

Gus Drucker vainly endeavored to make peace, but it was no use, and he had to submit while his hair stood on end.

The Stanford men have been moving to the Baldwin and California. A special train took most of them home to Palo Alto at 11:30 p. m., by which time the town had become so settled down to the business of sleeping.

THE COLLEGE TROPHY.

A Silver Football That Must Be Thrice Won. A year ago the University Club of this city gave the college football teams a handsome silver football as a trophy to be played for on Thanksgiving day, and the conditions were that the trophy, to become the exclusive property of either team, must be won thrice.

Two games have already been played for the beautiful and costly prize, both resulting in a tie. Last year the score was 12 to 12, and this year the numbers were reduced to one-half—the U. C.'s scoring 6 and the Stanford men 3. The Stanford men did likewise in the second half.

The fact that the games of '92 and '93 ended unsatisfactorily to those who had wagered money on the result caused not a few to think that the game was not an understanding and played to the public. This is not so, however, although strange it may seem that two championship games should end without either side scoring a victory.

It did not require the eye or the knowledge of an expert to see that yesterday's game was stubbornly contested, and although fumbles were numerous, owing to the slippery nature of the turf, the game was well contested under the existing conditions.

Possibly the University eleven would have won the day had Hunt and Morse been in the field to represent their respective positions in the field. Then on the other hand the Stanford team, which relied principally on quick and snappy play, might have easily defeated the opponents had the ground been favorable to the runners who had tried to circle the ends.

All things considered the teams were fairly matched, with a slight advantage favoring the Stanford men. Joe Tobin, the crack player of the Olympic team, was a very interested spectator. He took particular delight in watching the boys scoop up the earth with their nasal appendages, and judge from his remarks, he would have given almost any sum to be on the Berkeley team so that he could punt a few long shots into Stanford territory.

Hunt, who is the backbone of the U. C. team, did some magnificent work during the few minutes of play in which he engaged. It was a revelation to the Berkeley boys to watch the big tackle of their team bore holes through the center of the Stanford eleven.

Their joy soon turned to grief, however, when the umpire's whistle sounded in tremulous tones a halt in proceedings, and then it was discovered that Hunt was disabled and would have to leave the field. His position was filled by another player, who, although performing tolerably good work, was by no means the right man in the right place.

Stanford did not lose an opportunity in finding out its opponent's weak spot, and during the second half it bucked the center continually and managed by this system to score a touchdown. The umpire, who is a very experienced man, was from Seattle to fill an important position did not give satisfaction to the friends of the Stanford players, who accused him of having given a wrong decision in favor of the U. C. team.

Those, however, who were impartial in their ideas considered the stranger from the far north an excellent umpire and a man who advanced few new ideas in the way of disciplining the players, who were players who were inclined to convert the football game into a boxing match.

and again. But the enthusiasm of the students and the ebullition of college spirit was the feature of the evening, and it was not possible for any one to long be neutral while in that crowd.

The entertainment netted a handsome sum for the university annual and for the boating association, which two objects are the beneficiaries of the evening.

FOOTBALL TO-MORROW.

The Game Between the Reliance and the Olympics Club. The Reliance football team of Oakland will play against the Olympic football team of San Francisco in a match game for the athletic club championship of the coast at Central Park, Eighth and Market streets, on Saturday at 3 o'clock.

The game should be a very interesting one, outside of the feeling existing between the clubs, as the teams are very evenly matched and have been training hard to be in first-class condition. There have been a great many tickets sold and it is expected that there will be at least 5000 people present.

The Reliance team will be made up as follows: M. Sullivan, center; E. Ransome, right tackle; Bert Oliver, left tackle; Warren Long, right end; J. J. Racine, left end; McPike, quarter; Robinson and Taylor, halfbacks; Feltor, Taylor (captain), fullbacks. The Olympic team will consist of: Sexton, center; Cartwright and Wand, guards; Graham and Haberly, tackle; Sherrard and Milev, ends; Smedberg, quarter; Cassidy and Morse, halfbacks; 21 in. fullback.

