

Volcano in a Glacier.

Iceland for a number of months last summer was shaken by severe earthquakes. Two months ago the subterranean fire that had caused these upheavals found an outlet and in a region in which probably fire never broke out in the whole globe except in Iceland. This eruption took place in one of the gigantic glaciers which cover a great portion of the southeast of Iceland. This strange phenomenon was witnessed by a postman who was crossing the sands with ponies and mails a few miles from the glacier. The subterranean fire welled up from the interior of the glacier and forced its way through the enormous mass of ice.

The postman suddenly heard a long-drawn, groaning sound and looking up saw immense blocks of ice being hurled high into the air, followed immediately by torrents of water bearing a number of huge ice blocks to the plain below. The whole tract between the glacier and the sea was soon dotted with enormous ice floes, rendering the plain quite impassable. The postman was delayed at a neighboring station for ten days, during which time the eruption lasted.

Preparation of Seal Skins.

The skins of the ordinary seal, and that of the fur seal, are somewhat similar, but the former lacks the fine, soft, woolly under fur, which alone constitutes the seal skin of commerce. To remove the upper fur, the skin was formerly always, and still is frequently shaved on the lower surface, and, as the long hairs are more deeply implanted than the under fur, their roots are cut so that the hair is readily brushed out. This process is technically termed "pulling."

Left Degrade!

Not of worldly goods, but of all earthly comforts, is the poor wretch tormented by malaria. The fell scourge is, however, short of its thorn in advance by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, its only sure preventive and remedy. Dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, rheumatism, nervousness and kidney complaints are also among the bodily afflictions which this beneficent medicine overcomes with certainty. Use it systematically.

Sin may be ugly, but it understands the art of beauty culture.

A NEW FLORAL WONDER.

Seagull Orchid the Only One of its Species in Existence.

The annual Temple Garden flower show opens to-day, and among the exhibits will be an extraordinary orchid from the collection of Mr. Sander, of St. Albans. It is a specimen of the Cattleya Reapeckiana.

The wings of its seagull-like blossoms are white as snow, while the body portion is of gold and vermilion, eight inches across. It is the largest and most beautiful Cattleya ever known to the civilized world, and it would take 1,000 guineas to buy it. Arnold, the famous orchid collector, sent it home to Mr. Sander just before he lost his life while hunting for further similar treasures. Arnold was the man who, while traveling for Messrs. Sander in Venezuela, made the acquaintance of a young fellow who appeared to be roving for pleasure. Arnold traveled with him for some distance, but a few chance words in a wayside inn made Arnold aware that the supposed pleasure-seeker was really another orchid collector, bent on the same errand as himself, and using every means to supplant him. At once Arnold drew his revolver, and then and there gave his acquaintance the option of either fighting a duel with him or retiring from the field. The latter course was chosen.

Arnold's death soon afterward, under circumstances which have never yet been cleared up, is by no means a solitary example of the perils of orchid hunting, and though in the more civilized districts the work is comparatively easy, there are still countries in which an orchid seeker may be said to carry his life in his hands. Mr. Sander told a reporter that he has at the present time a collector who had been in his service for years, and was well acquainted with Arnold, who, for love of his work, voluntarily offered to go to the East in search of a splendid orchid known to exist there, but of which hitherto only one solitary specimen has been sent home. A magnificent kind in floral beauty, it surpasses all its kindred, but its habitat is located on the terra of skull hunters and skull collectors.

Yet this enthusiast, fully aware of the risks he runs, has started with the determination to return with it. Those who know the treacherous character of the Japan Sea natives, and the deadly nature of the climate found in the jungle and swampy districts, will obtain a slight idea of his undertaking. Once before, taking advantage of a punitive expedition organized by the chief of a small island against a neighboring tribe, he was within a short distance of the locality in which he believed the coveted treasure to exist, and, possibly, had the tribe he accompanied been victorious, orchid collectors would have been all the richer for one more of nature's choicest gems. But it was not to be. The opposing tribe had received notice, and the collector's friends met with such a warm reception as caused them to retreat with more precipitation than in such a climate and under such circumstances is conducive to comfort. More than one narrow escape befell the collector. The scar from a jagged fish spear which grazed his cheek still remains, and shortly after he found himself facing two of the enemy armed with their curved krisbes, but fortunately he reached the boats in safety, though with the total loss of his equipment, and finally arrived at Singapore. One experience such as this would be sufficient for most men, but, nothing daunted, he has returned again to try to secure the orchid. No news has yet been heard of his luck.—London Times.

