MEETING AT BISBEE.
The Republicans Fire the First Gun of the Campaign.

On Wednesday evening last, Mr. W. A. Nash, candidate for the Legislature on the Republican ticket, and Mr. Frank Frame, also a Republican candidate for the Legislature, opened the campaign in Bisbee. A commodious platform had been erected by Mr. Louis Wilhans and Mr. Sol Pierce, members of the County Central Committees of both parties, and was tastefully decorated with bunting and American flags.

Promptly at eight o'clock Louis Williams called the meeting—which was attended by every person in town—to order, and after a few brief remarks, introduced W. A. Nash, who reviewed the Republican and Democratic tickets for about twenty minutes. His remarks were attentively listened to and often applauded by the audience.

Mr. W. F. Frame was then introduced by the chairman, and in a few brief remarks detailed his course in the Thirteenth Legislature, and defined his present standing towards the people of the county, promising a faithful performance of all duties if re-elected.

Calls were then made for Judge Robinson, who was present in the audience, and he stepped upon the platform and made one of his telling speeches. He stated that he was in Bisbee on some law business, and did not expect to be called upon to speak. He reviewed several of the candidates on the Republican ticket and paid them glowing tributes. After the Judge had concluded his remarks the meeting adjourned.

The New York Mine.

While in Bisbee, a few days ago, we at the invitation of Judge Duncan, took a trip with him to the New York mine, which is situated about one mile below Bisbee. We found one shaft down about 90 feet from which a large body of high grade ore has been taken. Another shaft at a depth of 40 feet, has cut the ledge, and about 500 tons of rich ore has been taken out. In another open cut that has been run Mr. Duncan has taken out 100 sacks of ore that will assay 65 per cent in copper and $100 in silver. This is one of the finest prospects that we have seen in this camp, as there is no place on the mine that ore cannot be found from the grass roots down. The Judge is now negotiating for machinery, which as soon as it arrives will give employment to a large number of men and the New York will be added to the list of great copper producers in Cochise county.

The Grand Army boys will meet at their hall this evening.

The Very Entert.

A slim young man with a single eye glass and an imitation English accent, rolled into a city club yesterday, presented letters of introductions from Eastern social clubs and registered himself from Boston. The regular club men gazed on him and were consumed with envy. He was so thoroughly blase that no one could help noticing the bored look on his face and the languor in his movements: Even the beauty of our autumnal days touched him not, and whenever he stood in the club rooms, whether at bar or bookcase, the circumambient air was permeated with discontent. He said "Awfully beholden, dear chap," in return for the slightest courtesy, and was up in all the forms of Eastern idiocy. Despite his placid exterior and an absolutely frigid indifference, he really enjoyed the sensation of being studied. He was proud of himself. His crowning triumph came last night. It was in the form of reflected glory, to be sure, though that fact made no difference to him. A clever literary man who runs a coal yard, a shoe store, or something of that kind told a story with a rough edge which somebody pronounced a chestnut.

"Beg pardon, dear chap, did you say a chestnut."

"That is what I called it," was the reply.

"But, dear boy that is all wrong. Bad form don't you know. Ah all that sort of thing. It's not a chestnut it's a Hawthorne."

The literary gentleman looked wise and smiled in an approving way, and seemed to agree with the gentleman from Boston, though just why they should they did not know. Finally one of the party stammeringly said: "Oh yes, a Hawthorne. Awfully clever. W-h-a-t-i-s a Hawthorne, don't you know?"

"Ah, dear me, have I forgotten! Oh, no. Ah I have it. A Twice Told Tale."

It was a great occasion for the gentleman from Boston.—San Francisco Report.

Man in an Intelligence Office.

