OLDEN nasturtiums intertwine
My window-sash with grace ul vine;
The saucy blossoms, one by one,
In mock defiance to the sun,
Rear on high their sunny faces,
Then bend low with countiess graces,
Has there been by magic wrought,
Deep within the blossoms, thought Dressed in colors gay and fine?
Fassing fancy 'tis of mine,
That when evening shadows fall
From portico to garden wall,
Each blossom is a little face.
And in it you may find a trace
Of dainty fairy, eif or sprite;
And far into the starry n gbt,
If Hist'ning near them you should be,
Yon'd hear them talk and laugh with glee;
But in the morning they will seem was aroused by coming to a turn in the road, a fork. Now, there were two roads to the village from this point, one leading down a long, steep hill, at the bottom of which an aboideau, or primitive bridge, built of fir trees and brush, with alternate layers of earth and stones-a sort of earth-work, in fact-spanned a deep, treacherous little creek, in which the ice piled in huge blocks in winter, and as it was an estuary of the river, it was a dangerous spot when the tide was high. Taking this road would cut off more than half a mile of my road, so

I decided to try it, despite a curious reluct-

The boys were both home for the day. Jack was in the civil service and Will was in a bank, both younger than I, and already winning their own way in the world.

winning their own way in the world, I thought with a sigh.

Then mother came in to tell me my sup-

Something had evidently happened, for everyone seemed constrained, but made nervous efforts to talk, so I was glad when the meal which had begun so merrily came to a close.

I went back to the parlor with the girls and tried to feel as I did when I first came in, but it was of no use, and, hearing Jack's footsteps crossing the hall, I slipped out and stopped him.

"Look here, Jack," I began, "did I say anything out of the way at supper?"

"No! Oh, no," said Jack, uneasily; he had exidently received private instructions to hold his tongue, and he found the task a hard one.

Wrecker Whitelaw Will Hunt Whales in the Georgian Gulf.

A New Four-Master Launched for the Coasting Trade - The Signal Floated off the Beach-Arrival of the C. T. Hill.

Captain T. P. H. Whitelaw, the wrecker of this city and owner of the wrecking steamer bearing his name, has made application to the Canadian Minister of Customs for permission to hunt and take whales in the Gulf of Georgia. Captain Whitelaw's venture is a big one and he feels confident there is money in it. He feels confident that whaling, with steam launches and the latest and most improved patent guns can be made a most profitable industry. If his theories prove correct, he intends to organize a stock company to systematically hunt the leviathan of the deep.

There has been no whaling in the Gulf of Georgia for seventeen years, as, with the old-fashioned methods adopted, it could never be made to pay in the past. Captain Whitelaw intends to fit out the old and recently purchased steamer Alexander as a floating refinery, for reducing the oil from the whales taken on the scene of their capture. His method of killing will be a new and thoroughly scientific one, allowing no whale that has been captured to escape, and having received the necessary permit from the Canadian Customs he will at once proceed to carry his scheme into execution. The weather was thick and foggy at Point Lobos yesterday, and the wind all day light, veering from south to west. The barometer read: 8 o'clock in the morning, 29.92; noon, 29.89; 5 o'clock in the evening, 29.86.

APRIVAL OF THE C. T. HILL. The schooner C. T. Hill, which struck on a rock at Russian Landing, while leaving her moorings on Sunday, and sprang a leak, arrived in port at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, in tow of the Wizard. She docked at Channel street on arrival, to discharge, and one of the red-stack tugs spent one hour pumping her out. After discharging, she will go on the dry-dock, so that the extent of her injuries can be ascertained. The steamer Signal, which was leaking badly when she arrived from the sound on Sunday, and was beached near Black Point. remained there all day Monday. Yesterday a portion of her cargo was lightered and she then floated off and was towed to Oakland to discharge.

A dispatch received at the Merchants' Exchange yesterday from London says: A dispatch received from Hong-Kong states that the steamer City of Rio de Janeiro at Hong-Kong has been severely damaged by collision with the steamer Bombay.

The ship Drummuir for this port was spoken on June 25th in latitude 13° north, longitude 24° west, and the Inchkeith on June 24th in latitude 60° south, longitude

31° west. ANOTHER FOUR-MASTER. Hall Brothers, the ship-builders of Port Blakeley, have just launched a new fourmasted schooner for the coast lumber trade. She is owned by Captain Tuft and others of this city, and has been christened the King Cyrus. She is said to be a splendid model, and has a carrying capacity of 900,000 feet of lumber.

From dispatches received at the Pacific Mail Company's office it is learned that the steamer China, which left here on Thursday afternoon last, arrived at Esquimalt at 10:30 o'clock on Saturday night, and left there for the Orient at 2:30 o'clock on Sunday morning, after a brief stay of four

The British bark Allonby, Captain Rothery, which left here on March 24th for Queenstown for orders, arrived there on the 30th uit. She stayed there until Sunday. The French bark Iton, which was here a arrived yesterday in ballast from San Diego, after a passage of fourteen days.

Among the cargo of the steamer San Jose for Panama and way ports are 68,698 gallons of wine, valued at $27,272.

his liberty by means of habeas corpus miscarried yesterday. The technical point relied upon was that the District Attorney had disobeyed the injunction of the law in not filing an information against him within thirty days after he was held to answer by the committing magistrate. The District Attorney argued that the law was not mandatory but directory, and that he is not limited to thirty days In such proceeding. Judge Wallace intimated that he thought the law mandatory, but that he did not think habeas corpus a proper method of testing the question. He accordingly refused to graft the writ.
