

GREAT ODD FELLOWS' FUNERAL

HONOR'S TRIBUTE.

Remains of W. B. Lyon Laid to Rest.

HE WAS GRAND SECRETARY.

The Entire Order Mustered to Revere His Memory.

ORATORY, MUSIC AND A MARCH.

All the City Lodges Represented in the Distinguished Assemblage of Flourishers.

"Toll the bell slowly, drape the banners of lodges and encampments in mourning, weave the crepe around the three links upon the fraternal altars of California.

"Let the gavel to-day fall softly and the footstep be light, for far away, in the land of the hereafter, the portals have opened wide and the fathers and pioneers of American Odd Fellowship have welcomed to their number another of those whose highest joy on earth has been to labor for the onward march of thrice-blessed fraternity."

Such was the opening of the eulogy pronounced yesterday afternoon over the remains of the late grand secretary of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Walter B. Lyon, who died at his residence in Alameda last Saturday evening.

which could lend impressiveness and proof of profound love and esteem for the genial and capable member who had filled this responsible position in the order for nearly twenty years.

At 10 A. M. the remains arrived from Alameda, escorted by members of Canton Alameda No. 11, Patriarchs Militant, and were placed in the center of the large assembly hall in Odd Fellows' building, where they lay in state surrounded by a guard of honor, having drawn swords.

All the morning there was a constant succession of visitors who desired to look their last upon the face they knew so well. At 1:30 P. M. the funeral services commenced. From all sides came members of the various city lodges in regalia, and in many cases bearing emblems. The Rebekah lodges were also well represented by ladies, who likewise wore regalia.

The chief mourners, the widow, Mrs. M. Lyon, and her sons, George Lyon and Walter T. Lyon, with other relatives and closer friends, occupied seats close to the casket.

Immediately encircling the casket were the pall-bearers, consisting of: C. W. Savage, P. G. S. B. Smith, P. G. P.; J. P. Finkham, P. G.; J. H. Applegate, P. G.; P. J. W. Meredith, P. G. P.; J. W. Adams, P. G.; Elwood Bruner, P. G. M.; C. C. Terrill, P. G.; W. F. Norcross, P. G.; John Thompson, P. G.; F. A. Weck, P. G.; James Campbell, P. G.

THE CORTEGE ON THE WAY TO THE FERRY.

although many were unable to secure seats. On the stage were aligned in front of the chairs of the grand officers in full regalia as follows: J. F. Thompson, grand master; J. H. Simpson, deputy grand master; P. F. Gosbey, grand warden; George W. Lemon, grand treasurer; L. W. S. Downes, grand patriarch; George F. Roesch, grand high priest; George W. Reid, grand senior warden; Walter S. Potter, grand marshal. Behind them were ranged several rows of past grand officers.

A neat black-bordered leaflet giving the order of exercises had been provided so that the assemblage was able to follow the interesting services without difficulty. They were varied, including addresses, ceremonies and music.

The services commenced with an organ voluntary in sad minor strains by Samuel D. Mayer, and then Grand Master J. F. Thompson, who presided, called upon Dr. Albert H. Dille, who, in the unavoidable absence in the country of the grand chaplain, uttered the invocation.

The beautiful hymn, "Rock of Ages," was then rendered by a male quartet, comprising Samuel D. Mayer (director), J. H. Ogilvie, J. G. Preston and J. F. Finley. The grand master made a brief address upon the sadness of the occasion and the lessons to be derived from it, and then Dr. Dille read from the Holy Scriptures passages upon the brevity and fragility of human life, closing with the aspiration: "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

This reading was rendered peculiarly impressive by the introduction of responses by the grand officers. The responses were: "Help us, O Lord; Hear us, O Lord; Be merciful unto us, O Lord; Redeem us, O Lord"; and, lastly, as the Grand Master pronounced the wish, "May his memory be cherished forever," the response arose, "The will of God be done."

