GEORGE WHITE, A NEGRO Section Hand, Badly Injured by Pay Train on A. C. L.

(From Friday's Daily.)

George White, a negro section hand, was knocked down and seriously hurt this morning while coming to town. White was walking down the track towards town, with a crowd of other men when White asked for a pin, and receiving the pin, he walked across in front of the train. The engineer blew his whistle, but it was too late, for almost at the same instant the negro was hit by the step on the pilot of the engine. White was thrown with great force against a cross-tie, which cut a gash in his head about three inches long. After a period of about ten minutes the negro regained consciousness. He then attempted to get up and walk to a wagon near by, but was assisted by other men, and was then taken to his home in the quarters. While serious, it is not thought that the negro's hurts will prove fatal.

CENTRAL FLORIDA Highway Association Has Meeting in Orlando.

The Central Florida Highway Association held its quarterly meeting in Orlando with a fairly good attendance on October 22nd. T. Ed. Bryan, of Tampa, was re-elected president under temporary suspension of the rules by unanimous consent, as the by-laws provide that otherwise the president cannot succeed himself, which at the high appreciation in which his able services are appreciated by the membership; L. P. Dickie, secretary, M. M. Smith, first vice-president, and G. G. Ware, second vice-president, were also re-elected. J. H. Scales, of Perry, was elected treasurer, and A. B. Tucker, of Punta Gorda, was elected director for DeSoto county.

Action on the resolution passed in Ocala under which the association was to take steps looking to re-routing for those portions of the various routes that definite provision had not been made for the construction of, was deferred to the September meeting, which will be held in Fort Myers on the first Wednesday after the 15th of September.

Alternate proposed routings have to be filed with the secretary thirty days in advance of each meeting, and it is certain that Punta Gorda and Englewood will call for a change in the routing of the Tamiami Trail, cutting out Arcadia, Pine Level, Fort Oden and Myakka City, if definite provision is not made for the construction of this highway in the meantime.

SENATOR TRAMMELL.

Every return speaks the same story—the nomination of Park Trammell as United States senator from Florida. The average man must stand amazed at the wonderful record of this young man—for he is yet young, as men go, and the flush of youth still warms his cheeks and shines in the untucked auburn of his hair.

Step by step, and each one a big step, he has mounted not by the east of chance or the fortune of wealth, but on the approving suffrage of his people from the legislature to the senate.

In this race for the United States senate, when our Fortunatus of politics essayed to emerge from the state into the national arena, there were many who doubted and disbelieved. But we see in the unmistakable evidence of the tally sheets, recorded in thousands of precincts, the same voice of confidence in him, the same resolution to advance him further. Lawyer Trammell, Editor Trammell, Representative Trammell, Senator Trammell, Attorney General Trammell, Governor Trammell—and now Senator Trammell—a procession of preferment which is vouchsafed to but few mortal men, and which would make of its recipient the devoted and prayerful servant of his people unto the limit of his years and the uttermost of his talents.

Park Trammell will sit in the senate of the United States in the seat vacated by a man of unusual mental capacity and as team-mate of the ablest of Floridians—he will attract much attention from public, press and colleagues, and barring cruel references to dead and gone but remembered orators, will command attention with his first utterance in that momentous forum. The Old Heads will get together and whisper that this youth has come among them suddenly and they will enquire as to his entitlements—and they will be told by Mack Cathcart or other authority from Florida that he has never lost an election or lost an upward step—and they will naturally conclude that there must be something to him besides a pulchritudinous presence. Realizing this opportunity, and with nothing higher to which he can aspire, we may expect some sort of service from him—and we may hope that he may prove as good a senator as he is a vote getter, and that Florida may be blessed by his further promotion in its service, and that he may, at least, not detract from the eminent dignity and standing which Florida now enjoys under that lofty dome in the person and prominence of its senior senator.—Tampa Tribune.

THE BRYAN LAW AT FAULT.

The Pensacola News says: "While it is true that in some cases the second choice system does not secure a majority expression, the fault lies with the voters, and not the system of voting. If a portion of the voters choose to half disfranchise themselves by neglecting to express a second choice preference, they can blame themselves and not the law."

Now, just wait a minute. Not so fast. Here is a precinct with 50 voters, and four candidates, A, B, C, and D, are running for the office of governor. A receives 20 first choice votes, and these 20 votes are cast second choice for C; B receives 15 first choice votes and these 15 votes are cast second choice for C; C receives 6 first choice votes, and these 6 votes are cast second choice for B; D receives 9 first choice votes, and these 9 votes are cast second choice for C. Now, who gets the nomination? B gets it, of course, and he received only 15 first choice votes and 6 second choice votes, giving him a plurality, not a majority, of one vote, and the second choice votes of the candidate receiving the smallest number of first choice votes made the nomination. This little demonstration doesn't seem to fit in very well with the Pensacola News' statement that the fact that a candidate received the nomination by a plurality vote is the fault of the voters, and not the system. In the above illustration, 35 of the fifty voters wanted another candidate nominated, but they didn't get what they wanted, and the system is to blame for the result.

If we are to have plurality nominations, why encumber ourselves with this second choice business. It's mighty expensive, and an unhandy ornament.

IS IT REASON OR PREJUDICE?

Why is it that a county election becomes so exciting? We can well understand why the intimate friends and relatives should become interested in the success of a candidate where his election often means so much to him, but it is not an uncommon thing to see almost strangers reach a high stage of excitement and interest in a favorite candidate, even when they admit that there is no valid reason why they should do so. They will get on and hustle in order that the one whose cause they have espoused may win. There must be a cause for this. Those who become so interested admit it means nothing to them, and often they do not think their favorite any better qualified than his opponents, but for him they are, even up to the doing often times of questionable things in his behalf. Men take sides without themselves knowing why. They witness a dog fight and immediately some will want the dog to whip and some the other. A large number of men are not controlled by reason, but by passion. Demagogues know this, and they often use to excite the prejudices.

But why write thus? There is one purpose in view, and that is to get you to think and to ask, Am I of these? By which am I controlled by prejudice or reason? Do I vote a certain way because the gang votes that way, and if left alone would I vote the same way? In other words, are you yourself, or are you a tool of some one else? As the answer to the questions, so may you determine how much of a man you are.

NO ADULT ILLITERATES IN THE KENTUCKY ILLITERACY COMMISSION.

The Kentucky Illiteracy Commission, created by act of the 1914 legislature, is doing much good work towards the complete eradication of illiteracy in the state. Under the leadership of Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart was appointed president of the commission and much has been accomplished through the moonlight schools, which have been organized under her direction.

The work has been greatly handicapped because of the fact that the bill carried no appropriation with it and funds for the prosecution of the work must be raised by individual effort.

Last Monday in the city of Frankfort one hundred women enlisted to raise $10,000 for the benefit of the commission, each woman assuming the responsibility of raising $100. The work of raising this large sum of money was launched by the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, and the raising of the money will commence at once. One of the principal speakers at this meeting was Grover Springfield, recently taught to read in Anderson county moonlight schools. Mrs. Stewart's slogan is "No adult illiterates in Kentucky in 1920." This is indeed a great and most laudable undertaking.

The famous Appian Way, from Rome to Capua, 142 miles in length, is said to have been in good repair 800 years after it was built, but it is estimated that a similar road today would cost from $50,000 to $200,000 per mile, and in south Florida, where more. Those old Romans, while at the height of their glory, didn't build good roads.
