

A CONSUL FIRED.

Colonel Hoge's Trip to Amoy Interrupted.

A VIRGINIAN HUMILIATED.

Somebody Will Get Killed on His Return.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND REVILED.

The Gallant Diplomat Admits a Drink at El Paso, and Thumps a Southern Pacific Hireling.

Colonel J. Hampton Hoge, Virginia planter, recently appointed Consul to Amoy, China, to succeed Dr. Edward Bedlee of Philadelphia, is registered at the Baldwin. Colonel Hoge was to have sailed for China this afternoon on the steamship Gaelic; in fact, his baggage is all packed, his transportation has been secured and one of the best staterooms in the ship awaits his advent.

But the consul will not sail, as anticipated. Last night THE CALL received a telegram from Washington, stating that the newly appointed Consul had been removed by the President on account of charges preferred against him, the nature of which the dispatch failed to state. It was added that the President had directed that Colonel Hoge be officially notified of his decausulation by telegraph.

In last Sunday's CALL was published an interview with the new diplomat in which appeared the following:

Referring to the Virginia State election, which is to take place on November 7 next, Colonel Hoge remarked that the leaders of the Virginia Democracy feared disaster to their party at the polls. The Republicans have no ticket in the field, having joined forces with the Populists, who are likely to sweep the State. He attributes the pending Democratic discomfiture to the hard times in Virginia. There is also great dissatisfaction over the proposed repeal of the Sherman law; the friends of silver in Virginia outnumbering the monometallicists five to one. The Farmers' Alliance in Virginia has also made tremendous headway in politics. The cry of the moment is for a farmer for Governor, and this is likely to be met by the election of Mr. Coche of Culpepper, the nominee of the Populists, who is a representative farmer.

The Democratic candidates are Charles T. O'Farrell, a lawyer. The people will elect a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislature. The latter will have the election of a United States Senator, Judges of the Circuit Court, of the Court of Appeals and all other State officers.

From the tenor of this and from remarks which the consul let drop last night when a CALL reporter met him it would seem that the gentleman is not now and has not been entirely in harmony with the present administration.

When found last evening Colonel Hoge was seated in a back room of an Ellis-street saloon nursing a small kitten and a good-sized "jag." He had not yet received his "official notification" of dismissal; in fact, he knew nothing of that impending disaster.

"I have some bad news for you, consul," said the reporter, after introducing himself and meeting with as courteous a reception as the condition of the diplomat would admit.

"Well, let me have it," said he.

"The President has removed you from your position as Consul to Amoy."

"The consul appeared lost in thought for a few minutes, and then slowly ejaculated:

"The blankety-blank he has! What for?"

"After giving him all the information in his possession, the reporter awaited further effects. It seemed to require some little time for the decausulated Consul to fully comprehend the extent of the humiliation which had fallen upon him, but he suddenly straightened himself up and remarked:

"Somebody will get killed when I get back."

"I'm glad of it, though I'm glad of it," he repeated, "but I only wish this thing had happened three weeks sooner. I'd have gone into the campaign in Virginia and carried the State against Cleveland's candidate by 50,000 majority. You can see, the matter stands this way: My second cousin, Polk Tyler, was the strongest opponent of O'Farrell in the fight for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Virginia, but O'Farrell had the backing of the administration, and so got the place on the ticket. He is a—"

Here the ex-diplomat went into personalities regarding the Democratic nominee, in which many expressive adjectives were employed, none of which would look well in print.

"What action will you now take in the matter, consul?" asked the reporter.

"I'll go back to Washington at once," said he, "and there I'll be blank to pay when I get there."

"Turning to politics the Virginian said: "I never was a Cleveland man. In fact, during the last campaign I was opposed to him and openly said so. This thing of condemning a man without giving him a hearing is not in keeping with the principles of the Democracy—but just wait till I get back there!" and the consul thumped the table in front of him with a vigor which threatened the destruction of the bottles and glasses and boded no good for his invisible fesses.

"I haven't been drinking to amount to anything only within the past week or so. In fact, I took to drink in El Paso while coming through there, from the effects of which I didn't recover for several hours. Somebody 'doped' me and then went through my clothes. But I guess I'm all right," he complacently concluded as the reporter left him.

