reporter last night Abbott stated that he had entered into a partnership some time ago with Mrs. Mary Tack, the proprietress of a Tombstone lodging house for the purpose of developing mines. She put $700 into the partnership all of which he claims to have honestly expended together with his money and time. He asserts that he is at a loss to account for his arrest.

Mr. Woods said that he thought that it was the duty of the city to defend this suit, which was brought to restrain the defendants from using the City Water Works. He further stated however, that the defendants were willing to do their share in the matter of services and of expense in defending the suit.

On motion the whole matter was postponed until Saturday, September the eleventh, at 2 o'clock p. m.

On motion the Council then adjourned until Saturday, September 11, 1886.

Wedding Bells.

There is no other event quite so interesting as a wedding. The St. James Hotel parlors were the scene of an event of this nature last evening the parties being the Hon Patrick Hamilton and Frances E. McBride, both of Phenix. Rev E. S. Chase officiated. Dr. McSwegan was the groom's best man, a much more agreeable relation than the Doctor and Mr. Hamilton sustained upon a former occasion when the latter was principle in an affair of honor with the former in attendance as surgeon. Mr. Hamilton is Immigration Commissioner of Arizona and his bride is one of the loveliest of the daughters of Phenix. There is a fitness in the selection of San Diego as the place for beginning their married life that is a compliment to their judgement. It is proper that the most important event of their lives should celebrate at the sunniest and loveliest spot in the world. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will remain at the St. James for a week.

The above is taken from the San Diego Union and while THE TOMBSTONE congratulates Pat and his bride whom both are personally known to the writer as Pat has been almost a lifelong acquaintance and his bride a well known Tombstone lady, we feel inadequate and we shall only hope that the lovely bride and the handsome bridegroom will reap that prosperity that is due them.

The Banker Hill mine was started up this morning only being shut down one shift and the drift that is being worked is all in rich ore.
