

FACED HIS CRIME.

A Supposed Murderer Is Captured.

TAKEN BACK TO COLUSA

And He Is Put Through a Most Trying Ordeal.

DECLARES HE IS INNOCENT.

Arrest of the Man Who Is Believed to Have Killed Both of His Partners.

COLUSA, Dec. 31.—Long before the arrival of the train this afternoon hundreds of people assembled at the depot to get a glimpse of the supposed murderer of the two fishermen whose bodies were found in the Sacramento River, four miles southeast of Colusa, on Friday evening. The supposed murderer was overhauled at Colusa, near Benicia, yesterday afternoon, and, stopping at Suisun over night, Under Sheriff Jamison brought him up to Colusa to-day.

At the depot the prisoner was placed in a carriage and driven to the Morgue to face his two supposed mutilated victims. Reporters were admitted only on condition that they make no report of the proceedings. The Coroner and the District Attorney did the interrogating.

The captive, as soon as he was brought face to face with the victims of foul play, although showing signs of intense nervousness, said: "Are those the two men whose murder I am charged with?" Questions were put to him thick and fast, during all of which he was never able to take a full, deep breath. His knees trembled and he was given a chair, or he could not have possibly continued through the trying ordeal, even though he were innocent of any crime.

He gave his name as Fremont Smith and said that the two men were his partners and the only names he knew that they were Dolph and Charley. He stated that they had a division the other morning, saying what day, and that the two partners were going to Butte, slough to catch minnows.

Smith says he came to Colusa and shipped his goods and returned to camp about 11 o'clock the same morning, but the other two had gone and he went on his way south, knowing nothing of the murder till he was captured.

The Coroner and his assistants were at the scene of the tragedy most of the day gathering up evidences of the deed. Hats, shoes, blankets and many other blood-stained articles were found, and a pair of shoes, supposed to belong to the murderer, were also secured. Considerable excitement prevailed when it was reported that another body had been found in an orchard, but the report has not been verified. Circumstantial evidence is strong against the accused.

THE BURBANK ROBBERS.

Los Olivos People Think They Have Discovered Them.

LOS OLIVOS, Dec. 31.—Parties who are residents of this place and who spent the holidays in a jaunt up the Pacific Coast railway returned last night with the startling information that they had seen and spoken with men whom they felt sure were the three Burbank train-robbers. They were in a saloon when a constable came in and was saluted as "Hello, constable." One of the suspects presently sidled up to some of our citizens and asked if the new comer was really an officer.

The reply being in the affirmative, he then returned to his companions, who stood at the bar and whispered to them. All three of them thereafter kept the officer in sight, studying him, and one of them said, "Boys, this is rather close quarters."

They remained a few minutes, when one of them picked up a paper pretending to read, but really watching the constable. One of the Los Olivos men went to him and asked if he had a late paper and if it said anything about the capture of the Burbank train-robbers. The man started as if struck, and saying "Look for yourself," went to the other two and spoke in a low tone to them. All three seemed much alarmed from the look in their faces, and they soon slid out into the night.

The Los Olivos men tried to have the local officers arrest the three fellows on suspicion, but owing to the lack of warrant the officers refused. The suspects never published description of the Burbank robbers in all the particulars of height, size and color of eyes and hair. The local people say they are sure they can place the whereabouts of the suspects with tolerable accuracy, but being timorous they desire for themselves as little publicity as possible, and they have refused to initiate any action in the case. Their names will be given on application.

SLEPT ON THE TRACK.

Three Boys Are Run Over by a Midnight Train.

DELANO, Dec. 31.—Gilbert Gates, George Koller and Guy Richardson, three youthful tourists who were beating their way south on the railroad, took shelter last night in a warm bed of cinders dumped between the rails of the track. They went to sleep and with fatal results. The midnight passenger train from the south ran over them, cutting the body of Gates in two and crushing Koller's legs just below the knees.

Koller was removed to the County Hospital, where the necessary amputations were made and he will probably recover. Richardson, the youngest of the lads, awoke just in time to escape the fate of his companions. Gates was 19 years old and was a native of Indiana.