From rumors about the hotel where the ex-Consul has been stopping it appears he has been having a high old time since his advent in this city. It is said that last Saturday night, while coming up on the train from Los Angeles, he got into a difficulty with the conductor of the train and struck the latter several times. Through the intervention of friends the matter was suppressed and kept out of the papers, and when the reporter found him after a search last night, friends of the gentleman were also out on the same quest with a view of getting him to the hotel and restoring him to a condition of mind and body approximating that which all dignitaries of state are supposed to possess.

While the good ship Gaelic sailed outward bound to-day, Colonel Hoge will be rapidly traveling in an opposite direction. He will not be the only Democratic official, however, who has journeyed to Washington troubled by the momentous question, "Where am I?"

A Noted Sneakthief. Charles Perkins, alias Williams, is a noted sneakthief, and about a year ago he got six months for stealing a watchcoat from Dr. Pescia's office. On October 1 the office of William Dresbach, room 33, Merchants' Exchange, was entered during his absence for a few moments, and a ship's chronometer valued at $35 was stolen. On October 15 the office of E. D. Pelto, 405 Montgomery street, was entered, and the office clock stolen. Detectives Bee and Harper traced both thefts to Perkins, and arrested him. He was booked at the City Prison on two charges of petty larceny.

THE TANSILL SALE.

A Large Number of Park Lots to Be Sold by Auction To-day. Baldwin & Hammond's auction sale of the Tansill lots just north of the park will be held to-day at the salesroom of the auctioneers, 10 Montgomery street. The announcement is made that the lots will be sold absolutely without reserve, and this fact, with the additional attraction of unusually liberal terms, will no doubt draw a large number of bidders. The auctioneers state that there will be no postponement of the sale on account of rainy weather, as Mr. Tansill expects to return East on the 15th inst. The Midwinter Fair people expect to realize a snug little sum from the sale of the lot given to the fair by Mr. Tansill, and Colonel Andrews, who was so successful in auctioneering the shovelful of sand, has been invited by Baldwin & Hammond to sell this lot. The sale will take place at 12 o'clock sharp.

A HUNDRED FEET HIGH.

Weather Signals Where Shipping Can See Them.

The Harbor Commissioners point with pride to a tapering stick of Oregon pine, 107 feet long, without knot, spot or woodpecker hole, which was hauled yesterday to the foot of Clay street. It will serve as a flagstaff at the Chief Wharfing's office for the display of weather signals and the national emblem.

The weather flags, furnished by the Government bureau, will be six feet square and at the height of over 100 feet will be visible from any part of the harbor and from nearly every part of the city.

WARD NOT INSANE

Medical Experts Testify and Disagree.

Judge Daingerfield and a Jury Devote a Whole Day to the Jockey's Examination.

Jockey Richard Ward, who is accused of the murder of John Kelly at the Bay District track in July last, came up yesterday before Judge Daingerfield and a jury for examination into his mental condition. District Attorney Barnes appeared on behalf of the people, while Attorney J. F. Smith represented the defendant.

Ward sat in court as he has always done, in a seemingly dazed condition, with his head hanging down between his eyes. He never once looked up during the whole proceeding, but seemed to occasionally find relief in playing with his hat and scratching his head. Before the case was called Dr. C. F. Buckley examined Ward privately in the Judge's chambers.

Attorney James H. Long was the first witness called. He said that he was originally retained for the defense, and in that capacity had several interviews with Ward in the Bay District. He could never at any time obtain a direct answer from Ward to any questions put to him. Ward would simply hang his head and ask why he was brought there, believe him to be crazy, and always "have" the witness. "I base this opinion upon interviews with the defendant and his father."

Thomas Ward, father of the defendant, said that his son was 17 years old. He was always a good boy up to the time of his mother's death, since which his father could not get along with him at all.

Dr. C. F. Buckley, who testified as an expert in cases of insanity, said he had made a careful examination of the defendant, the result of which was that the witness believed Ward insane.

Albert Ivy said he had known Ward for many years at the race track. He was considered "autty" by every one there. He rode as a jockey, but was ruled off the track for pulling a horse he was riding.

