

THE CALL'S CLEW

Through the Maze at the Midwinter Fair. EXHIBITORS ARE DELIGHTED.

Butte County's Night

Monday, When People Can Learn All About That Section.

HERE is a pretty story among ancient legends of a wonderful labyrinth. The maze of the Minotaur, a marvel called a Minotaur. A hero named Perseus wanted to find his way out of the maze.

But he couldn't find his way out. But a fair heroine named Ariadne took on Perseus and placed a magic clue in his hand, by means of which he found his way out.

MAN'S CLOSE ALLY

Dr. L. C. Lane as a Pleader for the Horse.

Inaugural Lecture of the Eleventh Annual Course at Cooper Medical College.

The eleventh annual course of free lectures at Cooper Medical college was inaugurated last night by Dr. L. C. Lane, his subject being "The Horse."

Dr. Henry Gibbons, dean of the college, was in the chair, and in a few brief remarks introduced the lecturer, who was greeted with applause by the large and cultured audience.

Dr. Lane commenced by stating that the first classification of animals was given about a century ago by Cuvier, the French naturalist.

He then traced the development of the horse from its primitive ancestor, the horse, the Steadfast pony of the most primitive times.

The most beautiful horses to be seen anywhere was in Regent's Park, London, on an afternoon, but here was the objectionable horse, the Steadfast pony.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

Dr. Lane then referred to superstitions there were also artificial marks made on the horse's face, and often made on the hind legs of the horse.

TEMPEST-OSSSED.

The Rough Trip of the Lord Templemore.

IT WAS HER MAIDEN VOYAGE.

Seventy Days of Heavy Gales—The Walker to Be Put on the Stockton Route.

Yesterday morning about half an hour after midnight Captain Scott of the brig Walker, under the command of the heads with large four-masted ship in tow, which presently dropped anchor off Meigs wharf.

The tug met the vessel nearly twelve miles outside the heads and brought her in through the north channel. It was while perched along the shore yesterday that Captain Scott wanted $300 for the job of bringing the vessel in.

There is just one reason why the bill would be disputed, namely, that the vessel is the Lord Templemore, long overdue, with insurance at a 40 per cent premium refused.

The Lord Templemore is a beauty, one of the plumpness of the modern iron and steel shipbuilding art. If the craft had been anything else but a fine specimen of her class the crew would have been in Davy Jones' locker long ere now.

When Captain Walker made his report yesterday morning he furnished a story which is a romance of the seas if ever there was one.

The Lord Templemore was built at Belfast in June of last year by Harland & Wolff, and was launched by the Ship-owners Company. It was the ship's maiden voyage.

She left Liverpool on June 28 and had a rough passage, but on the 29th she was struck by a heavy gale, and on the 30th she was wrecked on the coast of the United States.

Some discussion took place on a motion that the legislative measure known as "The Ship-owners' Bill" be referred to a committee.

The measure, which is now in the hands of the committee, is a bill to amend the laws relating to the liability of ship-owners for the loss of cargo.

A series of resolutions were introduced by the committee, and the bill was referred to a sub-committee.

The bill was then reported to the assembly, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

LABOR IN COUNCIL.

The New Federation Approves the Eight-Hour Bill.

The San Francisco Trades and Labor Council, of the new federation of trades, met last night at Union Hall, 1159 Mission street.

The various committees reported progress. The organizing and visiting committee reported having visited several unions.

The law and legislative committee reported that they had considered several bills, which they endorsed, and recommended the council to take action thereon.

Among the bills were the following: 1. A bill extending the powers of the State Labor Board. 2. A bill extending the powers of the State Labor Board.

A series of resolutions were introduced by the committee, and the bill was referred to a sub-committee.

The bill was then reported to the assembly, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

The bill was then passed by a large majority, and the committee recommended its passage.

THE MESSENGER BOYS.

Messenger Boys Threaten to Strike.

The messenger boys of the San Francisco District Telegraph Company are threatening to strike.

Though it will not be generally known, the fleet-footed messengers of this particular company are about as determined a set of young gentlemen as one could meet in the city.

Such was the case some few months back, when the boys felt that the exigencies of the case demanded immediate and summary action, and accordingly laid their baggage of servitude for a brief hour.

At this writing the present case seems to be a parallel one. For some time the regime of Henry Ackerman, the superintendent, has not been altogether such as the boys could endorse.

In fact, when a CALL reporter tried to talk quietly with a group of them last night at their headquarters, they reported an enumeration of their wrongs brought the matter more nearly home, and expressed themselves roundly in denunciation of the superintendent in language that admitted of no misinterpretation.

"We got docked for about everything," they said. "If we are caught smoking, he puts us in jail, and if we are caught drinking, he sends us to the hospital."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

PLEA FOR MATRIMONY.

The San Francisco District Telegraph Boys Will Quit To-Day Unless a Married Clerk is Recalled.

The messenger boys of the San Francisco District Telegraph Company are threatening to strike.

Though it will not be generally known, the fleet-footed messengers of this particular company are about as determined a set of young gentlemen as one could meet in the city.

Such was the case some few months back, when the boys felt that the exigencies of the case demanded immediate and summary action, and accordingly laid their baggage of servitude for a brief hour.

At this writing the present case seems to be a parallel one. For some time the regime of Henry Ackerman, the superintendent, has not been altogether such as the boys could endorse.

In fact, when a CALL reporter tried to talk quietly with a group of them last night at their headquarters, they reported an enumeration of their wrongs brought the matter more nearly home, and expressed themselves roundly in denunciation of the superintendent in language that admitted of no misinterpretation.

"We got docked for about everything," they said. "If we are caught smoking, he puts us in jail, and if we are caught drinking, he sends us to the hospital."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half."

"He has a dollar bill for every day of work on Sunday, and if it had been on payday it would have cost me two dollars and a half