AN OREGON SHOOTING.

Two Young Men Make Targets of Each Other.

ASHLAND, Or., Dec. 31.—Bob Wilcox, a boy 18 or 19 years old, was shot and seriously if not fatally wounded by Dan Conwell at Harvey's farm, seven miles north of here, last evening. Conwell was arrested, and will have a preliminary examination on Tuesday. Both parties work at Harvey's ranch, as does also Conwell's wife. The report is that Wilcox either insulted or quarreled with Mrs. Conwell, and Conwell slapped him for it, when the boy pulled a revolver and shot through Conwell's hat. The latter fired four or five shots in return, one of the shots taking effect in Wilcox's abdomen. The doctors say there are ten chances to one against recovery, though Wilcox is reported slightly better to-day.

By the Electric-Car.

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 31.—Samuel Thompson, a fisherman residing in this city, was run over and killed by an electric-car this evening. He was addicted to the use of liquor, and was probably lying on the track when the car struck him. The remains were cut and mangled almost beyond recognition.

BROUGHT FROM CHICAGO.

Hall, the Young Colored Thief, in the City Prison.

Policeman C. C. Wells returned from Chicago yesterday morning with James Hall, the colored boy, who is wanted here on the charge of grand larceny. He was arrested there about two weeks ago.

Hall was employed by Mrs. John O'Kane, 346 First street, to do odd things about the house, and stole about $1500 worth of jewelry and $60 cash. All the jewelry has been recovered with the exception of a pair of diamond earrings and a diamond stud.

Policeman Wells says that Hall is a bright boy, and he will try and get him sent to Whittier to learn a trade. He was anxious to return to this city and stand his trial.

Hall says he was born in Atlanta, Ga. His father died and his mother married again. He could not get along with his stepfather and left home in June last. He came to this city and was picked up by Mrs. O'Kane's son. He was to get $5 a month and his board and clothes. After being there for three months without getting more than a dime at a time he asked for his money, but was put off. He got tired of the place, and as he could not get his money he took Mrs. O'Kane's purse containing $50 and a lot of jewelry, but he did not know its value. He wanted enough to get East with.

A SAILOR'S WRATH.

He Shoots at a Woman Who Resisted His Advances.

Christopher Jurgen, a Norwegian sailor, was arrested last night for assault with a deadly weapon. The complainant was Nita Dixon, a young woman who lives at 215 Sutter street, and is employed as waiter at 517 Broadway.

The woman says that three weeks ago the prisoner met her, and asked permission to accompany her to her residence. She refused to grant him the privilege, and he fired a shot at her, but missed her.

The next day Jurgen sailed on the schooner Mary Peterson, and did not return until yesterday, when he again met the young woman, and, according to her story, threatened her, so she had him arrested.

AMONG JAPANESE.

Bishop Foster Returns From His Tour.

Provincial Authorities Show a Laxity in Restraining Rioters From Threatening Missions.

In the early spring of the year that has just ended Bishop R. S. Foster of Boston, Dr. A. B. Leonard, corresponding secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Foreign Missionary Society, and Mrs. Keane of Philadelphia, corresponding secretary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, were deputed to visit the various stations under the jurisdiction of the society.

On May 15 the little band sailed for Japan, and after visiting the various fields of missionary labor returned by the Pacific to this country.

Bishop Foster and party are, during their stay in the city, the guests of Bishop Goodsell on Buchanan street. Last evening Dr. Leonard, while conversing with a CALL reporter, spoke most encouragingly regarding missionary work in the eastern countries visited.

"We first went to Japan," the reverend gentleman began, "and while there visited all the most important points between Hakadadi and Nagasaki. In July we attended the annual conference held at Tokio, at which there were sixty members, of whom forty were natives. Our society has twenty-five stations, one at Tokio and the other at Nagasaki. One of the purposes of these institutions is to educate the native teachers in such a manner that they may be no necessity of coming to America."

"The Methodist Episcopal Society first gained a foothold in Japan in 1872, when, of course, its membership was zero. Now there are scattered throughout the kingdom 4000 communicants, and the outlook is most encouraging. The anti-foreign feeling that began to make itself felt about five years ago, is generally regarded as having now been entirely overcome, and the country is less disturbed by political conditions than for years past."