W. J. O'Connor, an Oakland expression, said that he had known Ward for some time. Ward was sulky but when not sulky he was always himself. Once he boasted of having killed a certain Bob Goff. "I've killed him," he said, "for I had his head cut off." The witness made inquiries and discovered that Bob Goff was still very much alive.

Dr. J. C. Spencer then testified as an expert. He said that from the circumstances he believed the witness was not insane. He found Ward's hands quite warm, after which the defendant was presented to the jury for examination.

"Should you say that Ward was shamming?" "I should; that is, judging by the look in his eyes."

Dr. J. D. Robertson was the next witness. He said that in his opinion the defendant was "morally insane." There was a difference between moral and intellectual insanity. The prisons were for the morally and the lunatic asylums for the intellectually insane. In the witness's opinion the defendant was of very low intellectual ability—a man of the class from which criminals are made.

James McCaffrey said he thought that Ward had been crazy all his life, while Policeman Maboney thought he was sane. He read the testimony, and Judge Daingerfield read a brief charge to the jury. After a moderate deliberation the jury returned a verdict to the effect that Ward was at the present time perfectly sane.

The trial of Ward for murder will be proceeded with to-day. Attorney Smith asked to be allowed to withdraw from the case, but the Judge told him he must remain in the case unless he could find a substitute by this morning.

Mohawk Club.

At a meeting of the Mohawk Club held last night, B. Killela presiding, the members were entertained by speakers who from a Democratic standpoint explained the political situation, and by members of Dr. Stekels' mandolin class. The club will give a full dress ball at Odd Fellows' Hall some time in December. The club decided to distribute in the North End 3000 copies of a synopsis of the "Purity of Election Law."

The Old People's Home.

Mrs. Smith, the matron of the Crocker Old People's Home, has been discharged. It is expected that her successor will be announced next Wednesday. J. P. Burr, the aged inmate who paid $2500 on entering the institution, and whose indignation was aroused when he learned that he had been made a subject of State aid, has left the home.

SAY, GIRLS, if you want to feel that best fellow, just ask him to go to the office of Wm. Yucatan Gump, when he asks you to be accessory for a moment between acts, see?

Anti-Chinese Meeting.

Speeches were made last night by Dr. O'Donnell, Denis Kearny, John Lennard and J. W. Fox at a meeting of the Anti-Chinese Law and Order League at the corner of Montgomery avenue and Broadway.

FROM THE TIBER.

Italian Exhibitors Have Submitted Plans.

MORE MISSIONARIES WANTED

Residents of Washington and Oregon Wish Direct Information Regarding the Exposition.

Charles L. Pierce, an Eastern manufacturer's agent of this city, has just returned from a business trip through the Northwest. He says that unwittingly his principal occupation was that of advance agent for the Midwinter Fair. He was overwhelmed on all sides with questions regarding the character, scope and details of the exposition.

Mr. Pierce believes that the executive committee would be well repaid by sending a band of Midwinter Fair missionaries through Washington and Oregon to explain and advocate the exposition. He says that with such a stimulus these States would undoubtedly make a large exhibit and would send many more citizens to visit the fair than if no special means were taken to induce their assistance. Both States could get up good exhibits of minerals, coal, lumber and iron, and their active participation in the exposition would cement the bond between them and California.

Rapid progress is being made with the foundations of the electric-tower and the erection of the iron structure will be commenced by the 15th inst. Grading for the foundation of the great wheel model, and after the Ferris wheel is going on and the Hawaiian concessionaires are leveling their plat. Ground will be broken to-day for the Servian, Montenegrin and Roumanian buildings.

It is probable that there will be a very fine exhibit in the British department of the Midwinter Exposition. His Excellency, commissioner-general for the British exhibitors, has telegraphed from Chicago to the auxiliary committee in this city that the British exhibit will cover at least 100,000 square feet and that 100 additional exhibits could be secured if space were available.

The Midwinter Fair committee from Santa Clara County, comprising J. H. Hinkley, N. Koch, A. J. H. Goodrich and C. M. Wooster, discussed the plans for its county building with the executive committee yesterday.

Santa Clara proposes to erect a structure costing $10,000 and to locate it on a site not far from the Horticultural building. The executive committee promised the space for the building, but intimated that Santa Clara would be expected to unite in the collective county exhibits of horticultural and agricultural products. This was agreed to by the Santa Clara contingent.