The Olympic and Reliance clubs are equally confident of winning and will turn out strong to encourage their respective teams to victory. It has been rumored that the Reliance club has offered to the Olympic Club, has offered to donate $1000 to the club if the team wins. The boys are working hard and will play the game of their lives to secure the money, but in the mean while the boys who are looking out for Mr. Crocker's interest and will save him the $1000 if it is possible to do so.

Every man in the Reliance team is in first-class condition, and is expected to keep so until they beat the Olympics. They are running about three miles on the track in the gymnasium every night after practicing signals for about an hour. The commendable feature about the game is the fact that the players will be bona-fide members of the club they represent. MacArthur, manager of the Olympics, and Ewing, manager of the Reliances, have agreed to not play out of members of the club.

The colors of the Olympic Club are red and white and the Reliance maroon and white. It is to be hoped that every one will wear his colors. The San Francisco. Movements of the Cruiser From California. A cable special from Bluefields, Nicaragua, to the New York Herald, dated Nov. 11, says: United States flagship San Francisco, with Rear-Admiral Benham on board, has been visiting several important ports and places in the Caribbean Sea during the early part of her winter cruise in the West Indies.

On November 2 the San Francisco left Grand Cayman Island bound for Old Providence Island, off which place she came to anchor on the morning of November 4, after a run of 369 miles. On November 6 the San Francisco left Old Providence and stood south for St. Andrews Island, fifty miles away. A northern cable to the San Francisco, while at anchor off St. Andrews, and on November 7, after a stay of but a day, the ship got under way and before midnight was anchored off Great Corn Island, ninety miles to the westward.

On November 10 the San Francisco left Great Corn Island and made the run over to Bluefields in four hours. The ship will stay here a couple of days and then go on to Greytown. The crew of the San Francisco are in excellent health, though the weather has been warm and trying and the work on board ship quite as hard as in the more temperate climate of New York and Gardiners Bay.

Marine Notes. The brig J. D. Spreckels arrived yesterday from Kahului, Hawaii. The brig brought no news from the islands other than was brought by the Alameda. The Galilee, a sail for Tahiti at 8 o'clock this morning, with the Princess Louise King on board. No work was done on the City of New York yesterday on account of the fog and continued swell. The Belgic got away in the forenoon for China and Japan. The Vain sailed minus the six men who deserted from H. J. Moor's Samoan troupe. They could not be found.

Asphyxiated by Gas. Mary McFarland, a servant-girl at the residence of Frederick Tobelmann, 2109 California street, was taken to the Receiving Hospital in an unconscious condition yesterday afternoon. She was found half dead of bed about 9 o'clock yesterday morning and the room full of gas. Dr. J. P. Gibbon was summoned, and after working with the woman for some hours she called up the patrol wagon and sent her to the hospital. It is supposed she had accidentally turned on the gas. Dr. Simpson thinks the probability is she will not recover.

TURKEY GALORE

At Public and Private Institutions. At the Maison de Sante of the French city most of the patients were in that state of comatose which was permitted them to partake of the American bird without menace to impaired health, and only a few did not join at least in spirit in the hearty wishes of the patients for their native land, but have learned to observe in the land of their adoption.

At the German Hospital the day was one of much pleasure to the 133 patients and 40 nurses who were permitted to partake of their native land, but have learned to observe in the land of their adoption. Superintendent Brown found cause for rejoicing in the fact that the institution had passed through the season of depression without disaster, thanks to the German Benevolent Society, under whose care the hospital has ever been.

THE COUNTY JAIL.

A Number of Prisoners Who Were Well Fed. Three men who had served out their sentences in the County Jail on Broadway were liberated yesterday morning, and as they were not going to the penitentiary they cast a "longing, longing look behind. They would gladly have remained in their cells several hours longer, for the savory odor of roast turkey furnished by the good-natured Sheriff for the dinner of his unhappy guests was filling the corridors. They had to go while the turkey and the mince pie and the cranberry sauce remained behind. They had to buy, borrow or steal their dinners while the thieves, murderers and blacklegs who tarried there were whetting their teeth on a cold turkey dinner.