"We left Yokohama in August for Korea. Our society was established at Seoul six years ago, and since that time Wang-Sin, Ping, and other cities have also become centers of missionary activity. At the annual meeting of the missions—somewhat similar to a conference—there were twenty-seven present representing a membership of 100,000. The mission work is not officially recognized, or indeed supposed to exist—that is to the Government officially—such work is not only tolerated but encouraged. The King has in many ways been most cooperative, and he himself gave a name to one of our schools and an hospital."

"We have need to be especially thankful for the success already attained in Korea, for a larger membership has not been gained in any branch of Asiatic church than has crowded our efforts."

"China was the last, the largest and from its vastness the most important field of work we visited. The society's main station is at Peking, and at the conference at which we were present thirty-five ministers were present from that district, representing 4000 communicants."

"In the central provinces there have been established several stations along the Yang-tse-Kiang, and among them may be numbered the local officials when they break out. Save at Canton and in the province adjacent, whence the Chinese are obtained that come to America, it is very doubtful if a single individual Chinaman knows that there ever was such a document as the Gentry act. The local and provincial authorities know it, however, and when a riot breaks out and mission property are threatened they usually say: 'Let the Americans taste a little of their own medicine.' This is the only direction from which trouble can come, but from what we saw and heard we have no reason to anticipate anything of this kind."

"We have had in many respects a delightful trip, but we are glad to be once again in America and thankful that we have seen so much that is of encouragement to all interested in mission work."

WATCH-NIGHT MEETING.

Held in the Howard-street M. E. Church.

A watch-night meeting was held last night in the Howard-street M. E. Church, continuing until midnight. Early in the evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock, a service of song was held until 8 o'clock, when the preaching services began.

TIME'S MILESTONE

"The King Is Dead, Long Live the King!"

PASSING OF THE OLD YEAR.

Watch-Night Services for the New Year.

FITTING SACRED CEREMONIES.

A Memorable Year Passes Into History and All Look With Hope for What Will Come.

The old year has passed out in a halo of glory such as few years in the cycle have won. But in the city's streets its passing was accompanied by a blare of horns and screeching of steam whistles most hideous and noises abhorred unearthy. This is traditional, like the bells, though fearfully tormenting to sensitive ears. Farewells to 1893 were worthy of a grave dignity, for they suggested parting ceremonies in honor of the distinguished dead. It was a year of years, with centuries crowded into its brief twelve months. Its glories have already passed into history and nothing short of sacred services at the altar could do full justice to its memory, hallowed as it is with the wonderful achievements of art, architecture, science, literature, mechanics and the culmination of human progress which the whole world saw at the Columbian Exposition.

And as the year was great among the years its close was fittingly observed in the churches of this city. At the Central M. E. Church on Mission street Rev. Dr. Dille preached on "Retrospect and Prospect," a sermon for the closing year. Watch-night services from 7:45 P. M. until midnight were held at the church with a covenant meeting. The subject for the discourse at the Hamilton-square Baptist Church, corner Post and Steiner streets, was "The Death of the Old Year and the Birth of the New." Rev. J. M. C. Brown preached at the First Baptist Church, Eddy street, near Jones, on "The Passing and the Permanent," and 7:30 P. M. "A Plan of Life for the New Year." Watch-night services from 8:15 P. M. to midnight were held at Plymouth Congregational Church, Post street, near Webster, Rev. W. D. Williams, pastor, preached in the evening of 1893, a fitting service for the closing year. Every seat was filled and a watch-night service from 9 to 12 o'clock. Rev. W. D. Nicholas preached at 7:30 P. M. in the First Presbyterian Church, on Van Ness avenue, taking for his subject, "A Greeting and a Wish to the Three Years." From 9:20 P. M. to midnight a watch-meeting, a service of prayer and consecration was held.

