

FOUR MORE LIVES

Added to the List of the Montserrat.

A WOMAN AND THREE MEN.

They Were Passengers on the Missing Collier.

FEARS FOR THE BARK DOMINION.

Some Talk About the Probable Loss of the Old Vessel—Marine Notes.

Mr. McCartney of Nansimo, who is stopping at the Lick House, says that the collier Montserrat, which has undoubtedly gone down with all hands, carried four passengers. One was a woman, wife of a Mr. Rhines, a mining man, and the others were males, names unknown.

This is a new and altogether startling piece of information and especially interesting, as it is declared by Mr. McCartney and some of the steamer Umattilla's crew that one of the men who took cabin passage with Captain Blackburn was a young fellow who was fleeing to escape from the wrath of an irate husband, the wife of whom the young man declared he had loved too well to resist the temptation of trying to steal her away from her home.

Mr. McCartney seems to be very sincere in his statement about the Montserrat's passengers, but there is no record of the steamer having carried anybody but her regular crew. But being a Nicaraguan vessel it may be possible that no record of passengers was turned over by Captain Blackburn to the Nansimo Custom-house.

Rosenfeld & Sons, to whom the Montserrat was consigned, say that the vessel did not carry any passengers, but Mr. McCartney states that he is positive that the three men referred to took passage by her. Their names may have been placed on the ship's articles.

From the local Custom-house authorities it is learned that Blackburn often brought persons down from the sound by order of the local authorities forbidding colliers to carry passengers at all. Henceforth there will be a penalty for an offense.

Several young ladies claim to be the wives of the second engineer of the Montserrat. One young woman lives in the Mission, one in Oakland and one on Jones street. The engineer's friends and family deny that there is any truth in the stories told by the young women.

The bark Dominion is now out twenty-nine days from this port for Nansimo. There is a great deal of anxiety for her welfare expressed by some people. The Dominion left here in ballast, and must have been blown off the coast a long distance during the progress of the recent storm that have raged along the coast. Though it must be acknowledged that the vessel is making a very long trip, still there is no need to give her up as lost. She should be given five days more at least to report at her port of destination.

The bay was very rough yesterday afternoon, the southwest wind that blew throughout the day raising quite a sea. Small boats had a hard time weathering the storm, but large vessels were not bothered by the billows.

Officer Crosby of the Harbor Police arrested John Campbell yesterday afternoon for breaking into a boxcar and stealing a box of merchandise. Campbell was charged with burglary in the second degree.

LOOKING OVER THE GROUND.

Mayor-Elect Suro Goes on a Tour of Inspection.

Mayor-elect Suro was shown about over the city's possessions and cares—particularly cares—yesterday by Mayor Elliott.

They visited the County Hospital, the Alms-house, Branch County Jail, Industrial School, etc., putting in a full day in doing it. The weather was, however, and wind up at the Cliff House, where the Mayor died with his success.

The visit to the city and county institutions was not previously announced, but at each of them they were cordially received and given every opportunity for seeing all that was to be seen.

Mr. Suro will take office on Monday and will preside at the meeting of the new Board of Supervisors, inaugurating their duties with an address touching their duties and the work before them.

Colonel Rogers, the Mayor's secretary, has already taken possession of and fitted up for his own use the apartment hitherto used as a general lumber-room. He is to have an active man for outside work, who has not yet been named, and has engaged a colored boy as usher and also a lady stenographer and typewriter. The indications are that Mayor Suro will be actively engaged in the business of being Mayor during his term.

DELIRIOUS FROM PAIN.

George B. Holbrook Found Wandering Aimlessly About.

George B. Holbrook, a young man living at 1225 Ellis street, was found wandering aimlessly on Eighth street yesterday afternoon in a delirious condition. Policeman Merriek rang for the patrol wagon and took him to the Receiving Hospital, where he was registered as insane. It was afterwards discovered that he was suffering from peritonitis and was in a critical condition.

Last night two of Holbrook's friends called at the hospital and said he had made his escape from the Waldeck Sanitarium, 405 Broadway street, where he had been sent for treatment.

