

SENATORS GORMAN AND DOLPH ON THE ELECTION

Latest Returns From the Various States Show Slight Changes.

Democrats Likely to Gain Seats in New Hampshire, New York, Wisconsin, Illinois and Kansas.

Special to THE MORNING CALL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Senator Gorman in an interview here today said the victory of the Democracy was an expression of the people against the radical measures such as the Republican had brought forth during this Congress. The Senator was asked if he thought the victory would be lasting; if it would give the Democrats the next President. He replied: "It depends upon their course. If they are cautious and conservative they may expect a long reign of power. Senator Dolph, in explanation of the result of the election, said to-day that it was an "off" year, and the friends of the tariff were inactive, while those on the other side were working with all their might. "The manufacturers," he said, "got what they wanted when the tariff bill was passed, and they did not care any more about it. The result would have been different if the passage of the bill had not been followed by the tariff reduction. The artificial increase of prices made in some commodities without the slightest reason also had its effect."

MILITARY POLICY.

Annual Report of the Commander of the Army.

Requirements for a Peaceful Settlement of the Indian Problem.

A Proper Protection of Important Seaboard Cities Recommended—Some Per- tinent Suggestions.

Special to THE MORNING CALL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Major-General Schofield, commanding the United States Army, in his annual report, says in part: "It may be asserted that all that is now requisite for a final and peaceful settlement of the great Indian problem is the wise, just and humane treatment of the Indians upon their reservations, in the presence of such a military force as will deter them from attempting to imitate the deeds of their ancestors. The time has now come when the future or probable military necessities of the country should dictate a military policy. The army should be so stationed that it may be prepared at the shortest notice to respond to any emergency that may arise upon its services; and at the same time to assist in all practical ways in preparing the militia of the several States, or the National Guards, for active service in time of need."

"It is believed to be so manifest to all who will consider the subject that a demonstration is necessary that the important military posts of the United States be fortified, armed and manned as to be capable of self-defense against the attack of any foreign fleet; and each of the sea coasts of the United States should be provided with an adequate fleet of sea-going battleships, capable of attacking upon the broad ocean in any direction, and of being able to blockade the harbors or destroy our commerce. If our important seaports are adequately fortified and armed, our fleet is able to respond to any emergency that may arise upon its services; and at the same time to assist in all practical ways in preparing the militia of the several States, or the National Guards, for active service in time of need."

"The following table shows the strength of the several military posts of the United States, and the next Congress, compiled from the latest telegraphic returns. The Farmers' Alliance delegates are figured up with the Democrats, with whom they will undoubtedly vote on all important issues:

THAT REAR GUARD.

Stanley Talks at Length With New York Reporters.

He Claims That His Criticisms Were More Than Justified.

Special to THE MORNING CALL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—H. M. Stanley, who arrived on steamer Teutonic, was met by his manager, Major Pond, with a party of reporters. Stanley was asked to say something about the rear guard troubles and the stand the London papers have taken on it since Mr. Stanley's departure from England. "I do not wish to say much about it yet, and have not read the London papers carefully enough to express an opinion. I object to stir up the matter unless I am forced to do so. The log-booms of the rear guard were signally destroyed by the officers of the day, Bartlett, Barker or Kingston, while in camp, together with the official reports of the officers. I am justified by all in my measure of the rear guard, which was the cause of the attack made upon me in the book."

With Stanley were his wife, Dorothy Tennant, her mother, Mrs. Tennant, Hamilton Aide, a dramatist, who will do a play about the tour, and Lieutenant J. Moutney Jenkinson, the favorite of Stanley.

In another interview, referring to Bartlett, Stanley said that he had already said as to the condition of the rear guard when he returned from Albert Nyanza. From New York he wrote at once to the British Committee, telling them the rear column was wrecked by the neglect of its officers and their indifference to the interests of the British Committee. BONDED RAILROADS.
Financial Condition of the Systems Indebted to the Government.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The report of the Commissioner of Railroads contains full information in regard to the condition of the bonded railroad companies under the jurisdiction of his office for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1890. As to the improvements in bonded railroads, the Commissioner says that he has reported that many improvements have recently been made and are continually being made. These improvements, which are made in the form of new rolling stock, new machinery, and new equipment, are of great value to the Government, as they not only increase the earning capacity of the road, but add to the safety and efficiency of the service.

The amount received from the bonded railroads for the preceding year was $1,000,000. This, the Commissioner says, is not owing to a decrease in business, but to the fact of the plain, simple fact that the bonded railroads have been able to pay off their debts. The Commissioner says that the bonded railroads have been able to pay off their debts because of the improvements made in the service.

Higgins gave himself up to the authorities at Houstonia, and the Sheriff here received a message this evening summoning him to appear at the prisoner at once, as fears of lynching are entertained.
