USE POND'S EXTRACT

FOR PILES, FOR BURNS, FOR SORE EYES, FOR WOUNDS, FOR SORES, FOR Headache AND ALL PAIN. Have the early frosts or too late a lingering by the garden gate again aroused that RHEUMATISM so peacefully slumbering the summer long? Well, if it's very bad you must change your diet and perhaps take some distasteful drug—the doctor will tell you what—but first rub thoroughly the part afflicted with POND'S EXTRACT, then wrap it warmly with flannel, and the rheumatism may wholly disappear. It will certainly be much relieved. Now that you have the POND'S EXTRACT try it for any of the many things its buff wrapper mentions. It's a wonderful curative. But don't accept substitutes. Arrival of Chun Afong's Family.

THEY ARE ALLOWED TO LAND

Whiting's Prospective Father-in-Law Rejoins His First Wife in the Flowery Kingdom.

Clad in a walking costume of dark brown and wearing one of those modern jaunty hats, the flat kind with a coquettish feather at the side, Miss Marie Afong stood yesterday afternoon waiting the descent of the elevator at the Occidental Hotel. She is a little woman, of good figure, and would be passed on the street as a typical American girl. Nevertheless she is the daughter of a Chinese wealthy merchant, formerly of Honolulu, now of Hong-Kong. It is Miss Marie's sister, Maria, who is engaged to be married to Captain William H. Whiting, U. S. N., and the similarity of names caused much confusion yesterday, and the fair visitor from Hawaii was mistaken time and again for the fiancée.

as well as the officers of the other ships last winter. It was at one of these receptions that Captain Whiting of the Alliance met Miss Maria Afong. They were often seen together from that time and their engagement was announced soon after the Alliance sailed for San Francisco in March.

A dispatch from Washington says that Captain Whiting has applied for an indefinite leave of absence, and that his marriage will soon take place. He will probably leave within a few weeks for Honolulu, though it is doubtful if the ceremony will take place before the mother returns. Friends of the commander say that he will resign from the navy after the marriage and enter business.

JAPANESE NIGHT.

Unique Entertainment at the Pavilion.

Mikado Maiden Drill by Twelve Young Ladies—Americans Will Have Sway To-Night.

Midweek attendance at the Youths' Directory festival last night was very large and a better pleased crowd has seldom gathered in the Mechanics' Pavilion. It was Japanese night and very attractive. Knell's amateur orchestra of fifty pieces gave a short and pleasing programme, each number eliciting applause.

CHICKAMAUGA VETERANS.

They Held a Reunion at the Occidental Last Night.

A number of the members of the Chickamauga Veterans' Association met in the Occidental Hotel last evening to make arrangements for the meeting of the survivors of the Army of the Cumberland on November 25, 1893, the anniversary of the battle of Missionary Ridge, and also to hold a reunion.

More Anti-Chinese Work.

The Anti-Chinese Law and Order League held another of its open-air meetings in the Forty-third Assembly District at the corner of Powell and Jackson streets last night. Ex-Senator Leland presided. Speeches were delivered by Ex-Senator John Leland, James K. Doney and Denis Kearney. Denis Kearney stated that Colonel Fox, James Kidney and himself would speak at an anti-Chinese meeting to be held in Oakland to-night.

Ex-Senator Everts Finds His Farm in Vermont a Costly Toy.

"It costs considerably more to run a farm than people imagine," remarked a friend a few days ago. "A man may support a yacht, go off on long cruises, entertain liberally and gain the reputation of being a half fellow wretch, but often a farm is still more costly. The running of a farm is still more costly, the running of a farm is still more costly, the running of a farm is still more costly."

Andersen Relics for London Exhibit.

It would be a pleasant deed if some one would secure the exhibit at the Chicago World's Fair which deals with the relics of Hans Christian Andersen. A book in the South Kensington Museum might be found for those quaint old chairs and the old-fashioned sofa, the stove which warmed his little Danish home, and the table at which he wrote. In addition there are shown his spectacles, his hat of curious high shape, and many of his manuscript scraps, out of some of which fall little figures cut by him out of paper for the amusement of his child friends.

THORNE'S TERROR.

He Was Mortally Afraid of Northey.

