OFF THE ROCKS.

The Costa Rica Towed Into Esquimalt Harbor.

A Drunken Man Shot and Instantly Killed by a Bar-Tender at Fall City.

A Citrus Colony Club Organized in Placer County-Fires at Modesto and East Petaluma.

Special to THE MORNING CALL

VICTORIA, Dec. 1 .- The steamer Costa Rica was pulled off the rocks this afternoon by the tugs Lorne and Pilot. The United States revenue cutter Corwin rendered valuable assistance. The disabled steamer was towed into Esquimalt harbor and placed in dock. The full extent of her injuries will not be known until to-morrow, but they are believed to be serious. SHOT DEAD. A Drunken Man Killed by a Bar-Tender at Fall City.

REDDING, Nov. 1.—A report was circulated to-night that Joe Goodwin, an ex-stage-driver who has of late been tending bar at Fall City who has of late been tending bar at Fall City had killed a man Sunday by the name of Allen. It appears that Allen went into a saloon drunk and had words with Goodwin, and told him it he would come from behind the bar he would thump him. Goodwin grabbed a pistol and struck Allen twice, when some one caught him by the arms and told him to desist. But Goodwin thrust the pistol out to one side and snot Allen through the head, killing him instantly.

Fire at Modesto. Modesto, Dec. 1 .- This morning at 3:30 c'clock a fire of unknown, origin was discovered in the rear of F. Jacobson's saloon, on Front street. The fire burned B. B. Garner's and Homer & Pflagman's saloons, and George Whaten's shooting gallery, and damaged the saloon of Lou Collins and the barber-shop of H. J. Severns, adjoining. The Brooklyn Hotel was also charred and damaged by water. The herole work of the firemen and the stillness of the air prevented the burning of nearly the entire business hortlon of the city. The losses were: Two one-story frame buildings owned by the Modesto Bank, $1000, not insurance; Garner, liquor stock, $900, insurance $500; Jacobson, liquors, $1200, insurance $500; Horner & Pflagman, liquors, $1000, usurance $600; Whalen's shooting gallery, $150, no insurance; Brooklyn Hotel, $500, insured. saloon of Lou Collins and the barber-shop of H.

THE MARINE CORPS. An Effort to Secure Its Practical Abolishment Inaugurated.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 .- The old fight between the line and staff in the navy is likely to be succeeded by a contest between the navy proper and the Marine Corps. The Organization Board in its recent report to the Secretary of the Treasury recommended virtually the abolition of the Marine Corps. The latest attack on the corps comes from Lieutenant W. F. Fullam, at present on duty in Chicago. His paper, entitled "The System of Naval Training and the discipline required to promote efficiency and attract Americans," which was read before the Naval Institute at Ann Arbor, has aroused a spirit of controversy from which personality is not unfrequently entirely eliminated. Fullman's idea is that the new navy has no further use for the sailor. The introduction of complicated weapons on sailless men-of-war demands a change in the training of crews. He would have them n the nature of experts, partaking more of military than a naval drill.

He asserts that an American cannot be prought into a service where the surveillance amounts to debasement. He finds this surveillance confined to the exercise of the duties of the marine officers and men, and he would withdraw what he regards as an aggravating form of policing. He proposes the education of the present sailor in naval gunnery and the con-finement of the marines' duty to the barracks. Any such efforts are bound to be opposed not only by the older naval officers, whose influence is undeniable, but by the young marine officers, all of whom are graduates of the Naval Academy and members of the same classes as the senior naval officers who are the principal avitators in this matter. The opinion among more experienced naval officers regarding the sailor is that the quality cannot be improved unless certain conditions independent of the Marine Corps are removed. HANDS UP.

Fatal Struggle Between a Passenger and Train-R bber.

