THE MERRY-GO-ROUND

The merry-go-round carnival combination spent a most flourishing week in our midst. Throughout the week the evening crowds were immense and business brisk. The big diamond ring voting contest proved a strong drawing card and the rivalry occasioned was something seldom seen. The ring was awarded to Miss Cora Cole, being given away Sunday night. It was not awarded Saturday night because the management had half a mind to run Sunday. However, legal authorities advised the abandonment of the idea, and convinced the promoters that it would be an expensive day's business. The baby dolls made a hit with the youngsters of town, and many a sedate sire could be seen trying his standing in the eyes of Dame Fortune while a tiny daughter's face grew longer and longer as the store of dimes gradually vanished from Dad's jeans. Many fathers bought the dolls outright at the conclusion of the week's business, so the town is well supplied with imitations of the coming generation. The brisk trade which the money-catchers enjoyed simply showed that "they all fall for it" both great and small. The money went we know not whither but it evidently was mighty funny while it was going, judging by the crowds of quiet citizens to be seen each evening in the environs of the carnival. Sic transit gloria mundi.
