

COUGHS AND COLDS IN CHILDREN

Recommendation of a Well Known Chicago Physician.

I use and prescribe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for almost all obstinate, constricted coughs, with direct results. I prescribe it to children of all ages. Am glad to recommend it to all in need and seeking relief from colds and coughs and bronchial affections. It is non-narcotic and safe in the hands of the most unprofessional. A universal remedy for all mankind.—Mrs. MARY R. MELLENDY, M. D., Ph. D., Chicago, Ill. This remedy is for sale by all drug stores.

Florida Sugar and Syrup.

Preparations are being made for the completion of a syrup mill at Quincy, in Gadsden county, which will be in operation in time to work up the product of that section that is now being grown. The plant is being erected by the Florida Sumatra and Havana Company, one of the great firms which has done so much for Gadsden county in the production of the finer grades of wrapper tobacco. It is estimated that the company will manufacture this season 1,000 barrels of syrup of superior quality. Next year the fact that the mill is established will doubtless encourage the cultivation of a much larger area in sugar cane. St. Johns county took the premium at the state fair this year for the best sugar cane in the state. It competed, too, with some of the best sugar-growing counties. Those who were present from this county were agreed that if St. John's county had competed for the best syrup it would have easily carried off the honors. What Gadsden county is doing in the way of establishing mills to manufacture, St. Johns should duplicate in the establishment of mills for the purpose of both syrup and sugar-making. We have plenty of the right kind of soil for its proper cultivation, and it only needs some one to build a mill and encourage the farmers of the county to raise the cane.—St. Augustine Record.

Coughing Spell Caused Death.

"Pery Duckwell, aged 25 years, choked to death early yesterday morning at his home, in the presence of his wife and child. He contracted a slight cold a few days ago and paid but little attention to it. Yesterday morning he was seized with a fit of coughing which continued for some time. His wife sent for a physician, but before he could arrive another coughing spell came on and Duckwell died from suffocation.—St. Louis Globe Democrat, Dec. 1, 1901. Ballard's Horehound Syrup would have saved him. 25c, 50c and $1.00 at D. G. Smith's.

What They Do.

A prominent Florida man in speaking of the State Press says: "When it comes to considering what has been done for Florida by her papers, the high moral tone of the press, the excellence of every feature, and the fact that not one of them is receiving the patronage in return which they deserve, the man who raises his voice against the Florida press is striking a blow at his state, and doing the part of an absolute ingrate. The Florida press has never been appreciated as it should be. In every way it is far ahead of the press of any state in the Union, according to population, and is improving every day despite the poor support it receives. There are too many men who scorn and scoff at their home paper. The papers are as necessary to the people in these days of advancement as is the educational system. The papers are doing their part in the fight for progress and good government, and when they make a statement they are heeded by the few, if not by the many. The press of Florida has never contemplated a trust, and has not even protected its interests as it should."

Favorite Family Remedy.

Frequently accidents occur in the household, which cause burns, cuts, sprains and bruises; for use in such cases, Ballard's Snow Lintiment has for many years been the constant favorite family remedy. 25c, 50c and $1.00 at D. G. Smith's.

Ballard's Horehound Syrup

Immediately relieves hoarse, croupy cough, oppressed, rattling, rasping and difficult breathing. Henry C. Stearns, druggist, Shullsburg, Wisconsin, writes, May 20, 1901: "I have been selling Ballard's Horehound Syrup for two years, and have never had a preparation that has given better satisfaction. I notice that when I sell a bottle, they come back for more. I can honestly recommend it. 25c, 50c and $1.00 at D. G. Smith's.

The Last Veteran.

The following gem was written by Edwin D. Lambright, of the Tam; a Tribune, one of the brightest young newspaper men in the South, and published during the encampment at Tampa last week:

He was the last veteran; of all those who had fought for home and right, he alone was left alive.

And now Death came to lay its hands upon him. One soldier's grave was yet unfilled, and the sleepless sexton waited, leaning on his spade.

A little patch of sunlight fell upon the coverlet, and the dying man placed his only hand there, that the tender warmth might kiss it with its lips of gold.

And the words he spoke were as the words of one who dreams of distant things; for they had a mystic sweetness and Death tarried that it too might hear.

Now I know that the dying have visions, for the words he spoke were these:

"Bring me the rusty musket and the faded coat of gray, for yonder, in the valley, I can see the army gathering.

Long ago, I thought the war was over, but I must have been mistaken; surely that is my general yonder, calling to me and waving his sword, lest I come too late to join them.