DARED NOT RETURN HOME.

The Attorney for the Defense Gives Instances of the Dead Man's Vindictive Spirit.

The second day of the trial of Harry Thorne for the murder of Frank T. Northey dragged rather, as during the whole day's proceedings very few witnesses were examined, and their testimony brought out no new facts connected with the tragedy. The testimony on all sides is very conflicting.

When proceedings were resumed yesterday morning the first witness called was Supervisor Ryan, who accompanied the witnesses, Tucker, O'Connell and Fitzhugh, to Garcia's saloon on the afternoon of the shooting, and was present when the fatal event occurred.

Mr. Ryan said that on the occasion in question his attention was first attracted by Northey and Thorne quarreling. The witness and his party were at that time standing on the street, just outside the saloon. Thorne said: "I've had enough of this, and I'm not going to stand any more of it." Northey replied in the most insulting and disgusting language, whereupon Thorne retired into the saloon. Northey followed him in, repeating the abusive epithets.

"Finally," said the witness, "Northey invited Thorne out into the back alley to settle the matter and went out of the front door of the saloon. Wilcox urged Thorne to go out and fight Northey, but Thorne said he was afraid of the man. Thorne was given a club, but this was taken away from him and Garcia provided him with a pistol at the suggestion of Wilcox, who said Northey was armed. Thorne went into the saloon, and when it was opened he fired and Northey fell."

With this evidence the prosecution's case was declared closed and George A. Knight rose to make the opening statement for the defense. Mr. Knight said that his plea was one of justifiable homicide. Northey was a "bad man," who was continually bullying and threatening to "do up" the witnesses of the case. Several instances of this feature of Northey's character. He said that Northey had once told Thorne that he was broke and that he intended to borrow $300 from Bob Morrow. He said that Bob Morrow did not give him the money he'd "put a hole in him." On another occasion he vowed deadly vengeance against Mose Gunst.

"At last," said Mr. Knight, "Chief Crowley set for Northey and warned him to cease threatening people. Thorne knew this and said that Northey was a dangerous man. He tried to avoid a being with Northey and went into a back room to get away from him. Northey then and there threatened to kill Thorne before he left the place, and before the shot was fired he made a motion to draw a weapon."

After this statement the jury at Mr. Knight's suggestion went down and examined the premises, Knight claiming that it was impossible that Northey could have been standing between Thorne and Thorne when he was shot. A recess was therefore taken for this purpose.

In the afternoon the first witness called for the defense was Sands W. Forman, who was in the saloon at the time the shooting occurred. He testified to having seen Northey at the door, and heard him say to Thorne: "Come out, you—back in the saloon you are." Thorne came in, and shortly afterward got a pistol from Garcia. Thorne was standing close to the back door when Northey opened it. Thorne immediately shot at him, with fatal effect. Dr. S. E. Wilder testified to being acquainted with Northey, who was, on the tragic occasion, very drunk and very obstreperous. The witness told Northey to go home, as that would be the best place for him. Northey refused, and shortly afterward the shooting took place, as described by the previous witness.

John W. Wilcox gave testimony to the effect that he was in the saloon at the time of the fatal quarrel between Thorne and Northey. Northey went out, and the witness told Thorne to go home, and he would like to go home and take his wife out to dinner. Wilcox then testified to being acquainted with Northey, who was, on the tragic occasion, very drunk and very obstreperous. The witness told Northey to go home, as that would be the best place for him. Northey refused, and shortly afterward the shooting took place, as described by the previous witness.

Frank Garcia, the proprietor of the saloon, gave similar testimony, after which the court adjourned until to-day.

NOTHING'S LIFE INSURED.

Charlotte Northey, widow of Frank T. Northey, who was killed by Harry Thorne, has filed suit in the Superior Court against the Bankers' Life Association to recover $2000 insurance on her late husband's life. The complaint states that by the terms of the policy Northey was to pay four dollars a month for three years, and that she had paid for three months, dating from July, 1892. The first three were paid and the fourth was due April 30, 1893. Northey was shot April 28 and the 30th fell on a Sunday. The next day, May 1, the money due was tendered and refused. The company has since ignored the policy.

men were constantly employed. On one occasion a lady, hearing of Mr. Everts' large income from his profession, exclaimed in the presence of the attorney's wife, "How rich they must be!" to which the attorney replied: "Madam, that you forget, madam, that we own a farm." It is also related of the distinguished lawyer that, while entertaining some friends at his home one evening he produced several bottles of champagne and a quantity of milk. Turning to his guests he said, without a semblance of humor: "Gentlemen, here is some milk from my farm and here is some wine. You can take your choice; they both cost the same."

