

A CONFUSED MASS.

Distressing Accident at a Football Game.

Two Thousand People Buried Beneath a Collapsed Grand Stand.

Many of the Unfortunate Sustain Severe Injuries—The Match Won by the Yale College Team.

Special to THE MORNING CALL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—A terrible accident occurred at Eastern Park, Brooklyn, before the Yale-Princeton football game to-day. The big free grand stand on the eastern side of the grounds suddenly collapsed, carrying down the entire mass of human beings. It is estimated that there were more than 2000 people in the structure at the time.

A scene of indescribable confusion and panic followed the crash. The occupants were mostly men, a great majority of them being students from Yale and Princeton. There were also many women. They all lay in a confused and struggling mass upon the ground, many being completely buried under the wreckage. The screams, shrieks and groans were awful, and many fainted away from the injuries they received.

SUCCESSFUL EXPERIMENTS.

In an instant there was a general rush for the field, and a number of policemen were soon engaged in pulling the maimed and wounded from the wreck. Others lent assistance, and within ten minutes the whole place was cleared.

At first it was feared that some were killed, but this proved unfounded. A great many persons, however, were very severely hurt, and broken limbs and bruised heads and bodies are numerous. Friends of many of the people had then carried away before their names could be learned. Among those whose names were learned are:

CHARLES WILSON, ankle dislocated. JOHN A. QUILLAR, Peckskill Military Institute, back injured.

DANIEL ARKENT, Peckskill Military Institute, back badly sprained. EMERY B. REMINGTON, Princeton, '83, leg broken.

JOHN W. MAX, whose name was not recalled, concussion of the spine. TWO BUTLER COLLEGE STUDENTS, heads bruised and cut.

EDWARD MONROE, Princeton, contusion of the legs. S. G. DUNNING, Princeton, '61, broken wrist.

JAMES A. WYLLIE, thigh broken. JAMES MCGLOTH, internal injuries. F. S. KEELER, Columbia, '91, broken wrist.

JOHN WYLLIE, Yale, injured internally. STEPHEN P. SPUR, Yale, arm broken. JOHN CARBETH, Wesleyan University, badly cut on the head.

ELMER, Princeton, '94, both legs badly injured. CHELSEY, Princeton, '94, concussion of the brain, very severe.

CHARLES MORSE, Yale, leg broken. MCKEAN, Princeton, fractured leg. BRADLEY, Princeton, '92, both legs badly hurt.

H. W. FULLER, scalp wound. GEORGE A. JOHNSON, contusion of the spine.

A lot of boys, whose names were not learned, who stood upon the top row of the bleachers, were not hurt, and it is thought that they were hurt were two Brooklyn women. The lowest estimate puts the number of people injured at fifty, while others place it as high as more than 100.

AN UNSAFE STRUCTURE. The stand was evidently in most unsafe condition, for the timbering showed that many of the beams were decayed in two, while the whole structure was so flimsy and flimsy that every one claimed that a very superficial examination of the structure would show it to be utterly insufficient to support the crowd which would occupy it.

The accident produced a great sensation in the city. The press and the public alike were full of indignation. The Park Committee is roundly denounced for the way in which they conducted the affair, and the desire to save money is held up as a blot upon their record. It is said that a few dollars more might have prevented the accident and ambulance would not have been raising their voices with gaily drapage.

THE GAME. Yale Shut Out the Princeton Without Any Apparent Effort.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The championship football game between Princeton and Yale, which was contested on the Eastern Park Grounds to-day, was won by the Yales by a score of 32 to 0. The game was witnessed by 25,000 persons, who had recovered from the depression caused by the recent couple of hours before, and manifested their enthusiasm in every conceivable manner.

Nearly all the different colleges in the East were represented among the coaches. Their sympathies were all for Yale. The game was a grapple, but the Princeton eleven were a bunch of old-fashioned football players. The Princeton line seemed to be stripplings compared with the Yales, and they frequently used bad tactics. When the word was given, the Yales had scored sixteen and the Princeton nothing. When the second half began no one was doubt to expect a close game, and had fallen over the Princeton contingent.

The Yales, however, were not to be deterred by the Princeton line, and the irresistible rush of the Yales, stopping minutes the Yales had increased their tally to twenty. The Princeton line was exerting themselves to shut out the Princeton, succeeding well, as the score tells.

ADAMS' ADDRESS. Criticism of Sage on the Late Management of the Union Pacific.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—It is evident the Gould-Sage party did not enjoy the farewell address of President Adams. Sage in an interview to-day said: "The tenor of Adams' address was almost unaltered. There has been no public criticism of his management by any of the Directors, notwithstanding the fact that he was running the road to ruin. Mr. Adams says in his address that he has been responsible for the Union Pacific for the last three years, and that during that time the actions of the Directors were unanimous. It is simply saying that Adams is responsible for the Union Pacific for the last three years, and that during that time the actions of the Directors were unanimous. He should explain how it comes that his party increased the debt of the road for three months, what personal interest he had in the Kansas smelting works, in favor of which discrimination was made in the awarding of shipping bullion, and in a dozen other matters."

To-morrow the Tribune will print an interview with Jay Gould in which he says ex-President Adams of the Union Pacific is a three-time swindler. Many of the affairs of the Union Pacific without the knowledge of the Directors, and he has been shown when late in Kansas City that Adams personally owned the controlling interest in the stock of the Union Pacific, and the railroad was carrying in their live stock at the bare cost of transportation the stocks earned $1,000,000 in six years. Such an action as this, Gould said, would never be permitted under the new management. He believes the Burlington and Rock Island will both come into the plan for securing their results from Western railway dividends.

Gould said to-day that the Union Pacific will be made in the Union Pacific. Gould said to-day that the Union Pacific will be made in the Union Pacific. Gould said to-day that the Union Pacific will be made in the Union Pacific.

WILL HE RESIGN?

The Question That Is Agitating the Nationalists.

A General Impression That Parnell Will Refuse to Abdicate.

A Significant Incident in the Commons. Earl Spencer Reviews the Situation. Dillon Is Discouraged.

Special to THE MORNING CALL.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Timothy Healy and Parnell had a conference to-day. The feeling among the Nationalists members is more favorable to Parnell than yesterday, and the opinion prevails that they will sustain him.

Healy is very reticent and refuses to say anything about the Irish leader's intentions. Parnell appears to be in buoyant spirits and in splendid health. A noticeable incident occurred in the Commons when Parnell went to vote on Labouchere's amendment. Parnell had to pass the Liberal benches, and his late allies studiously ignored him. It is stated if Parnell remains in the leadership, Parnell expects to be in buoyant spirits and in splendid health.

One of Parnell's closest friends declares that Parnell regards the movement to expel him as a Radical regard for his support of the royal grants last summer, and that he is determined to remain in the Commons until the independence of the Irish party and make it a mere appendage to the Liberal party.

It is understood that at Monday's meeting the Parnell members a resolution will be adopted recognizing Parnell's great services, but calling upon him to resign the leadership of the party.

PARNELL'S STUBBORNNESS. The Press Association says Parnell considers he has been unfairly treated by some of his colleagues, who practically owe their seats to his support.