In reference to this and other proposed buildings the executive committee has announced that all structures must be complete and their contents properly installed by January 1, since after that date no carting will be permitted inside the exposition grounds.

Plans for the Italian building were on exhibition yesterday in the office of Theodore Bagelap, president of the Italian auxiliary committee. It is a graceful, three-story structure in the modern style of architecture, and is planned by Corinthian columns. On the second story an outside gallery, with a promenade, encloses the roof. From the center of the building rises a red-coated dome, contrasting harmoniously with the style and color of the structure.

Tulare County is preparing an interesting exhibit. As a result of a suggestion made by Thomas H. Thompson, formerly secretary of the California World's Fair commission. The plan is to take a space 40 feet square, making 100 square feet in all, and to erect a structure representing a 100-acre farm. Each square foot will represent an acre, and the miniature farm will be divided into vineyards, alfalfa fields, orchards and the like. Through the center will run an irrigation canal, with supplementary feeders, to illustrate the irrigation system of Tulare County. The farm will be complete in detail, with a house, barn and implements.

The citizens of Santa Rosa are arranging for a mass-meeting in the interests of the Midwinter Fair, to be held in that city on Monday evening. W. H. L. Barnes and H. B. Mitchell will address the gathering on the plans and prospects of the exposition.

The executive committee has officially recognized the citizens who are arranging the congress auxiliary to the Midwinter Fair and who are preparing a programme in charge have formed themselves into an executive board, with the following officers: President, Mrs. George T. Gaden; first vice-president, Mrs. Sarah B. Cooper; second vice-president, Mrs. John Vance Cheney; third vice-president, Mrs. A. G. Soule; recording secretary, Mrs. Ada Van Pelt; treasurer, Mrs. L. A. Sorber; executive board, Mrs. Henry Gibbons, Mrs. William H. Sears, Mrs. William Crocker, Mrs. John R. Jambor, Mrs. Joseph B. Crockett, Mrs. Clinton Day and Mrs. A. A. Sarcent.

In addition to the days for special observance during the progress of the exposition various organizations previously announced, the Grand Army of the Republic has secured April 29, the Afro-Americans May 2 and the California Dental Association May 4.

Governor Russell of Massachusetts has written to Governor Markham in reference to the Midwinter Fair, regretting that the Massachusetts Legislature will not convene until January, no official appropriation for an exhibit can be made. He promises, however, to give the fullest publicity possible to the exposition, and promises to enlist the interest of the citizens of his State in the enterprise.

The cash receipts yesterday amounted to $1528.63, making the total received to date $243,787.91.

Dangerous Rail.

The end of a rail, which protrudes above the surface of Market street where the abandoned streetcar track on Spear street curves eastward, is a menace to horses and vehicles. Yesterday Assistant Chief Whelan, Cook and W. B. Winn, editor of the Marin County Journal, were driving along Market street when a wheel of their buggy was caught by the rail and every spoke torn out. Both occupants were pitched out, but not seriously injured.

AMUSEMENTS.

Midweek Notes of Business at the Theaters.

Sardou's version of "Cleopatra and Antony" as presented by Miss Fanny Davenport continues to attract the lovers of strong acting and sumptuous stage setting to the Baldwin.

Rowie's "Friends" will play the week out at the New California. To succeed it "A Country Sport" is underlined, of which Pete Dailey, Ada Lewis and May Irwin are the bright particular stars.

"The Three Guardsmen" draws at the Stockwell. There is a good deal of life yet in the old melodrama.

"Long Branch" has been a better provider for the Alcazar than any piece produced since McKee Rankin's opening of the theater.

The Tivoli will finish the "Trip to Africa" this week.

"Lost in London" and "A Night of Terror," the Grove-street double bill, has doubled the audience.

M. Coquelin and Mme. Jane Hading, with their associate players, will open the San Francisco season of French drama with Augier's four-act comedy at the Grand Opera-house on Saturday evening next, November 4, cast as follows:

Don Sabat.....M. Coquelin
Horse.....St. Vovny
Monte-Frède.....M. Chameroy
Barrio.....M. Derry
On Valet.....M. Chameroy
Celle.....Mme. Hading

The sale of seats for this season has been quite liberal, and the managers are justified in concluding that the general business will be very satisfactory.