At the Simpson Memorial Church, on Hayes street, a fitting service for the closing of a watch night commencing at 8 o'clock. From 9 to 10 the exercises were in charge of the young people, led by C. B. Perkins. At 10 o'clock Rev. Thomas F. Brown preached a sermon appropriate to the closing of the year. Dr. Hirst then took charge of the services until midnight, the close of the old year.

Solemn vesper services were celebrated in St. Ignace Church, at 9:00 male voices, including twenty soloists, rendered the hymns and benediction.

This annual New Year's eve thanksgiving service attracted a very large congregation. Every seat was occupied and services stood throughout the service. The Most Rev. Archbishop P. W. Riordan officiated. Sixty boys were acolytes and chanted the Te Deum. The regular choir was increased to comprise 100 male voices, with an orchestral accompaniment. Under the direction of Rev. Father Allen and C. Zoberbier, the organist, the choir gave with magnificent effect the "Tantum Ergo" by Donzetti and the "Agnus Fideles." Quartet parts were taken by D. M. Jones and Joseph Morrisey, tenors; F. G. B. Mills and V. Woods, basses.

This morning solemn high mass will be celebrated at 10:30 o'clock, when the choir will be augmented by an orchestra of sixty pieces. The music will be the same as on Christmas day.

A grand praise service was held in the evening at Trinity Episcopal Church, corner of Twenty-third and Capp streets, as follows: "Calm on the Listening Ear of Night" (Holden); quartet, "Bethlehem" (Bartlett); Mrs. Mills, Miss Alice Partridge, solo and chorus, "The Holy Child"; "The Holy Child" (Adams); C. L. Gage, solo and chorus, "Nazareth" (Gounod); Mr. Gage and chorus; solo, "Star of Bethlehem" (Adams); Miss Alice Partridge; solo and chorus, "The Holy Child"; "Bethlehem" (Havens); Mr. Evans, Mrs. Mills, Miss Partridge and Mr. Gage; ballad, chorus, "Messiah" (Handel).

A Westminster Presbyterian Church, on Folsom street, watch-night services were held, beginning at 7:45 P. M. Rev. J. Q. Adams spoke on "Taking Account of Stock." A service in charge of the young people began at 9 P. M. and a sermon was preached by Rev. P. M. and a sermon was preached by Rev. P. M. and a sermon was preached by Rev. P. M.

All the churches did honor to the closing year's memory with thanksgivings and heralded the new with welcome songs. To-day the prayer-book cross will be presented to the Park Commission. Carriages will leave the Palace Hotel at 12:30 P. M. for the park, where gentlemen invited to participate in the exercises of presentation.

This morning the birth of the new year will be celebrated in many churches and customary observances will mark the day. The man with good resolutions, which are only made to be broken too soon. Calling, which by the way is fast becoming a thing of the past, will be kept up and in many windows evergreen wreaths will be displayed.

Wherever the old year was reviewed its remarkable history impressed people. The inspiration of Columbus and its result were commemorated by the work a year later than the third anniversary. It is world's long record of events is anything so grand or wonderful as the dream of the White City. Then how events came trooping down those 365 days now ended!

There is the middle of Hawaii. Satoli came from Rome to represent the venerable Pope Leo XIII, who celebrated his golden jubilee of ordination in February, and who was visited in the Vatican by Emperor William of Germany. America's greatest statesman of the time passed away. Grover took the reins of government with a whip in the other hand to drive.

Ex-President Marshal McMahon of France died. A peace arbitration between England and America sat at the Hague. On the Pacific, the United States, leaving a blackened and reddened path, Russia and France cemented an alliance. A money panic came and the silver bill was repealed. As well as these, the fight for self-protection against railroad monopoly and oppression in California is memorable as to the legislation against Chinese coolies.

Shipping Notes.

The old whaler Jane Gray begins her venture into sealing waters on the first day of the New Year, leaving at noon today. She is in command of Captain Charles H. McBratney, and there the first time with master's papers. He has served for years as mate on whaling vessels. The barkentine Trip Bird leaves for Tahiti on to-day's ebb.