The grand lodge sang while the quartet sang "Shall We Meet Beyond the River?" and Dr. Dille made some touching remarks; not, as he said, pronouncing a eulogy, but "speaking of the life brother in the more serene relations of life."

Walter B. Lyon had died at his post; he had been knighted on the field of battle with the accolade of death. He had loved his fellow-men. His home life was pure and sweet as in the distant home of Bethany, where the Saviour loved to be. The influence of that life would linger like a benediction on that home. All sympathies and prayers for the bereaved. The divine closed with a quotation from Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," with its inimitable tone of hope.

The choir sang "I heard a voice from Heaven calling to me," "Write, Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord." A eulogy by W. H. Barnes, P. G. M., followed. It was eloquent and full of strong feeling, and was listened to with deep attention.

The quartet rendered the anthem "Good Night," and after Dr. Dille had delivered a solemn benediction the assemblage slowly broke up.

At the grand master's gavel fell at the close of the exercises the Park band, stationed at the Seventh-street entrance, struck up a dirge, and the cantons and lodges which had not been able to gain admission to the hall, thronged in to witness the procession, which contained the remains of the dead secretary.

As they came out the band led the way into Market street, followed by General E. H. Block and staff, who headed the procession. W. S. Potter, marshal of the Grand Encampment, was also marshal of the day.

Immediately behind General Block came Canton San Francisco No. 3, and Canton Oakland No. 11, Patriarchs Militant, with their banners draped in mourning. As the patriarchs marched out of the hall the various lodges which occupied all of the lower portion of the hall, followed in the procession as follows: Fidelity Lodge No. 225, Franco-American Lodge No. 207, Golden West Lodge No. 322, Golden Gate Lodge No. 204, Occidental Lodge No. 173, Parker Lodge No. 124, San Francisco Lodge No. 3, Unity Lodge No. 131, Presidio Lodge No. 334, Yerba Buena Lodge No. 15, Magnolia Lodge No. 29, Alta Lodge No. 205, and Abou Ben, Adhem Lodge No. 113.

After these came the organization of Veteran Odd Fellows, followed by Oriental Encampment No. 57 and Good Will Encampment No. 7. Then came the visiting lodges: Garden City Lodge, San Jose, a delegation from Auburn No. 7, and a number of smaller representations from neighboring towns and cities.

The next division was formed by the Grand Lodge of California, led by Grand Master J. F. Thompson, and next to them marched the Grand Encampment of the State, under command of L. W. S. Downes, grand patriarch. These were directly in front of the hearse, with its emblematic and the twelve pall-bearers marched on either side of it. Following it came a long line of carriages, with relatives and friends who had come to pay the last adieu.

At 1:30 P. M. the funeral procession departed, the two cantons and the Auburn delegation, along with the Grand Lodge and Grand Encampment, accompanying the friends across the bay. There the body was finally given into the keeping of the delegation from Auburn, and with the guard of honor published in yesterday's CALL, they took the overland at 5 P. M.

Auburn will be reached in the night, and the special cars containing the funeral party will take place there this morning under the auspices of Auburn Lodge No. 7, which Mr. Lyon was a member when he was first elected grand secretary, now almost twenty years ago.

A FALSE ALARM. Alexander Dunsmuir Confined to a Sick Bed.

Alexander Dunsmuir of the firm of Robert Dunsmuir & Sons, the wealthy owners of the Wellington collieries in British Columbia, has seen fit to order his movements according to his own inclinations, and has, as a consequence, been branded as a mysterious personage.

Mr. Dunsmuir some time ago caught a very severe cold, which he neglected, and it developed into a very serious kidney trouble. His brother James, his sister, Mrs. N. P. Snowden, and his brother-in-law, J. Bryden, arrived in this city yesterday in answer to a telegram sent north telling of the serious development in the state of Alexander's health. His sister and brother-in-law, however, will return to British Columbia to-day, as danger is now considered past. By a happy chance Dr. Eberts, the family physician of the Dunsmuirs, happened to be in the city, and in conjunction with the local doctor knew his address in the Western Addition. James Dunsmuir will remain in San Francisco to attend to the interests of the firm until his brother has thoroughly recovered his health.

