Every Democrat in Accomac should register when the books are opened for that purpose and the following summary of those who can register, by the Page Courier, shows that the right of a majority of them to register will not be challenged, and that no man of ordinary intelligence need fear to apply.
"You can register if you are an old soldier. No other qualification required.
You can register if you are the son of an old soldier. No other qualification required.
You can register if you pay taxes on $500 worth of property. No other qualification required.

If you are not an old soldier, nor the son of an old soldier, nor do not pay State Taxes on $500 worth of property, then you must "understand" to the satisfaction of the registrars such clause of the constitution as the registration board may submit to you."

Chief Dyer is in receipt of a telegram from his brother, George G. Dyer, who has been attending a fair at Tasley, down in the Tidewater district, saying that "Skyland Girl" had won a stake of $500.
Skyland Girl is one of the horses which Mr. Dyer has in his charge and which is making a record as a pacer, having attained that of 2:24, with early prospects of lowering this.
As an evidence of the disposition of the general public to attend fairs, this little out-of-the-way place had on the 6th, one of the days of the fair, 6,000 people. If such a small village can muster such an attendance, what could be expected of Roanoke should her agricultural and mechanical fair have been held, as was anticipated, this fall? Let it be hoped that all interest is not dead and that it may be yet realized.
The above from the Roanoke Times indicates that the writer of the article is not posted as to the section which he so flippantly designated as an out-of-the-way place. It is charitable to him to believe that he is ignorant of the location of Tasley and its surroundings, of the intelligence, thrift and industry of the people in the county in which it is situated, of the large population in easy reach of it in less than an hour by rail and otherwise, of its nearness to the great cities of the country, because of the unsurpassed facilities for reaching it both by land and water. Tasley an out-of-the-way place! The thought is unworthy of one at all posted as to his native State. No one, unless ignorant of the location, could so have made in his heart as to so describe it. Situated as Tasley is in a county with a population of more than 30,000, with a county north of it with a population as large, and another South of it with almost half the number, the writer of course could not have had so little regard for accuracy, as to have made the statement which he has, if he had known that instead of 6,000 people, from 10,000 to 15,000 could have reached the fair grounds in their own vehicles in an hour or so and twice that number in the same time by rail, if they had desired to be present.
The Times man too could not have known, that we are in eight hours of New York by rail and nearer Philadelphia and Wilmington or he could not have fallen into the error of calling Tasley an out-of-the-way place. He evidently needs light and if he would not continue to mislead his readers visit Accomac, and having visited as he will conclude, that we are very much in the world, if his vision is not so much obscured by his present surroundings that he does not know a good thing when he sees it. He will indeed be blind to the truth, if after taken a drive over our roads of ten miles in about the time it takes to make one in the country around Roanoke, if he does not conclude, that his city instead of Tasley deserves more to be described as an out-of-the-way place.