Democrat Tyler, (Texas), special reports a robbery of a passenger on a mixed train on the Cotton Belt road to-night, between Big Sandy and Windna, by a lone highwayman. When the train started to pull out from the water tank between Big Sandy and Winona, the coupling between a passenger coach and the cars in front was either broke in or was purposely removed, and the train pulled out leaving the coach behind. There were several passengers in the coach, including a negro woman. They all left the car and went out on the platform to discover what was the matter, except a Mr. Schmit of Milwaukee, a Mr. Gerhart and the man who committed the robbery. The first intimation he gave of his purpose was by pulling a tig pistol, firing a shot into the top of the car, crying "Hands up, gentlemen." Schmit said: "I looked around to see what was the matter, thinking it some drunken cowboy, and found a pistol under my nose. The man with the pistol told me to shell out, and I made haste to reach down in my pocket and gave him what silver I had, about $9 or $10. He then turned to Gerhart, who was in the seat with me, and asked him for his money, Gerhart said, 'I have no money.'
"I know better; shell out," said the robber. Gerhart raised his hand to turn aside the pistol, when the robber fired, the ball entering the left side just below the heart. Gerhart then granuled with heart. Gethart then grappled with him, trying to get possession of the pistol. He fought the robber to the door of the car. During the scuffle the robber fired five times, when, his pistol being empty, he turned and ran." The trainmen say that after leaving the train three men tried to signal them, but mistrusting something they refused to stop. The wounded man cannot live. The robber was not caught.

Lord Chief Justice Coleridge. NEW YORK, Dec. 1 .- The Mail and Ex. press prints a letter from Lord Chief Justice oleridge to a friend in New York, dated November 16th. The writer says that his recent attack of illness left him very weak, but no further ill-effects remain. He hopes by Christmas to be so far recovered as to enjoy his holiday. The letter says: "Here our Government and supporters seem to be engaged in their ignoric endeavors to blast out the life of the war. out the life of the man of 81 years, but I hope he will defeat them yet. THE THEATERS.

Augustin Daly's "Pique" Draws Well at the Alcazar.

Opening of the Third Week of Opera-"Th Grenadier" at the Tivoli-Business at the Other Houses.

The production of Augustin Daly's "Pique" at the Alcazar last evening was the signal for the largest attendance of the season. Taken as a whole the melodrama was well played—a little hurried, perhaps, and in parts unfinished, due to a first performance. An evening or two will improve this and then we may look for a close, concise and complete performance. The best efforts last evening were those of Captain Arthur Standish (Mr. William Beach) and old Mathew Standish, his father (Mr. James E. Wilson), in the male line of representation. There was, individually, a certain finish in these personations-separating them from the mass of the cast-that showed study and appreciation of the work in hand. In the female portion of the distribution Miss Ethel Brandon was effective as Mabel Renfrew, who married Arthur Standish out of vique with her real sweetheart, Raymond Lessing (Mr. Leo Cooper). The lesson taught in her case a noxious one; but as it belongs to the business of the drama, must be accepted for what it is worth in its construction. It is the old story of a woman marrying one man and loving another, and of the unloved one finding it out when too late, as it was in this case, when Mabel refused to gratify her new husband and his primitive-fashioned father by attending evening family worship at the old homestead. Miss Idalene Cotton was also happy in her part of Mary Standish, sister of Arthur. The part of Raitch, which is looked to as a supply of the broad lights of low comedy in the run of the piece, was confided to Miss Fanny Bowman, who played it with a reckless freedom that served the purpose of relieving the somber shades of the business. In this way her eccen-tricities helped the audience to a needed laugh occasionally, when the sober aspects of affairs became too intense in the dramatic life of the principals. It was not the wight NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1.-The Times life of the principals. It was not thought Miss Bowman had so much of the vis comica in her composition, but in the case of this young woman new opportunities developfresh surprises as to her dramatic ability. The stock system of the Aleazar is proving a good school for beginners and aiding the growth of nascent talent.

The Third Week. The opening of the third week of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Company, at the Orpheum, showed a slight "Monday drop." This may be attributed to carrying "Rigoletto," the opera of the last seven nights, further forward, when the public looked for a new work from the repertory of the management. The large number present had reason to congratulate themselves, however, on the excellence of the performance. The principals were never in setter voice, nor was the applause heretofore so effusive or so genuinely deserved. Perhaps it was on the Handel principle. The master when told that his auditorium was not so full as usual said to his informant, with a pleased smile: "So! Why, then, the music will sound much better." A remark that pleased the artists much better than it did the manager. The distribution last evening embraced all the stars. We have never yet heard the prime evening embraced all the stars. We have never yet heard the prima donna, Miss Francesca Guthrie, to so much advantage as Gilda. She sang the music of the role with a strength, courage, purity and sweetness of intonation that excelled all her previous efforts. As if inspired by her example the tenor, Mr. Alfred Guille, took a higher plane of excellence as the Duke of Mantua, and was more prodigal than ever of the treasures of sound hidden in his marvelous organ. So, too, with Mr. William Mertens, the brave young barytone, in the title role. Diffias it is, he made light of all cult as it is, he made light of all the exacting passages, both dramatic and lyric, and gave a rendering that will stand comparison with the best recorded masters of the operatic stage. The minor characters were all in more perfect form than before, and the orchestra aided in making the performance of this work the most complete we have had this season, "Rigoletto" will be repeated this evening. When "Martha" is produced on Thursday evening, it is expected that Mr. Alfred Wilkie will sing the part of "Lionel." part of "Lionel."