Of all the places in which a man is uncomfortable, an intelligence office is the one in which he appears least at ease; but occasionally he rises superior to circumstances and enters into his feminine fellow sufferers by his rebellion against his oppressors. Such a one sat in a South End office the other day and allowed himself to be cat-chised by some fifteen servants, but the sixteenth found her match. She made the usual inquiries in order to assure herself that his his home contained all the luxuries to which she had been accustomed, and which her delicate health required, and at last said: "I shan't come." "I was afraid you wouldn't," he answered, persistently, "but you ought. This home isn't much, I know; but I'm building one that's to have set tubs and bells, and an elevator, and an electric light, and a piano, and a set of parlor furniture in the kitchen, and it would be like your childhood's home to you, and—I'll let you keep a pig in it."

She walked out of the office, and the other girls were decently respectful for a few minutes; but a fresh arrival, quite unaware of his possibilities, soon attacked him. He answered also with civility until her questions became impertinent, and when she said, "Well, I guess I'll 'hire' you. How many have you in the family?" He answered, "Eighteen," "Eighteen?" she gasped. "And what do ye be paying a week?" "$5.00." "Indeed, and I'll not go," she said; and she also departed, for everybody laughed. "And after all," said a lady who had seen the whole, "he found and engaged a nice girl. If a woman had said half as much she would have been mobbed."—Boston Transcript.

The printing of the Great Register was awarded to the Democrat to-day by the Board of Supervisors at 48 cents per name, which is a very low figure.

A Lie Told.

For the past few days, Dunbar has been publishing in the Epitaph the fact that W. A. Nash had acknowledged as a Notary Public 120 deeds for County Treasurer Ritter, and that Mr. Ritter had taken $220 out of the County Treasury to pay for the acknowledgment of the same. I was away from Tombstone when these statements were published, or I should have set Mr. Ritter right sooner, and I now say that John O. Dunbar was a contemptible liar when he made the above statement, which is only one of his low and sneaking ways of trying to hurt Mr. Ritter.

I did acknowledge 123 deeds for Mr. Ritter for which I have received thus far $11.50, not out of the County Treasury, but from the parties who received the deeds, and when the parties to whom the other deeds belong come for the same, I will receive the balance due me for my work which is $52.50, or fifty cents an acknowledgment.

Any person who knows Mr. Ritter would not believe the statement made by Dunbar, and I only deny his low born lies for the benefit of those who are not acquainted with Mr. Ritter's standing as a gentleman, and Mr. Dunbar's standing as a blaguard.

W. A. NASH.

He Thought He Knew Better.

A citizen walked up the depot platform yesterday afternoon and gazed for two or three minutes at the new train signals recently erected on the south side of the shed roof. Then he turned to Officer McElwee and asked: "What's them things for?" "What things?" "Why, that jigamerig on top 'o ere roof."

"O, that's to stop trains," replied the officer.

A look of incredulity came into the man's face and he said:

"Can't fool me, mister, with such trash. Trains stopped here many years before sich things came around. No man could stop a train with a piece of board 'way up there. Stop a train! Hear him talk!" And the citizen enjoyed a good laugh and then coming to the subject again he asked: "But, mister, what is them things for, anyway. You might as well give it away."

"They are to stop trains with, I tell you," reiterated the policeman.

"Do you mean to tell me that a yard-long piece of wood can reach 'way cross the track and stop a locomoky? Wacher givin' me!" "It catches on the smoke-stack and puts on the air brakes," explained a passenger; "It's a new fangled invention for stopping the engine right away."

"I've lived around Chester these fifteen years," soliloquized the citizen as he gazed with wonder at the shingle, "and I've never seen 'em obliged to stop trains that air way."—Chester Times.

Dunbar's Winter Overcoat.

A well known young man of this city was conversing with Dunbar the editor of the morning turn-out, and ex defaulting Treasurer of Cochise county yesterday.

"Cool weather is coming on" remarked the young man.

"Yes it is getting to be quite chilly," responded Dunbar.

"I believe I'll go and pick me out a winter overcoat, have you bought yours yet Dunbar?" "Me buy an overcoat, not much, I am to have a overigan jacket from Tweed every time, I abuse Andy Ritter. Let me sell you a jacket."