Alexander Dunsmuir has, like most men, certain peculiarities, one of which is a desire to live his own life undisturbed by any save his closest friends. For this reason none save his intimates could see him but at his place of business, or at his club. He is a member of both the Pacific-Union and Bohemian clubs, and at the latter has a room, but has not occupied it for some months. Even his bankers have not known his address in the Western Addition, and on account of this apparent secrecy—something utterly foreign in American life—Alexander Dunsmuir has during the past week had to suffer inconveniences and someasperations on his character.

Being confined to a sick bed he has remained, however, in profound ignorance of what was being said.

Mining Man Arrested. Detectives Anthony and Gibson arrested M. Willoughby, a mining man of Plumas County, yesterday afternoon, on a warrant sent down from Oroville. The warrant is sworn to by L. A. Simon, a saloon-keeper of Oroville, and charges Willoughby with obtaining money under false pretenses. The prisoner says that he borrowed $25 from Simon to defray expenses pending a sale of property, but that he did not have the money to return it, and it is because of his inability to return the money that the warrant was issued. He will be taken to Oroville to-day.

ROBBER CHINESE. A Quartet of Footpads Captured.

The Thieves Were Armed With Pistols and Slungshots—Identified by Their Victims.

Many a lone Chinese going to the residence of his patriotic employer late at night has been "held up" and robbed during the last few weeks. The first of the pagans who informed the police of his misfortune was Ah Hing, who says that he is employed at 1457 Eddy street. Ah Hing was speeding toward his domicile very early on the morning of October 8 when three young men accosted him near the corner of Clay and Leavenworth streets, and unrespectfully and firmly called upon him to relinquish all the property of value that he had upon his person.

Ah Hing demurred, whereupon one of the young men aimed a pistol against his brow, and remarked that his conscience would be quietest if he killed a Chinese. Ah Hing gave the young man $5, which was all he had, and went on his way sorrowing. But he remembered the faces of the impious young men.

On the Friday, Saturday and Monday nights following the episode in which Ah Hing figured so unpleasantly several of his countrymen were held up by footpads on Clay street, between Stockton and Hyde. The amounts stolen from them ranged from $3.75 to $30.

Officers Clarke and Williams were detailed to capture the thieves if possible. They were given a description of the three men who absconded Ah Hing's cash and robbed many of his countrymen. The same story was told by every Mongolian who had been robbed. Three men had met him and while one held a pistol to his head the other had emptied his pockets.

Officers Clarke and Williams were standing on the corner of Pacific and Leavenworth streets late Tuesday night, when they observed two men passing along Pacific street with their faces turned from view and their hands held down over their eyes. The men walked toward Kearny street and Officer Clarke followed.

He halted them at the corner of Powell street, where he met Officer B. Harker, and they took the men into custody. The prisoners said that their names were Richard Edwards, teamster, and Harry Connors, peddler. Edwards had a pistol and Connors had a piece of gaspipe which was used by Sidney Bell.

They were charged at the old City Prison with robbery, and were identified by several Chinese as the robbers who had held them up on Clay street. Both men are known to the police as desperate footpads. Their photographs are in the rogues' gallery, and they have "done time" in Folsom.

A few hours after the arrest of Edwards and Connors, Silvio Landini of 729 1/2 Union street and Isidor Baldivia of 3 Grant place were arrested and thrown into the tank. They, too, were identified by Chinese as footpads who had robbed them on Clay street, and three charges of robbery were recorded against each.

The Montgomery Advertiser says: "A Simons Liver Regulator has secured a reputation in every part of the United States on account of its extraordinary merits as a medicine for the liver, stomach and kidneys."