How the Ostrich Runs.

A writer in the Zoologist, who has been engaged for nine years in ostrich farming in South Africa, Conwright Schreiner, corrects a prevalent misconception concerning the manner in which these great birds run. It is generally stated that, when running, the ostrich spreads out its wings, and thus skims lightly along the ground, but, according to Mr. Schreiner, this is not correct. "When a bird really settles itself to run," he says, "it holds its head lower than usual, and a little forward, with a deep loop in the neck. The neck vibrates sinusoidally, but the head remains steady, thus enabling the bird, even at top speed, to look around with an unshaken glance in any direction. The wings lie along the sides about on a level with, or a little higher than, the back, and are held loosely just free of the plunging thigh. There is no attempt to hold them extended, or to derive any assistance from them as organs of flight."

ENGLISH PRESS IS AROUSED

OVER BAD TREATMENT OF A NEWS-PAPER MAN BY SPAIN.

CHRONICLE'S STRONG EDITORIAL.

British Lion May Be Awakened Sufficiently to Call Spain to Terms Regarding Alleged Outrage.

The London Daily Chronicle in its issue of Tuesday morning, commenting upon the death in Cuba last week of W. Hughes, correspondent of Black and White, (newspaper) of London, who is said to have starved to death in the streets of Havana, after having been maltreated and robbed by a party of Spanish guerillas, says:

"If the story of his death is true, fresh execration of Spanish action will arise, and the British government may have something to say."

Hughes was found dead on the Prado, Havana, Thursday night a week ago. He had recently visited Pinar del Rio with a pass from the military governor. It is said that while there a party of guerillas in broad daylight and in the presence of Spanish officers, assaulted him and robbed him of everything he had except his clothes. Hughes, it is alleged, appealed to the military commander for help and demanded the restitution of his property, but was only laughed at.

He was obliged to return to Havana, walking the entire distance, and reached the city ragged and starving. Having lost his passport, he could not establish his identity or communicate with his friends in England. He starved to death in the streets. Hughes had earned an excellent reputation as a war correspondent in Africa, having followed the Sudan expedition, and also traveled in Western Africa. His father is a retired British army surgeon. The case has been reported to the British consul at Havana.

GEORGE PULLMAN DIES.

The Well Known Palace Car Magnate Suddenly Stricken.

George M. Pullman, the palace car magnate, died at his residence in Chicago at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Mr. Pullman, who was in his 66th year, had not been enjoying his usual good health during the summer. The extreme heat of last week greatly aggravated his disease, known to medical science as angina pectoris, but no serious trouble was anticipated.

Mr. Pullman was at his office in the Pullman building daily and dined Monday with friends at his club. Later in the evening he remarked having a slight pain in the back. He retired at his usual early hour. At 4 o'clock members of the household were awakened by a disturbance in Mr. Pullman's chamber and upon entering found him standing in the center of the room, dazed and apparently suffering excruciating pains in the region of the heart. The family physician was hastily summoned and restoratives were applied, but to no purpose, and at 5 o'clock the millionaire manufacturer and philanthropist passed away without speaking and with scarcely a struggle.

Mrs. Pullman, who, with her two sons—George and Sanger has been on an eastern tour, was wired at once.

George M. Pullman went to Chicago in 1859. He at once took a prominent place in business circles. In 1880, owing to the growing demands of his manufacturing interests, he put into execution a pet theory for the establishment of a "model town" as a home for his car works and the thousands of employees. A site was selected on the shores of Lake Calumet, twelve miles south of Chicago. Mr. Pullman devoted his personal attention to the erection of the little city and succeeded even beyond his own expectations in making it a model town. Pullman now has a population of 11,000.

Mr. Pullman's wealth is variously estimated at from $12,000,000 to $30,000,000. His financial interests were confined to a few corporations, the bulk of the holdings being stock in the Pullman Palace Car company, of which he owned about one-fifth.

WAS COMMANDER OF MONITOR.

Admiral Worden, Retired, Died At the Age of Eighty Years.