"Somehow, I dreamed that they were all dead, and that I was the last of the glorious number left on earth.

"See! They are marching now, a mighty host of heroes, with their feet no longer bare and their flags no longer tattered. On they go, and I see them climbing the golden sunrise hills, into an endless day!

"Company after company, battalion after battalion, regiment after regiment—and yonder rise the white walls of the city which they mean to take.

"But from the battlements of the city no menacing guns are pointed; no sentinel paces the ramparts, there seems to be no apprehension of danger; no preparations for attack.

"But look! The army is entering the wide portals; not a shot; not a struggle; no dead or dying men.

"Ah! I see—I see—I know why the conquest is bloodless, for the name of the city is Peace!"

The little patch of sunlight faded and the soul of the soldier passed; and the sexton, leaning upon his spade, smiled and looked into the grave.

A Good Cough Medicine.

[From the Gazette, Townsboro, Australia.]
I had Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an excellent medicine. I have been suffering from a severe cough for the last two months, and it has effected a cure. I have great pleasure in recommending it. W. C. WOCKNER. This is the opinion of one of our oldest and most respected residents, and has been voluntarily given in good faith that others may try the remedy and be benefited, as was Mr. Wockner. This remedy is sold by all druggists.

A Test.

He loves me, He loves me not.—New York Journal.

A Thousand Dollars' Worth of Good.

A. H. Thurnes, a well known coal operator of Buffalo, O., writes, "I have been afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble for years, passing gravel or stones with excruciating pain. I got no relief from medicines until I began taking Foley's Kidney Cure, then the result was surprising. A few doses started the brick dust like fine stones, and now I have no pain across my kidneys and I feel like a new man. It has done me a $1000 worth of good." Sold by D. G. Smith.

A Jab at Dudes.

"Beware of dudes, girls," said the Rev. D. F. Fox in a sermon preached for the benefit of the marriageable young women of the California avenue Congregational church in Chicago recently. "Dudes are triflers. They are giggling jumping-jacks. All they know how to do is to throw cigarette smoke into their hollow heads in a hopeless chase after brains and to convert their nostrils into smoke stacks."

After Dr. Fox had said a great many other uncomplimentary things about dudes, he told the young women of his congregation there were other kinds of young men they should avoid as well when seeking a husband, such as the "dead-game sport," the young man who promised to reform after marriage, but never did so, Dr. Fox said, and the young man who "didn't believe in religion." Marriage with any would surely wreck a girl's life, said the pastor.

Then Dr. Fox described to the young women present the kinds of young men that made the best husbands, thereby causing the escorts of the young women to feel extremely self-conscious.

"He should attend church," affirmed the pastor. "If he attends your church so much the better. He should also be a young man of character—of too much character to spend upon you more than he can afford. In conclusion, don't marry even the nicest young man unless you are desperately in love with him."—Tampa Herald.

A Boy's Life Saved from Membranous Croup.

C. W. Lynch, a prominent citizen of Winchester, Ind., writes, "My little boy had a severe attack of membranous croup, and only got relief after taking Foley's Honey and Tar. He got relief after one dose and I feel that it saved the life of my boy." Refuse substitutes. Sold by D. G. Smith.

Hearst Paper at Washington.

Washington, Nov. 26.—A strong fearless democratic newspaper at the nation's capital is assured by the definite announcement that December 1, the Morning Times will then be taken charge of by William R. Hearst. At the Times office this announcement of Mr. Munsey's intention to abandon the morning field was made. This was accompanied by a notice of discharge to a dozen or more of the men who have been working on the editorial and reportorial staff, and also by the information that Washington is to have in place of the Morning Times, a Hearst newspaper. The name of this new paper has not been given, but it is expected to be "The American," in line with Mr. Hearst's Chicago and New York papers. This latter retains its first name, "The Journal," simply so far as it is necessary to hold the press franchises. Mr. Munsey will continue the publication of the Evening Times. It seems to be his intention to confine himself here, as in New York to the afternoon field. Among the men he retains is Will Richardson, formerly of Atlanta, who is managing editor of the Times.

In a talk with friends, Mr. Hearst has stated that his Washington paper would be run on a dignified plane, such as he considered in keeping with the Washington field. It will, of course, be strongly democratic. There has been no democratic newspaper here, the Times, under Mr. Munsey's ownership, being independent and in a sense non-political.

A Timely Topic.

At this season of coughs and colds it is well to know that Foley's Honey and Tar is the greatest throat and lung remedy. It cures quickly and prevents serious results from a cold. Sold by D. G. Smith.