Inquiry was made at the sanitarium and it was stated that Holbrook had reached the institution at an early hour yesterday morning. About daylight he insisted upon returning to his room at 1225 Ellis street, and on the advice of his own physician his wish was gratified, two nurses accompanying him.

He had left the house unknown to the other inmates and had wandered about till found on Eighth street.

Election of Officers.

At a meeting of the St. Charles Lyceum, held on Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected: Joseph Foley, president; George Creighton, vice-president; Morgan Sweeney, recording secretary; Joseph Fogarty, corresponding secretary; Louis Strick, librarian; John Bannerman, treasurer; John Dyer, marshal; board of trustees—John Daly; Joseph Richards, Dennis Boland.

A Creditable Issue. The San Diego Union's New Year's edition is a most creditable effort. It is full of valuable matter about the southern part of the State, and cannot help but be of interest to all. Several fine illustrations ornament the pages.

EXEMPTS MAKE MERRY.

Their Annual Feast Was a Great Success.

The Exempt Firemen met around the festive table last evening in their lodgerooms on Brennan place and talked over the days when they followed the hosecart and directed the streams on the blazing ruins.

In those old times the fireman was everything. He not only looked after the flying sparks, but he was the preserver of peace as well as of order.

It was the Exempts' annual spread, and as usual it was not a stunted affair. Enough viands and wines had been imported to almost feed the entire Fire Department of San Francisco.

Mr. McCarty presided over the feast, and eloquent speakers were on hand to spread before the assembled a mental feast.

George T. Bowen presided over the festivity. Judge Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

More men had flinched in face of such storms than there ever had in front of the cannon. The work of the Lexow committee in New York was commended by the eloquent orator. He declared that the moral uprising in New York was not a partisan one, but one in which the whole people should be interested.

Dr. Voorsanger was introduced and spoke upon the high calling of an American citizen. He said that the old firemen had done a noble work, and that many times it took a great amount of pluck to fight their battles, but it required more courage to fight moral battles.

READY SCALPERS.

White Mountain Apaches Arrive.

NINETEEN HARDY BRAVES.

They Were Roused Up by Troops in Arizona.

GO TO ALCATRAZ AS PRISONERS.

Good Work of a Famous Officer of Custer's Command—Scene at Clay-Street Wharf.

Nineteen Indians from Arizona took possession of the Clay-street wharf yesterday evening, and now every small boy from Meigs' wharf to the Pacific Mill dock is practicing at scalping his companion with a wooden scalping-knife.

They were under the care of Lieutenant Bernard, an accomplished Indian fighter who followed Custer during many of that long-remembered hero's campaigns. The warriors were White Mountain Apaches, one of the fiercest of the Apache tribes that have from time to time bid defiance to the troops of Uncle Sam and hid themselves among the inaccessible canyons and ravines of that most uninviting range of heights in all the country of the Colorado.

Lieutenant Bernard delegated the care of his charges, or rather prisoners, to a sergeant, and when the Government boat McDowell steamed up to Clay-street pier the redskins were hurried on board, then away to serve out various sentences in the gloomy dungeons of Alcatraz.

Bernard rounded up the gang in the White Mountains last summer after they had committed a number of depredations and also attempted to get the peaceable Indians of the desert to revolt and massacre the settlers of the district. All the bucks have high-sounding Indian names, which, by way of identification, have been changed into English names meaning such things as Happy Power, Fighting Star, and Young-man-afraid-of-his-creditors.

The latter savage butchered several of his too persistent creditors, thereby establishing a permanent warning to such individuals, but incurred the enmity and revenge of the White Mountain cowboys, who helped Bernard run down the evasive young man and send him to California to build roads around the Government prisons.

Kattlesnake Jack is said to be the name of the big chief of the Arizona delegation. He boasts of an Indian cognomen that is alleged to be Man-who-tried-to-scalp-a-living picture, for it is strongly hinted that one night he crept down on an amateur theatrical performance in a settler's cabin and got away with the wig that the daughter of the house wore on the occasion.