"The Grenadier." The Tivoli produced, according to announcement, the purely English military comic opera, in three acts, called "The Grenadier." The first act takes place in England, at the yard of the Crown Inn, the second in the British camp in Flanders (where, according to Sterne, the British army swore so terribly, and the third in the garden of Morton Lodge, England. The opera is too calm in its movement to prove a great attraction, although there are some pleasant scenes and much attractive music scattered through it. Mr. Fred Urban, as Vincent Feathertop, has many funny bits in the way of business. many funny bits in the way of business, and several catching little songs, of which he makes the best use, and James T. Kelly, as the Irish Corporal, Ginger, brings into fine play his characteristic quality. The opera will be repeated till further notice.

At the Other Theaters. "Little Puck" pulled the usual large audience at the New California.
"The Coons" — Cleveland's Colored Cohort—as they are called, had a fair at-tendance at the New Bush-street Theater.

General Mention. Mr. Charles H. Goodwin, formerly connected with the Baldwin Theater management, comes with the pianist Vladimir de Pachmann to this city as his man of business. He was at Leavenworth, Kans., November 26th, en route. The concerts will be given on the 15th, 16th and 22d insts. at Odd Fellows' Hall.

Florence is writing his memoirs for a New York publishing-house.

A PILOT EXCNERATED.

Pilot Commissioners Hold Captain John-A meeting of the State Board of Pilot Commissioners was held yesterday morning, President Martin Bulger in the chair. After passing the monthly accounts and transacting the routine business the Commissioners held an investigation in regard to the accident that occurred on the bay on November 9th, when the incoming steam whaler Orca, in charge of Pilot George H. Johnson, ran into and sank a fishing boat, and one of the occupants, Fred Friedel, was and one of the occupants, Fred Friedel, was drowned.

A number of witnesses, including the pilot himself, Andrew Robinson, first mate, Dolfino Loperz, second mate, and Seymour Josselyn, third mate of the steamer, Fred Walton, a shipping agent, and a number of pilots as experts were examined. Their evidence all tended to show that the pilot was blameless in the matter, and the Commissioners exonerated him from all blame. A communication was received from Adolph Sutro stating that pilots on the boats outside were in the habit of shooting seal-lions. The subject was discussed, but no definite action taken, the impression being that Mr. Sutro was mistaken. When Commodore Caduc was outside in the Annie a few days ago he saluted with his gun one of the pilot boats and the salute was returned attait is supressed that the salute was returned. of the pilot boats and the salute was re-turned, and it is supposed that is how the idea was obtained that the boats were shoot-

The boys were charged with petty larceny.

DEAF MUTES' TRIBUTE. Celebration of Dr. Wilkinson's

Jubilee at Berkeley Asylum. At the State Institution for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind at Berkeley, Dr. Warring Wilkinson, the principal of the institution, completed his twenty-fifth year of service on Sunday. The event was celebrated by the pupils, officers and graduates. Dr. Wilkinson was hastily summoned to the Assembly Hall of the institution at 8 o'clock in the morning. On entering, Mr. d'Estrella, the first deaf mute educated in California, now holding the position of an instructor at the school, received Dr. Wilkinson at the door of the hall and escorted him to the platform. Mr. d'Estrella, on behalf of all present, then read an approbehalf of all present, then read an appropriate address, in which Dr. Wilkinson was congratulated on the anniversary and eulogized on the noble manner in which he had devoted himself to his work. The stately pile of buildings at Berkeiey presented a striking contrast to the small house in San Francisco, where the principal entered upon his duties twenty-five long years ago. It was to testify to the work he had done and to show that he was equally beloved by those who had been and by those who are still in the institution that they had gotten still in the institution that they had gotten up the presentation.

Addresses were then read from the pupils of the blind and deaf and dumb departments to the same effect.