Admiral John L. Worden, retired, died in Washington Monday. He commanded the Monitor at the time of its engagement with the Merrimac at Hampton Roads during the late war. In 1886 he was retired with the full rank and pay of an admiral, the only instance of the kind on record. He also received the thanks of congress for his gallantry in the war. Pneumonia was the immediate cause of Admiral Worden's death. He was eighty years of age, and up to a few days ago was in very good health.

CUSTOM RECEIPTS HEAVY.

The Treasury Department Announces the Largest Income For One Day.

At the treasury department attention is called to the fact that Tuesday's receipts from customs were $681,423, which is considerably in excess of any previous day since the new tariff act went into effect.

As compared with the same day last year this is an increase of $918,300, or about 85 per cent.

C.

A system of water works to cost $200,000 will be put in at Augusta, Ga., and other plants will be constructed at Hazlehurst, Miss.; Lumberton, N. C., and Canadian, Tex.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

ENGLAND AGAINST BIMETALLISM.

Plan of Monetary Commissioners Comes to Naught.

Advices of Monday from London state that the United States monetary commissioners have received no official information regarding the action taken by the British cabinet on Saturday last. Private advices, however, convince them that the cabinet has dealt the death blow to their mission.

It is expected the commissioners will shortly be informed that her majesty's government regrets being unable to accede to their proposals, but is willing to listen to any other plan they may suggest.

But both parties to the conference know that no other practical scheme can be advanced.

In the event of the expected reply being received, the United States commissioners will return to the United States.

The commissioners believe their failure means that no further effort in behalf of bimetalism will be made for many years to come. They attribute their failure to the opposition of the bankers and of the London Times.

Until these forces were aroused all signs pointed to the co-operation of the British government.

TO CURE MILLIONAIRE ROUSS.

The "Great Physician" of India Comes to American Shores.

From far-away India a man has come to America to practice an ancient medical art upon New York's blind millionaire, Charles Broadway Rouss. He is Dr. Gueph Norman, of Burma, and he has now had Mr. Rouss for a patient for over a week.

Dr. Norman's proposal to restore the blind to sight was treated with disdain by the regular medical fraternity, but if the patient himself is to be believed a wonder has already been worked. Mr. Rouss says he can see a little.

He is yet skeptical, however, and Dr. Norman will have to do much more before he establishes the reputation here that he is said to enjoy in the Orient—that of the Great Physician.

DENIAL FROM BRYAN.

Says That He Has Not Expressed Preference in the New York Campaign.

Referring to the belief expressed by the followers of Henry George that recent utterances of William Jennings Bryan indicated his support of the George ticket in the Greater New York campaign, Mr. Bryan wired the following to the Associated Press Monday night:

"Norfolk, Neb., October 18.—I have not expressed any opinion in regard to the New York mayoralty campaign, and do not care to express any opinion in regard to it."
W. J. BRYAN.

TALKED CIVIL SERVICE.

Cabinet Devotes Several Hours in Discussing the Subject.

A Washington special says: The cabinet Tuesday devoted considerable time to a discussion of the civil service and how to obtain the best results from the recent order promulgated by the president.

A decision was reached that each department should prepare and adopt regulations to meet the order.

While each department will formulate its own regulations, there was a general sentiment that it would be well to have them along the general lines of the regulations issued by the treasury department to carry out the president's order.

SIXTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING

Of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of Methodist Episcopal Church.

The sixteenth annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church began at Baltimore Wednesday morning and will last a week. About two hundred delegates from every state in the union are present and it is expected that business of great importance will be transacted at the present session.

MRS. LYNSS ESCAPES

The Hospital and a Fearful Operation.

Hospitals in great cities are sad places to visit. Three-fourths of the patients lying on those snow-white beds are women and girls.

Why should this be the case? Because they have neglected themselves! Women as a rule attach too little importance to first symptoms of a certain kind. If they have toothache, they will try to save the tooth, though many leave even this too late. They comfort themselves with the thought that they can replace their teeth; but they cannot replace their internal organs!

Every one of those patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warnings in the form of bearing-down feelings, pain at the right or the left of the womb, nervous dyspepsia, pain in the small of the back, the "blues," or some other unnatural symptom, but they did not heed them.

Don't drag along at home or in the shop until you are finally obliged to go to the hospital and submit to horrible examinations and operations. Build up the female organs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will save you from the hospital. It will put new life into you.

The following letter shows how Mrs. