

La Lande Letter.

The Holiness campmeeting which began last Saturday is proving a power for good and God is working upon the hearts of the people as He has perhaps never done before in our midst.

Among our visitors are Rev. Lonnie Rogers, of Pilot Point, Tex., Rev. M. Collins, and others.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Helm, who have recently moved to our town, are both great helpers in our meeting.

Rev. E. A. Ferguson, who is one of the greatest preachers in the Holiness movement, is now preaching to us. Bro. Ferguson is to be with us until October 1st, the opening of school.

Rev. H. L. Hubbard, who has been very ill with typhoid fever, is rapidly recovering.

Rev. Beeson is very busily engaged in showing the visitors our county and transferring property.

Melon Day and the Campbell Bros. Big Show came off Friday according to schedule, there being a smaller number of people than was expected, on account of the wrecking of the excursion train between Clovis and Melrose. Over five hundred people failed to arrive in time to enjoy the occasion properly; but what they did to the melons was a plenty.

Taking it altogether, it was a big success. The farm exhibits were fine, as well as the stock exhibit. The Review will give the list of prizes next week.

Built in Memory of a Dog.
Of the memories to date the most imposing of modern date is "Tell's Tower," a structure on the seashore near West Kirby, Ches'tre, England. It is in honor of the great St. Bernard dog Tell, "ancestor of most of the rough-coated champions of England, and himself winner of every prize in the kingdom. He was majestic in appearance, noble in character and of unflinching courage." Built by the late M. J. Cumming Maclean, the tower is a sort of summer house, in the base of which is a vault containing Tell's remains, guarded by an effigy of that remarkable animal.

Fear of Microbes.
Microbes are agents of disease and death. When they were discovered and when their character was exposed science made a big step forward. Microbes taught men not only how to cure disease, but how to avoid and even how to prevent it. But into life they brought a new terror! Now the question is how to guard against the terror. For all fairly healthy persons there is just one thing to do. Ignore the existence of microbes altogether! Don't even stop to think of them, save in emergencies, which, to the layman, seldom arrive. Human beings have no reason to be in continual fear of microbes. The war to be immune from their influence is by not caring a snap of the finger about them, and by observing the ordinary rules of wholesome living. Eat and sleep regularly. Take exercise. Keep in fresh air. And devote a few minutes each day to deep breathing. Microbes hate healthy people as the devil hates holy water.

Measure of Celebrity.
An actress must be well known to have the papers print the fact that she is about to be married; she must be famous in order to have it stated that she is not going to get married.—New York Post.

Horribly Mean.
The meanest man in the world is the husband who placed his money in a mouse-trap so that his wife could not get it in the early morning without liberating a mouse.—Exchange.

Necessity of Beauty.
Schiller in his esthetic and philosophical essays wrote that "Beauty alone confers happiness on all," that under its influence men forget their limitations. Happiness is our being's end and aim. And without beauty even happiness in its perfect flower is impossible.

Accustomed to It.
"Yes," said Rivets, "I went to a five-o'clock tea with my wife yesterday." "Gracious!" exclaimed Chumley, "didn't it nearly drive you crazy?" "Oh, no, I didn't mind it. I own a roller shop, you know."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Inexhaustible Asphalt Supply.
In the island of Trinidad there is a lake 115 acres in extent, which, instead of containing water, contains asphalt in almost inexhaustible quantities. For several years it has been used for paving.

an acre. My other fields of grain show an equally thrifty condition and are proof to me that the only way to successfully raise grain on these bench lands is by conscientiously following dry farming methods.

Secretary Burns of the Dry Farming Congress visited the field described and said that, judging from the appearance of the grain, it was his impression that Mr. Bouton was very modestly conservative in his estimate of the yield. A sample of this grain has been sent to Prof. B. C. Buffum of the Wyoming Plant & Seed Breeding company, Worland Wyoming, for analysis.

Samples of Mr. Bouton's crops including some of the above described wheat, will be displayed at the International Dry Farm Exposition at Billings during the Fourth Dry Farming Congress, October 25-28, 1909.

AND THE DEACON PROCEEDED.
After Pastor Had Elucidated Text from Which He had Drawn His Sermon.

The colored parson had just concluded a powerful sermon on "Salvation Am Free," and was announcing that a collection would be taken for the benefit of the parson and his family. Up jumped an acutely brunette brother in the back of the church.

"Look a-yer, parson," he interrupted, "yo' ain't no sooner done tellin' us dat salvation am free dan yo' go askin' us fo' money. If salvation am free, what's de use in payin' fo' it? Dat's what I want to know. An' I tell yo' p'intedly dat I ain't goin' to gib yo' nothin' until I find out. Now—"

"Patience, brudder, patience," said the parson. "Til' lucidate: S'pose yo' was thirsty an' come to a river. Yo' could kneel right down an' drink yo' fill, couldn't yo'? An' it wouldn't cost yo' nothin' would it?"

"Oh, course not. Dat's jest what I—"

"Dat water would be free," continued the parson. "But s'posh yo' was to hab dat water piped to yo' house? Yo' have to pay, wouldn't yo'?"

"Yes, zuh, but—"

"'Vai, brudder, so it is wid salvation. De salvation am free, but it's de salvation it thied to yo' dat yo' got to pay fo'."

'TWTX THEORY AND CONDITION
Where the Gifted Playwright is Confronted with Circumstances He Cannot Control.

Consider the apprentice playwright's vision of his work. He has dreamed a dream and the people of that dream tread 'out their drama before his mind's eye, all flawless, perfect, just as he made them. He sees them as real people, not as actors. The scenes by moonlight are moonlight indeed to him; he can smell the roses in the garden where his heroine walks, but, sadly enough, this illusion of reality, which continues for a little while after the conclusion of his writing, is apt to be the greatest reward his work will bring him. When the play is staged and he finds that the harvest moon for his moonlight love scene must be discarded because the moon-machine is creaky and there is danger that the audience may hear the moon go up, when the heroine whom he pictured to himself with "elf-gold hair" must play her part as a brunette because elf-gold wigs do not suit her, and when his "pathetic father" has been given to a comedian who "gets a laugh" upon all of his heart-rending speeches, then it is that the playwright begins to comprehend the difference between "the dream and the business."—Booth Tarkington in Collier's.