Among those who went away too early for the feast was Gee Duck of Los Angeles, a felon ordered deported for a violation of the Geary act. He was taken from the prison and put on board the China steamer Empire. But the inmates of the county jail who partook of the feast were the following, all charged with murder and six of whom are under sentence of death: McVilly, Collins, Sullivan, Dr. West, Sparr, Hayes, Hays, Morris, Tyrrell, Morris, Tyrrell, Daly and Dr. Woerther. Thanksgiving joys at the old City Prison were few and feeble. At 2 o'clock in the morning the cook prepared coffee and bread for the 123 indigents who had been given lodgings for the night. They received their dole and went forth before 5 o'clock. At noon turkey and cranberry sauce was given the "trusties" and the prisoners, of whom there are few.

INDIGENT DINE.

A Gargantuan Feast at the County Almshouse. The inmates of the Almshouse were not forgotten on the great day of feasting, and yesterday were treated to a dinner which will be remembered by them for some time to come. Eight hundred and forty indigents sat at the table in the large dining-room at the home of the almshouse, and 220 gallons of chicken soup, 800 pounds of roast turkey with cranberry sauce, and a quantity of vegetable and celery, 840 mince pies, all washed down by many cups of steaming coffee. The manner in which they relished the feast is a matter of course. Such a layout is decidedly unusual for the almshouse, and it is evident they intended to do it justice.

After dinner they scattered about the premises in quest of a nook or corner where an undisturbed repose might be had to assist digestion. In the evening they amused themselves in the assembly-room playing games until the hour for retiring. The day was a most enjoyable one to the inmates of the almshouse, and it is hoped another such repast in honor of Christmas day. HOUSE OF CORRECTION. Two Hundred and Twenty Inmates Are Feasted. The prisoners at the House of Correction were given unusual liberty yesterday, and for the most part of the morning and afternoon hours were allowed to promenade in the yard. Soon after 2 o'clock they were formed in line and marched into the large dining-room, which had been decorated just enough to relieve its prison-like aspect. As they entered a perceptible smile appeared over their faces, as they eyed the bounteous spread laid on the tables before them. They looked about for turkey, which, by the by, was conspicuous by its absence. However, there was excellent prime roast beef, vegetable soup, mince pie, mashed potatoes and other delicacies which did the place of the national bird and allowed quite a good feast. After dinner they were again marched into the yard, where 220 feasters lounged about assisting an unusual task of digestion.

WOMEN PRISONERS.

They Are Given a Good Dinner at the Jail. Turkey, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, chicken soup and mince pie were the articles of diet served to the inmates of the women's branch of the County Jail. For the most part the unfortunate women appeared to enjoy the feast to its full extent. The decoration of the dingy, dark dining-room into a mass of flowers and the more pleasing change of diet from the customary prison board had caused the melancholy spirit to flee from saddened hearts of the inmates to give place for general rejoicing. However, there were not a few whose thoughts seemed to wander back to times when Thanksgiving feasts were spent in homes shrouded in happiness.

Two warders of the Barset jail, near Calcutta, have been convicted of a conspiracy which has probably no parallel in the history of criminal prisons. These unfaithful guardians of the cells conceived the idea of establishing a profitable partnership with certain burglars under their charge. To this end they selected one night three convicts, took them to the warders' quarters, examined their jail apparel for everyday clothing, and told them to go forth and break into the houses in the locality. The plunder was to be brought "home" in the morning for equal distribution among the parties concerned, and the convicts were to resume their peaceful daily work. Fortunately for the interests of society, the burglars became discontented with their share of the spoils and were overheard discussing their grievances by another warder, who gave information to the prison authorities. The warders with whom this audaciously ingenious scheme originated have been sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment, but on appeal their case is stated to have been committed to the Criminal Sessions, to be dealt with by a jury.