"La Dame aux Camélias," known to the

THE ITALIAN BUILDING.

English stage as "Camille," will be presented on Sunday evening, the 5th.

Joseph Murphy, our favorite Irish comedist, is busy making arrangements for his coming engagement at the Baldwin.

"The Davenport" finishes with "Cleopatra." During the time for which he engaged the most successful plays of his repertoire—"Shannon Rhue," "The Donkey" and "Kerry Gow"—will be presented.

Mme. Emilia Tjottli has returned from her visit to the Chicago World's Fair and New York. Her reputation as an accomplished vocalist has preceded her everywhere. During her stay in New York and Chicago the lady secured a number of very good new works by Rubinstein, Massenet, Loeuvel, Saint-Saens, Mascagni and Puccini which she intends to introduce to the San Francisco public some time during the concert season this winter.

The Boasy children have reached Chicago, and before the Columbian Exposition closed played in the auditorium of the California building to a large audience. The local papers say they "played classic numbers with the ease of skilled musicians." The young violinists and their friends had a reception in the commissioners' rooms.

It is probable that Alfred Wilkie will introduce the Misses Albu, who arrived from Australia by the last steamer, to the public at his next concert. Negotiations are pending to that end.

Miss Augusta S. Cottlow, a young pianiste of fame, will be one of the attractions at the Eden's symphony concert to-morrow afternoon.

The Eden Musee, formerly the Bijou Theater, on Market street, will open to the public Saturday next at 2 p. m. A private exhibition will be afforded the press to-morrow evening.

DICKINSON'S GIFT.

The Brigadier Presents Medals to Soldiers.

One to the Officers and the Other to the Privates of the Third Regiment, N. G. C.

The following communication from Brigadier-General Dickinson to Thomas F. Barry, colonel of the Third Infantry, has been received:

To Thomas F. Barry, Commanding Third Regiment Infantry, San Francisco, Cal.—Sirs: As a partial return for the compliment in naming your late camp after me, I beg leave to say that I desire to present two medals, one to be contested for by the officers of your command, and the other to be given to the non-commissioned officer or private making the highest score in the drill at each State shoot. The terms and conditions upon which they are to be held I should like to consult with yourself and the rifle inspector at each State shoot.

Please consider this offer as holding good for the coming shoot. Very respectfully, your obedient servant, JOHN H. DICKINSON, Brigadier-General, Commanding Second Brigade, N. G. C.

The handsome offer of the brigade commander was accepted and gratefully acknowledged on behalf of the regiment, and after consultation with the brigade commander it was determined that the two medals should be known as the Dickinson medals and shall remain the property of the regiment to be shot for at each State shoot and be worn by the officer or private making the highest score at each State shoot and be worn by the officer or private making the highest score at each State shoot.

The presentation of these medals has been received by the whole command as a signal mark of favor and esteem on the part of the brigade commander, and should be a stimulus to such excellence with the rifle and pistol that will properly honor General Dickinson.

During the last State shoot the following are the names of the winners of the two medals offered by General Dickinson: Dickinson's officer's medal, pistol range—Captain and Adjutant Delaney 46; non-commissioned and private rifle range—Drum Major W. T. Oestrich 46.

ALL SAINTS' DAY.

Its Celebration in the City Churches.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES.

"Roll of the Dead" at St. Luke's. High Mass at St. Mary's and St. Ignatius.

The festival of All Saints was generally observed yesterday in the Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal churches of this city. This feast, which is a feast of obligation in the Roman church and belongs to the dupliques of the first class, was introduced into the church in order that no saint might be overlooked in the prayers of the devout. Each day in the year is dedicated to some special saint, but as the number of days in a year is far less than the number of saints, it was found impossible to have a separate day for each, consequently one day was set apart during which all the saints are prayed to and venerated.

Gregory IV first instituted the festival in the year 835 and appointed its celebration on the first day of November. About thirty-five years later the observance extended into England, and All Saints' day still remains one of the chief festivals of the English church.

The celebration of the day was doubtless made because of the fact that the evening preceding November 1 was one of the four great heathen festivals of the North, and the church aimed to supplant heathen by Christian observances.