NOT QUITE SO CRAZY.

Yet Dr. Keane's Wife Persists That He Is Insane.

Judge J. E. Murphy, sitting in the place of Judge Levy, resumed yesterday the hearing of the application of Mrs. Theodosia M. Keane to have her husband, Dr. George B. Keane, declared an incompetent and a guardian appointed for him.

The circumstances of the case are well remembered. Dr. Keane for years showed every symptom of kind insanity on his wife, who often exhibited symptoms of insanity. He even went so far as to build a private home for her, when she would not remain at a public asylum, and when in August last Mrs. Keane had her restoration to capacity from the Superior Court, she five days afterward filed the present petition against her kind old husband.

Dr. Keane sits in court enduring it all, uttering no remarking any expression of reproach. The evidence against him so far has rested on the fact that Dr. Keane has been seen in the company of one Harvey, who is said to be a friend of his mind. Also, he has acted "queer."

Yesterday Mrs. Keane, carefully concealing the hand which she maimed some years ago by thrusting it into the fire, "took the witness-stand, and told her that she knew her husband was insane, because he had become slovenly in his dress. Also, whereas at one time he used to make stacks of $20 gold pieces lying about the floor in all directions, of late he had become very penurious. "He only gave me $25 last year," said Mrs. Keane, "and nothing at all this."

NOT A PROPER RIG.

Five-Masted Schooners Condemned.

The Melpomene's Fate Can Be Outdone by the Cruiser New York.

Is the five-masted schooner a failure? This is the question that is being to some extent agitated in marine circles. The owners of the five-masted schooner Louis seem to be of the opinion that vessels of her rig are not serviceable for all classes of trade, and intend converting their schooner into a barkentine forthwith.

To shippers this means an important step. The big schooner Governor Ames is schooner rigged on five masts, and is pronounced by nautical experts an exceedingly clumsy sailer when steered before the wind.

In explanation of the changes to be made in the rigging of the Louis, and possibly that of other vessels of her type, her captain and others interested state that the five-masted schooner is practically useless as far as sailing qualities are concerned. The five-masted's sails cannot be set to draw well, and under the most favorable circumstances she cannot sail over four knots in a breeze. Several of the captains claim that the days of the five-masted schooner are numbered.

Commander Moore of the United States steamer, has made formal protest to Chief Wharfinger Bonhar because the Stockton steamer, Captain Weber, has upon several occasions left off steam in the presence of the Patterson's skipper and his crew.

Yesterday Captain Moore was making a landing in his gig at Clay-street wharf and the Weber's engineer saw fit to get rid of a little surplus evaporation. Result, Commander Moore's indignation, "settlement" and obliged to secure the services of a clothes-cleaner to make him presentable. Hence the protest to the State official named.

England's crack nineteen-knot deck-protected cruiser Melpomene has accomplished the feat of steaming from Callao, Peru, to Victoria, a distance of over 5000 miles, in twenty-two days without stopping. The Melpomene's speed of 19 knots was telegraphed from the north.

The average speed of the Melpomene was about ten knots an hour throughout the entire trip.

Comparing the length of the voyage and the number of days consumed in making it without re-coaling, this is a remarkable record for a war vessel. The ship's capacity for coal is generally been 1000 tons, and she is supplied with 1400 tons to enable her to steam 3000 miles at fourteen knots without re-coaling. Naval experts say that the Melpomene has accomplished one of the most remarkable voyages on record. A very low pressure of steam must have been kept up to have permitted the Melpomene to complete her trip without refueling her bunkers.

The dispatch received by the State claims that the Equatorial naval officers claim that the Melpomene's performance has seldom been paralleled and never surpassed in naval history. The new United States steamer, the Melpomene, has just completed in about eighteen days and still have coal enough left to steam back to Callao at the same rate of speed and with no damage to her machinery.

