

OSCURO

Mr. and Mrs. Geo Morris are moving to their claim east of town.

Oliver Jackson and Thos Moody were up from Tularosa Saturday.

A twelve inch well is being drilled on the Raffety claim near town.

Mrs. F. M. Hewitt is in charge of the Edwards hotel formerly operated by the Boyds.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace of White Oaks spent Saturday and Sunday in Oscurro.

A neat little residence has been moved and built in town on the J. V. Edwards property and is now occupied by W. P. Loughrey and family.

Oscurro and vicinity has been visited by so much rain and snow the past week that it is almost impossible to navigate. A very fine season is assured.

J. V. Edwards of Maricopa, Ariz. who is here as Trustee for the creditors of the late John H. Boyd, and is temporarily operating the business, was a business visitor to Carrizozo Monday.

In spite of heavy snow a very pleasant dance was participated in at the local school house on Saturday evening. The dance was made possible by the kindness of Oliver Jackson who carried many who attended to and from the dance in his big Buick car.

Improved Highways Increase Attendance at Rural Schools—States Making Greatest Progress.

While it is true that various factors contribute to increase or decrease the attendance at schools in given sections of the country, it is worthy of comment that in the states having a high percentage of improved roads a much larger percentage of the students enrolled regularly attend the schools than in the states having a small percentage of improved roads. In five eastern and western states, which have a large mileage of improved roads, the average attendance of enrolled pupils in 1908-9 was 80 per cent, while in four southern states and one northwestern state, which are noted for bad roads, the average attendance for the same year was 64 per cent—80 per cent in the good roads states as against 64 per cent in the bad roads states. In the states first named 35 per cent of the roads have been

A Good Road in New England.

Improved, while in the latter group of states there are only 1 1/2 per cent of the roads improved.

That improved roads would benefit our country school system there would seem to be no doubt. Improved roads make it possible to consolidate or centralize the schools and to establish graded schools in the rural districts. Such schools centrally located will accommodate all of the children within a radius of from four to five miles. In many communities having the advantage of improved roads commodious buildings have been provided, more competent teachers have been employed, and modern facilities for teaching have been supplied at a minimum cost. For instance, since the improvement of the main highways in Durham county, North Carolina, the number of school houses has been reduced from 65 to 42, of which 17 are graded and have two or more rooms and employ two or more teachers.

There are at the present time about two thousand consolidated rural schools in the United States. It appears that Massachusetts, Ohio and Indiana have made the greatest progress along these lines, and it is rather significant to note that in these states about one-third of the roads have been improved. According to statistics of the agricultural department there, was expended in 1899, $22,116 in Massachusetts for the conveyance of pupils to consolidated schools, but in 1908 the expenditure for this purpose amounted to $292,213. In Indiana the expenditure for this purpose in 1904 amounted to $86,000, while in 1908, $290,000 was expended. This expenditure for transportation reflects, in a general way, the extent and progress of this new educational movement. It must not be understood that this is an additional burden, as the expenditure thus made is saved in other directions.

SUCCESS OF H. G. SELFRIDGE

The career of Harry G. Selfridge in London has been watched with a great deal of interest by American business men on account of his activities in Chicago, as well as his popularity with all classes.

Recently a report was issued by Selfridge & Co., covering their operations for the year 1912. It shows that the profits of that firm for that year were $502,000, as compared with $250,000 for the year 1911. After charging off nearly $100,000 to debenture interest and $120,000 dividend on preferred stock, Selfridge & Co. had a profit balance for the year 1912 of more than $300,000, as compared with $120,000 for the year 1911. Closing their books for the year the firm has charged off practically $190,000 for preliminary expenses $100,000 for commission to underwriters and about $18,000 for fixtures. After disposing of interest dividend and other expenses mentioned, the company shows a net balance of $40,000.

On the basis of the figures for 1912 and having disposed of all charges relating to preliminary organization, Selfridge & Co. should have more than $500,000 for dividends in 1913.

Chicago business men regard this as a remarkable showing considering the energetic competition Mr. Selfridge encountered soon after opening his store. London papers agree that the phenomenal success of the store is due to the liberal advertising policy Mr. Selfridge has maintained since opening his store.

Advertising.

The man who has advertised unsuccessfully and says advertising doesn't pay is like the man who believes all doctors are fakes because one failed to cure him.

Modern business is war—war where quality, price and service, coupled with boldness, bigness and sureness of vision, win power and wealth.

Don't let your copy hit below the belt. Time is your referee—and he will get you if you don't play fair.

The successful fisherman is he who uses tempting bait, then casts it skillfully in the pool where the fish live. There is a great advertising moral in this—but remember, the ultimate consumer is not a fish; it is essential that the bait be more than tempting—it must also be truthful!