In the Episcopal church the spirit of the observance is expressed in the collect for the day, which speaks of the "knitting together of all hearts" in a union of love. The service has reference to the saint of God on earth or in heaven, and it is customary to have a special sermon preached in memory of all connected with the church who have been removed by death during the preceding year.

There was but one service in the Episcopal church yesterday, but the Catholic churches celebrated mass hourly from 5 to 10:30 in the morning and had vespers and benediction in the evening.

Rev. Father Kirby was celebrant at the solemn high mass in St. Mary's Cathedral, Rev. Father York, deacon; Rev. Father Moran, sub-deacon, and Rev. Father Montgomery, master of ceremonies. The service was very impressive, but the sermon was omitted.

At St. Ignatius Church a solemn high mass was celebrated at 10:30, Father Jacques being celebrant, Father Contelli deacon, Father Hickey as sub-deacon and Father Festa delivering the sermon. The altar and candelabra were beautifully decorated, and the music, by Father Allen's choir of male voices, was especially fine.

The Dominican Church had services as on Sundays, hourly masses during the morning and vespers at night.

In St. Luke's Church the rector, Rev. W. H. Moreland, conducted the services, a large congregation being present. The altar was simply but tastefully decorated. Previous to the sermon "the roll of the dead" was read, in accordance with the ancient custom, and Mr. Moreland then preached from Rev. Alvin's epistle to the dead who die in the Lord. The sacrament of the holy communion was administered at the close of the service.

The altar of Grace church was beautifully decorated with garlands and candelabra. Rev. Mr. Foute, the rector, is absent in the East. Rev. C. J. Mason, his assistant, officiated in his stead. The service, which was well attended, consisted of the regular morning prayer, without the Litany, and concluded with the holy communion.

AT MISSION SAN JOSE.

Interesting Exercises at the Historic Old Church.

MISSION SAN JOSE, Nov. 1.—A most interesting service was held to-day—All Saints' day—in the historic old Mission San Jose. Thirty-three young girls, twenty-one boys and two Indians were confirmed. Archbishop Riordan was present, and his remarks to the young people were most impressive and appropriate. He spoke of the fellowship of mankind with those who have gone before us; how we on earth are able to appeal to these in heaven to help us, and we in turn able to help those who are waiting for their deliverance.

"All are called," he said, "but all must be sanctified by works, by faith and by prayer. All those who have gone and are sanctified were once here as children, were rich or poor, old or young, and in every condition of life; all mingled with their neighbors and did their duty as we must."

He beautifully illustrated the duties of the children of God and spoke of the beauties as the most blessed promises. He said: "Do not think because you are in the world that you shall not be sanctified. Sanctity lies in all conditions of life and depends upon the spirit of God in us. The flower of sanctity grows in every field and in every heart."

Rev. Father Ferreira, assistant priest at the Mission, presided at the altar. Rev. Father Caraher, the priest of the Mission, was master of ceremonies. Rev. Father Cummings of San Francisco and Rev. Father de Serda of Temesca were also present. A retreat was by the Jesuit Father de Serda.

Archbishop Riordan's remarks were immediately followed, and the confirmation followed. Among those confirmed were an Indian boy and an approved neophyte Indian, Jose Catarino, over 80 years of age. He is nearly the last of his race. There is but a handful of them left, living in huts on the banks of the Alameda. They receive no care or attention except from the priests, who care for them, and when they are old, feed them, clothe them and bury them.

Over 300 people were present from all the parishes of the city. The music was particularly good, being under the leadership of Professor Read, the regular organist of the church.

A Fatal Mistake.

Etiza Lachelle, a widow, 70 years of age, who lived with Charles G. H. on San Francisco street, died about noon yesterday and her body was removed to the Morgue. She had, it is supposed accidentally, swallowed a dose of oxalic acid in mistake for essence salts. She had a package of each in her bureau and had taken a spoonful of the latter for medicinal purposes. The fatal mistake was made, but all efforts to save her life were unavailing.

The Fire Record.

A still alarm at 2:30 A. M. yesterday took engine 5 to the three-story brick building 813 Jackson street owned by J. L. Martel and occupied by Chinese. The loss was about $20, caused through carelessness while smoking.
