IN FULL RETREAT.

The correspondence which President Cleveland has submitted to the Senate concerning our Samoan policy reviews the results of American interference in the affairs of that country, and pronounces them unsatisfactory.

It can also shelter itself behind the doctrines advanced by American statesmen who guarded the continental steps of the republic in its infancy.

Now it will be admitted, wise as well as prudent when we were a nation of ten millions of people is either wise or prudent now.

When the Nicaragua canal is completed these way stations will be of far greater importance than they are now.