Mr. d'Estrella, on behalf of all, then presented Dr. Wilkinson with a magnificent onyx and bronze-gilt clock and a silver plate, with the inscription: Time enhanceth worth. Dr. Wilkinson, who was visibly affected by the kindness so unexpectedly manifested, replied by saying that his endeavor from the commencement of his career as principal of the California school had been to educate his pupils that they might enter upon their life duties well equipped with knowledge, but justleularly so trained morally that they might become a credit to their teachers and an bonor to the community. In his endcavors he had been seconded by a generous State. MORROW CLUB OFFICERS.

MILLIE PANHORST.

She Gives Testimony in Regard to the Killing of Goldberg.

The only witness examined in the Millie Panhorst trial yesterday was the accused herself. Mr. Wilson intended to have called the girl, Bes. sie, who had been placed in a house of ill-repute by Goldberg, but being unable to find her he decided to give up the chase.

Miss Panhorst was called as a witness and she was too deeply affected at times to proceed with-

"I met the deceased about five years ago," she

"I met the deceased about five years ago," she said, "while on a visit to my sister. I was never introduced to him; he came up and spoke to me. In the course of our acquaintance he secured a position for me in a shirt factory, which I kept for six months, or up to the time of the death of my mother. During my employment on one particular occasion he invited me to accompany him to a photograph gallery on Third street, where he said: 'Millie, what is the use of your working. to a photograph gallery on Third street, where he said: 'Millie, what is the use of your working any longer? Why not marry me? I have plenty of money now and can support you.'"

She consented to the proposition, and the relations then established were continued for some time, until she became convinced he did not intend to marry her, when they were broken off. About a year and a half ago they again met, and upon the renewal of his old promise of marriage the former relations were renewed. She then testified to ner liness and that Goldberg again promised to marry her. When she found he would only marry her by contract she became indignant and again left him. All this time she said she loved him and wanted to marry him.

The witness also described the searce when he is the said she loved him and wanted to marry him.

became indignant and again left him. All this time she said she loved him and wanted to marry him.

The witness also described the scene when he attempted to kill her and was prevented by her sister. "Another time," she continued, "he told me he was hard up and had lots of bills to pay. He wanted to know if I would not consent to go into a certain house, where I could earn lots of money. He said he had many friends.

"I got angry and left him again. He came to me afterward, took me by the throat and threw me on the sofa. He said that if I did not do as he told me to he would kill me. I never had anything more to do with him after that. This was one week before the shooting."

She was very much frightened all day previous to the shooting, knowing what he had threatened and extecting him almost any moment.

"He did not come until 8 o'clock," she added. "I would not let him in until after my father returned, and told him so. He said he would kill me. I said: 'You could not expect me to let you in after that, could you?" He had told me before that he had stabbed his last girl."

After describing what took place just before the shooting, Mr. Wilson asked her if she remembered firing the shot. She replied: "I do," after some hesitancy, and then burst into an uncontrollable fit of sobbing. Waiting until she had calmed down some, Mr. Wilson asked if she was much frightened on the night in question. It was some little time before she could answer. "I was nervous and scared," she finally said, "and afraid Sam would kill me."

Mr. Campbell's cross-examination was very mild, and brought out little excent repetitions of former statements. At its close he asked for a continuance, giving as his reason that he had some ten or fifteen witnesses that he wanted to examine. The trial will be continued at 10 o'clock to-day.

C. P. HUNTINGTON.

He Gives His Opinion of the Pacific Mail and Union Pacific Deals. NEW YORK, Dec. 1.-Since his arrival from California C. P. Huntington has been loth to talk publicly upon many questions now prominent in the railroad world, but to-day he said: "I was entirely satisfied with the changes made in the Pacific Mail Board of Directors. I think the relations of the Paeific Mail Steamship Company will remain as they have been heretofore, as their best interests lie in that direction. "If you ask how Gould's control of the Union Pacific affects my interest in other

Union Pacific affects my interest in other roads, I should say favorably, as a man of his great ability, with his large holding of shares of the Union Pacific would be much more likely to pursue a conservative policy than would be the case if there were a multitude of shareholders and the road was officered by men of small or no holdings of the property they are controlling. I am quite sure the public is satisfied that rates, fares and weights are too low and would like to see rates established that would give a fair return to the owners of the property." a fair return to the owners of the property."