After he returned with a band of his outcasts and killed every human being in the place. Ten bodies, horribly mutilated, were found the next day by a detachment of United States cavalry. This occurred a number of years ago, when the famous White Mountain Apache bands were terrorizing the whole of Southern Arizona.

Kattlesnake Jack is said to be the name of the big chief of the Arizona delegation. He boasts of an Indian cognomen that is alleged to be Man-who-tried-to-scalp-a-living picture, for it is strongly hinted that one night he crept down on an amateur theatrical performance in a settler's cabin and got away with the wig that the daughter of the house wore on the occasion.

After he returned with a band of his outcasts and killed every human being in the place. Ten bodies, horribly mutilated, were found the next day by a detachment of United States cavalry. This occurred a number of years ago, when the famous White Mountain Apache bands were terrorizing the whole of Southern Arizona.

Kattlesnake Jack is said to be the name of the big chief of the Arizona delegation. He boasts of an Indian cognomen that is alleged to be Man-who-tried-to-scalp-a-living picture, for it is strongly hinted that one night he crept down on an amateur theatrical performance in a settler's cabin and got away with the wig that the daughter of the house wore on the occasion.

After he returned with a band of his outcasts and killed every human being in the place. Ten bodies, horribly mutilated, were found the next day by a detachment of United States cavalry. This occurred a number of years ago, when the famous White Mountain Apache bands were terrorizing the whole of Southern Arizona.

Kattlesnake Jack is said to be the name of the big chief of the Arizona delegation. He boasts of an Indian cognomen that is alleged to be Man-who-tried-to-scalp-a-living picture, for it is strongly hinted that one night he crept down on an amateur theatrical performance in a settler's cabin and got away with the wig that the daughter of the house wore on the occasion.

After he returned with a band of his outcasts and killed every human being in the place. Ten bodies, horribly mutilated, were found the next day by a detachment of United States cavalry. This occurred a number of years ago, when the famous White Mountain Apache bands were terrorizing the whole of Southern Arizona.

Kattlesnake Jack is said to be the name of the big chief of the Arizona delegation. He boasts of an Indian cognomen that is alleged to be Man-who-tried-to-scalp-a-living picture, for it is strongly hinted that one night he crept down on an amateur theatrical performance in a settler's cabin and got away with the wig that the daughter of the house wore on the occasion.

After he returned with a band of his outcasts and killed every human being in the place. Ten bodies, horribly mutilated, were found the next day by a detachment of United States cavalry. This occurred a number of years ago, when the famous White Mountain Apache bands were terrorizing the whole of Southern Arizona.

Kattlesnake Jack is said to be the name of the big chief of the Arizona delegation. He boasts of an Indian cognomen that is alleged to be Man-who-tried-to-scalp-a-living picture, for it is strongly hinted that one night he crept down on an amateur theatrical performance in a settler's cabin and got away with the wig that the daughter of the house wore on the occasion.

After he returned with a band of his outcasts and killed every human being in the place. Ten bodies, horribly mutilated, were found the next day by a detachment of United States cavalry. This occurred a number of years ago, when the famous White Mountain Apache bands were terrorizing the whole of Southern Arizona.

Kattlesnake Jack is said to be the name of the big chief of the Arizona delegation. He boasts of an Indian cognomen that is alleged to be Man-who-tried-to-scalp-a-living picture, for it is strongly hinted that one night he crept down on an amateur theatrical performance in a settler's cabin and got away with the wig that the daughter of the house wore on the occasion.

After he returned with a band of his outcasts and killed every human being in the place. Ten bodies, horribly mutilated, were found the next day by a detachment of United States cavalry. This occurred a number of years ago, when the famous White Mountain Apache bands were terrorizing the whole of Southern Arizona.

Kattlesnake Jack is said to be the name of the big chief of the Arizona delegation. He boasts of an Indian cognomen that is alleged to be Man-who-tried-to-scalp-a-living picture, for it is strongly hinted that one night he crept down on an amateur theatrical performance in a settler's cabin and got away with the wig that the daughter of the house wore on the occasion.