The bark arrived Saturday from Nainaimo, where she took on a steam pump. By this means she was able to keep herself free from water and her previous leaky voyage was not repeated. The schooner, registered at the Grand, and the schooner, registered at the Grand, and the schooner, registered at the Grand.

Hon. S. M. Buck, Superior Judge of Humboldt County, accompanied by his family, left for Eureka yesterday, and is stopping at the Lick.

St. Ignatius College.

Studies will be resumed at St. Ignatius College to-morrow in all departments. Since tuition fees were abolished in the college there has been a noticeable increase in attendance. There is still room for more pupils, and the Jesuit fathers will be glad to extend the benefits of a collegiate education to as many boys as the school will accommodate. Applications for admission should be made as early in the school term as possible.

THEY WAVED THEIR HANDS.

And Stopped the Cable-Car System of the Powell-Street Line.

A few days since two prominent members of the Women's Press Association of the city, one noted for the excellence of the poetry she writes, and the other for the entertaining short stories she furnishes to magazines and Eastern periodicals, were on Taylor street returning from the house of a friend where they had made a call. When at Jackson street they saw a car of the Cliff and Ferris line coming down Washington street and approaching the one they were on. "Wonder if that car will wait for us?"

"Shouldn't wonder, let's try," answered the writer of short stories, and a moment after they glided hands were waving in the air for the purpose of attracting the attention of the motorman.

To their great satisfaction their signals had been observed, for the car stopped and they commenced waving for it, running in that graceful manner that is noticeable when the gentler sex sprints up stairs. They kept it up for nearly a block and sank exhausted after their effort on the seat of the dummy.

Immediately the poetess, who is known among her friends as ever ready to acknowledge the slightest favor shown her, turned to the motorman, and, with the most pleasant of smiles lighting up her pretty face, said:

"We are so much obliged for your kindness in waiting so long for us."

The answer that was given by the motorman was astonishing. It was: "You needn't thank me, mum; the cable parted just as you put up your hands."

The two writers looked at one another after the fashion of "Oh, Ho!" and the other simply said, "Oh, Ho!"

It has often been said that the glance of an ugly woman will stop a clock, but this is the first instance on record that a whole cable-car system of the city was stopped by the waving of the hands of two pretty women.

MARKET-STREET MYSTERY.

S. S. Conley Found in a Pool of Blood on a Stairway.

Two roomers in the lodging-house, 995 Market street, found a man lying on the stairs in a pool of blood about 10 o'clock last night and had him taken to the Receiving Hospital in the patrol wagon, where Dr. Deane found that he had an ugly wound in his forehead.

The man was unconscious, but Policeman Murphy thought his name was S. S. Conley. He was unknown to the people in the house and how he got on the stairway is a mystery. He was lying with his head toward the door.

Special Officer Poyser and others thought they had shot on the corner of Stevenson and Sixth streets about half an hour before Conley was discovered on the stairs and it was at first thought that he had been the victim of a shooting scrape.

Funeral of a Schutzen.

C. von der Heyde, a member of the San Francisco Schutzen Verein, died a few days since, and his funeral took place yesterday from Odd Fellows' Hall. The remains were followed to their last resting place by the lodge of Odd Fellows of which he was a member and by the Schutzen Verein. At the grave Philo Jacoby, president of the Verein, made a few appropriate remarks, after which a firing party fired a volley over the grave.

Street Railway Extension.

The laying of the cable road for the extension of the Presidio and Ferris Railway Company's Sacramento-street line is completed with the exception of a single block on Sixth avenue, between E and C streets, and at several small places where crossings have yet to be put in. Work on the turntable at D street and Sixth avenue has been begun and it is promised that the cable road will be ready for the cable-cars by the 15th inst.

"How good digestion wait on appetite, and health on both."

And health on both.

To assure both the above ends, good, wholesome, palatable food is demanded. It is next to impossible to present a sufficient variety of appetizing bills of fare for our meals without a liberal allowance of pastry and other food in which shortening is required. How to make crisp, healthful, digestible pastry has puzzled the cooks. A difficulty in all good cooking in the past has been lard. Always fickle, never uniform, most unwholesome—lard has always been the bane of the cook and the obstacle to "good digestion."
