SUNSTROKES.

Don't ever undertake to get rich by "bulling" a "bear" market, unless you have access to a life insurance surplus.

Some men are born infamous, some gradually lose their reputations, and some have their reputations taken away from them by committees of investigation.

According to Wm. E. Curtis, in The Chicago Record-Herald, Eastern tourists spend $26,000,000 in California every year, and right in the vicinity of Los Angeles, too.

The scientists claim now that there are 100,000 ants in a hill, instead of 800,000. This is the official census, and is not figured as the city directory man generally estimates it.

Since two negroes have been bleached out almost white after a six months' term in the Macon, Ga., jail, the black folks of that section are anxious to serve a term there.

A recent count shows that there are 10,000 millionaires in the world, more than half of whom live in this country. Still, we had supposed that Pittsburgh alone had more than 10,000 of them.

IN THE RIGHT TIME.

The London Financial News, writing of the investigation of the life insurance companies, says that the chief result of the investigation, thus far, is to show that "graft permeates high financial circles quite as generally as it does the lowest class of political circles." It goes on to say that "it is probably a safe assertion that every large financial institution in New York would show the same amount of graft if an official Legislative committee could be appointed to investigate, with the same power as that now looking into insurance affairs; and in the case of railroads and similar corporations the entire situation is honeycombed with graft."

These are strong words to appear in one of the leading financial publications of Europe, says The Wall Street Journal. Such a foreign view as this of the administration of American corporations is most unpleasant to contemplate. If entertained generally in business circles in Europe, it would have a depressing effect upon the standing of American securities and credit abroad, were it not for the undepicted fact of the enormous prosperity of American business. The graft in our corporations, even though it may have gone as far as The London Financial News, has not gone so far as to unsettle the foundations and disturb the solvency of our business institutions. This fact is necessary to reiterate time and again because it is the saving clause of the situation. The graft has been disclosed just in the right time.

DAILY AT LIVE OAK.

The last issue of The Suwannee Democrat, published at Live Oak, contains the following announcement:

"Beginning with Tuesday, November 7th, The Suwannee Democrat will begin the publication of a daily morning paper. Definite arrangements for the new publication have been made upon a scale and after a plan which will insure to this section of the State a daily paper in keeping with the development and progress of Live Oak. Every department will be carefully and comprehensively covered, and the greatest enterprise and care will be exercised in covering the local news field. The Daily Democrat will pursue the same policy it has followed in its efforts to assist in the growth and business and industrial development of Live Oak and Suwannee county. The new daily is to be under the same management as The Weekly Democrat, the only acquisition to the staff being Mr. J. O. LaFontaine, formerly city editor of The Florida Times-Union, who is to have charge of the news department of the daily and who is to give his best efforts toward making The Daily Democrat the best daily paper in the State outside of Jacksonville and the other larger cities of Florida. Mr. LaFontaine has had extensive experience in fields of this character, and is known as one of the most progressive and enterprising newspaper men in the State.

"The Daily Democrat is to be launched by its founders with a full degree of confidence that it will meet with cordial as well as material support from the people of Live Oak and Suwannee county."

Our sister city is one of the most wide-awake in the State, and the daily will no doubt be given a hearty support. Mr. J. O. LaFontaine, who is to have charge of the news department, is well known to the people of Gainesville, where he passed many years and served The Sun as city editor, in which capacity he proved himself one of the best and most persistent workers, possessing marked ability in that line. He has won his spurs by dint of tireless labor in the line of work in which he has been engaged, and we assure the people of Live Oak that they have one of the ablest newspaper men in the State at the head of The Daily Democrat.

May success attend the efforts of the new enterprise is the hearty wish of The Sun.

ALFALFA.

The sowing of alfalfa has taken hold of the popular mind in the South, at last. We receive many inquiries by mail about the planting of this valuable crop and many personal inquiries as we travel around attending the farmers' institutes; so we do not think we can write about it too often, in view of its value as a food for all stock. We do not advise any one to begin on a large scale, but do advise all to plant from one to five acres, according to their means and number of stock. There is no crop in that responds to thorough clean work and high manuring like alfalfa. To secure a good stand you must have fine silt, and to make it grow ahead of the weeds and grass the first year, until the roots get a firm hold in the soil, it requires liberal quantity of highly ammoniated manure. Stable manure and cotton seed are the best; in absence of these use guano at rate of six hundred pounds to the acre broadcast. If your land is deficient in vegetable matter or humus, you can use the "nitro fixing bacteria," but in rich land this is unnecessary. The only good we can see of this bacteria, is to help secure a stand in depleted lands. To sum up concisely, break your land deep, put on your manure broadcast, then harrow until it is as smooth and as fine as an ash bank, then sow your seed, from 10 to 15 pounds per acre, and roll the surface well. This will nearly always insure you a good stand.

Now in September for fall or in February or March for spring. Cut its early time it blooms, no matter how often. Many lose their stand by allowing it to go to seed. You can cut from four to five times a year, and the oftener the greater yield you will get. If you do not get a good stand let it remain and next season disk with a cut-away harrow, reseed and roll again, and thus you can make the stand perfect. Our advice is to start at once and learn by experience all about growing this valuable crop. Prof. Spillman says at Union, Alabama, they raise $75 worth of pork from ten acres of alfalfa the first year. The best way is to cut it and feed green, but you can turn hogs upon it by putting rings in their nose. You can graze cattle upon it also if you do not allow them to run on it long at a time and to eat it down close. If they bite the crown out, which forms just above the ground, it will kill it.—Florida Fruit and Truck Grower.