After he returned with a band of his outcasts and killed every human being in the place. Ten bodies, horribly mutilated, were found the next day by a detachment of United States cavalry. This occurred a number of years ago, when the famous White Mountain Apache bands were terrorizing the whole of Southern Arizona.

Kattlesnake Jack is said to be the name of the big chief of the Arizona delegation. He boasts of an Indian cognomen that is alleged to be Man-who-tried-to-scalp-a-living picture, for it is strongly hinted that one night he crept down on an amateur theatrical performance in a settler's cabin and got away with the wig that the daughter of the house wore on the occasion.

After he returned with a band of his outcasts and killed every human being in the place. Ten bodies, horribly mutilated, were found the next day by a detachment of United States cavalry. This occurred a number of years ago, when the famous White Mountain Apache bands were terrorizing the whole of Southern Arizona.

Kattlesnake Jack is said to be the name of the big chief of the Arizona delegation. He boasts of an Indian cognomen that is alleged to be Man-who-tried-to-scalp-a-living picture, for it is strongly hinted that one night he crept down on an amateur theatrical performance in a settler's cabin and got away with the wig that the daughter of the house wore on the occasion.

After he returned with a band of his outcasts and killed every human being in the place. Ten bodies, horribly mutilated, were found the next day by a detachment of United States cavalry. This occurred a number of years ago, when the famous White Mountain Apache bands were terrorizing the whole of Southern Arizona.

Kattlesnake Jack is said to be the name of the big chief of the Arizona delegation. He boasts of an Indian cognomen that is alleged to be Man-who-tried-to-scalp-a-living picture, for it is strongly hinted that one night he crept down on an amateur theatrical performance in a settler's cabin and got away with the wig that the daughter of the house wore on the occasion.

After he returned with a band of his outcasts and killed every human being in the place. Ten bodies, horribly mutilated, were found the next day by a detachment of United States cavalry. This occurred a number of years ago, when the famous White Mountain Apache bands were terrorizing the whole of Southern Arizona.

PHILBROOK'S WARNER BRIEF

It Was More Respectful Than the First, but Ineffective.

Attorney Horace W. Philbrook strikes a snag every time he runs up against the Supreme Court.

That august tribunal yesterday confirmed the action of Superior Judge Hunt in granting a new trial of the suit brought by Seth Warner against the F. Thomas Parisian dyeing and cleaning works.

In this suit a judgment was obtained in Judge Hunt's court by the verdict of a jury awarding $321 to the plaintiff Warner. A motion for a new trial was subsequently made and granted by Judge Hunt, on the ground that the evidence was insufficient to support the verdict. An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court from the order of the Superior Judge.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

Philbrook filed an extraordinary brief, making attack upon every body around, and particularly the Judge who granted the motion for a new trial. But the Supreme Court threw his brief out of court, considering it insulting in the extreme, and setting aside the order of the Superior Judge. Philbrook was Warner's attorney, an opportunity to display his powers of vituperative brief-making.

HAS NO ELIXIR.

B. Olkovich Says He Can Prolong Life.

HE ADVERTISES IN LONDON.

But His Business Office Is in This City.

AN INVESTIGATION IS ORDERED.

Not by Skeptical Scientists, but by the Postal Inspector, Who Thinks All Is Not Right.

As one star fades in the dazzling universe of research and discovery another burns and blazes in its stead. Dr. Brown-Sequard of France has gone into oblivion with his elixir of life, but B. Olkovich of San Francisco is scintillating in his place.

A well-read and philosophic man is B. Olkovich. He knows that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country and among his own kin, so he has blazoned his discovery of a method by which life may be prolonged to the people who dwell on the other side of the Atlantic and has selected the columns of "The Thunderer" as the proper vehicle for conveying the information of his achievement to the world.

The London Times is publishing the following advertisement: Valuable Information! How to Prolong Life! Address California Export Journal, 124 Sansome street, room 8, San Francisco, California, U. S. A.

Postal Inspector Erwin, who is employed by the Government to detect and punish persons who use the mails for fraudulent purposes, obtained a copy of the Times in which the foregoing advertisement was published, and while he was anxious to do his duty in the state of life to which the Government had called him, he was also possessed of a la