GODNEY IS UNEASY. The Indicted Bank President Who

Was Not Prosecuted.

CHICAGO, Dec, 23 .- E. C. Godney, president of the North River Bank of New York when it failed several years ago, and who was indicted by the Grand Jury at the time of the failure of the bank and whose indictment was one of those found in the pigeon-holes of the office of the District Attorney of New York, was in Chicago to-day on his way to New York. He declined to talk about the matter, but appeared ill at ease. The indictment was the subject of an inquiry by the Lexow committee, who gave it publicity and renewed the demand for some action in the prosecution of Godney. Godney has been living in Cripple Creek, Colo., ever since leaving New York. He declined to register yesterday. He left for the East on the 5 o'clock train.

Wreck of the Bark Southern Chief.

ABANDONED BY THE CREW.

Fifty-two Miles Southwest of Cape Flattery.

ONLY ONE SEAMAN WAS INJURED

The Vessel and Cargo of Lumber Are Fully Covered by Insurance.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Dec. 23.-The bark Southern Chief, from Tacoma for Adelaide, Australia, succumbed to the fury of last Wednesday's storm. She went to pieces and was abandoned fifty-two miles southwest of Cape Flattery. Her captain, W. W. Plumb, formerly of the late bark James Cheston, and crew, fifteen persons all told, were taken off the sinking vessel Friday morning by the barkentine Skagit and brought to this port. An unknown ship previously passed the Southern Chief and refused to heed her signals of distress. Only one seaman was injured, having his leg jammed by lumber. The Southern Chief ran into the gale early Thursday morning, which, together with cross seas, opened up seams in the vessel and she quickly became waterlogged. Over 30,000 feet of lumber were jettisoned when her stern quarters were arried away. A heavy sea was sweeping her decks, fore and aft, when the Skagit came along and rescued the crew. The vessel was valued at $7000 and her cargo cost $10,000; fully insured.

The revenue-cutter Grant, which was ordered to go out in search for overdue vessels, sailed to-night. She will probably be gone two weeks.

The barkentine Skagit, which arrived today, twenty days from San Pedro, reports making a big semi-circle on the voyage to Cape Flattery, and did not encounter any unusually stormy weather, and neither did she sight any vessels in distress, which would seem to dispel the idea that the missing vessels had got out to the westward and were heading in toward shore.

ELECTION CONTEST.

One That Is Likely to Prove Mighty Interesting.

VACAVILLE, Dec. 23 .- Papers were filed ate yesterday by Raleigh Barcar, Demoeratic nominee for District Attorney, to contest the election of Frank R. Devlin, Republican. The complaint alleges fraud in the voting and that the election officers in four precincts in Vallejo erred in permitting about 200 persons, residents of Mare Island and United States marines and soldiers, to vote. According to the decision of Superior Judge Buckles a few days before election, these men were not entitled to vote, as they were not residents and reside in no precinct in the county. On election day several of these brought out at the investigation." men who were registered in precinct 1 of the First Supervisorial District voted and were arrested, and the others went to other precincts to cast their votes. Mr. Devlin's plurality is only 92, and if Mr. Barcar succeeds in having the four precincts thrown out his election is assured. Should this happen the result would cost his plurality in the four precincts.

CROOKED WORK SOMEWHERE. Oueer Action of a Pinkerton Agency Detective.

SEATTLE. Wash., Dec. 23.-An alleged embezzler from one of the oldest banks in Bloomington, Ill., has been run down by an Allan O. Pinkerton Agency detective here, but the latter suddenly disappeared after he became friendly with the alleged embezzler, without even giving the latter's name. The detective gave his name or arriving in this city two weeks ago as J. M. Brooks, but told certain people his name was William Bell. He was very anxious to have it understood he was not working for the Pinkerton Bros.' Detective Agency.

According to his story, one of the oldest and most trusted employes of a Bloomington bank, which is a branch of a Chicago institution, asked for a vacation and went to Yankton, S. D., and then asked for an extension of time and came to the coast. His books were examined, and it was found he was $37,000 short. The case was put in the hands of the Allan O. Pinkerton Agency, and Brooks started out to run his man down. He trailed him to Kansas City, Ogden, Butte, Portland, Or., and finally to Seattle, where he was living under the name of Walker.

Brooks, after arriving here, claimed to locate his man and get a confession from him that he had $17,000 sewed in the lining of his coat. He said he did not want to return, but would settle if the bank would give him $19,000 that was owed to him. Extradition papers were made out, but the matter was kept from the police because of the danger of their arresting the man and spoiling the chance of a recovery of the money.
Suddenly the detective became friendly with the alleged embezzler and commenced avoiding the attorney. Then he became involved with a fair siren named Lillian and, after a trip into the woods ostensibly for a deer hunt, he took a train for San Francisco, and the next day Lillian left for that city by steamer. So far as can be learned nothing has been done to settle the affair with the bank. Brooks never let any one see the alleged embezzler, so it 121-123 SANSOME STREET, is not known who he is.