At 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon the steamers Daisy Kimball and Point Arena started north on a race to Mendocino. The Kimball was slightly ahead when the heads were reached.

The case of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company versus the owners of the steamer Proteus was come up for a hearing next week. The Protection lands and receives cargoes from lighters at Monterey. Her owners are enjoined from landing at the wharf wharf until the present trouble is settled.

The steamship Australia arrived yesterday morning from Honolulu with forty cabin and twenty-two steerage passengers. The steamer Del Norte ran into Powell-street wharf yesterday morning, but did not serious damage other than causing away the wharf electric-light pole.

The British iron bark Formosa is now on the coast of California. She is owned by B. C. and has not been sighted or spoken since she passed Holyhead on March 19. The underwriters and others interested are beginning to feel interested in her whereabouts.

Another American vessel, the second one so far this month, cleared at the Custom-house yesterday with a cargo of general merchandise for New York. The vessel is the William H. Brown, of 1200 tons register. The principal shipments were 100,000 gallons of wine, 700 barrels of oil, 4500 pounds of mustard seed, 10 rolls of leather, 153 sacks of scrap leather, 715 sacks of pomace, 600 barrels of sugar, 3274 bags of boneblack, 1860 sacks of bran, 31,700 centials of barley, and 100 centials of canned salmon.

An Insurance Company's Extension.

MAINE TO CALIFORNIA.

The Fidelity Mutual Aid Association of This State Absorbs an Eastern Organization.

The talk of the street yesterday was the arrangement recently made by the Fidelity Mutual Aid Association to reinsure the business of the Life and Emergency Company of Milwaukee. J. L. M. Shetterly, secretary of the Fidelity Mutual, went East about a month ago, and the reinsurance is one of the results of his trip. President C. W. Nevin spoke of the details of the absorption of the Wisconsin company to a CALL reporter last evening:

"The Fidelity Mutual has been doing a prosperous business in our State since 1888," said Mr. Nevin. "You know it is organized for the payment of benefits to its members when disabled by accident or illness, with a stipulated sum in the event of the accidental or natural death of a member. During the last five years the company has relieved much suffering among its members, caring for the living and burying the dead."

"We are pardonably proud of our record. In the entire period of our existence the company has been used only four times, and in each case but one the court has upheld the action of the Fidelity. The association bases its claims for patronage upon the record it has made by its prompt, liberal and satisfactory adjudication of all honestly proven claims made against it. No such claim has ever been carried over from one day's business to another."

"Having attained such a large measure of success in California, as well as through the Eastern States, the Fidelity has concluded to try the business over the same kind of management, so far as the business and members of the Life and Emergency Company are concerned. We shall in the future, as heretofore, be an association of its members, for the same kind of members. It is a wage-earner's company, which, as I said before, has never refused to pay a proven claim. Offering the same identity at the smallest minimum cost, it is an association of its members, by its members, for its members. For each working day it has paid an average of 35¢ claims since 1888, and it is pre-eminently the most successful company of its kind in the United States."

"The association is working under the supervision of the Insurance Commissioner of California, and is subject not only to his examination, but also to that of fourteen other insurance departments in different States. It is approved by the insurance departments of Missouri, Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, Colorado, Nevada, Arizona, Pennsylvania, North Dakota, South Dakota, California, Washington, Wisconsin and Utah."

"The success of our association is its best recommendation. It has over 35,000 members, and is doing business over the breadth of the continent from Maine to California. The cost of a certificate is trifling—only 5 cents a day. We believe it to be the fairest and best plan with the greatest indemnity at the smallest cost, and backed by the greatest assets and the largest membership of any similar organization now before the public."

Three Young Vagrants.

William Franklin, George Luttinger and John Mahoney, each 15 years of age, were arrested on Thirtieth street about 2 o'clock yesterday morning by Police Officer M. Shanahan on a charge of vagrancy. Shanahan says that they are part of a gang of about a dozen boys who rob negroes and commit other petty thefts in that portion of the city. Thursday night they set fire to a carload of hay at Ocean View, not only destroying the hay, but badly damaging the car.
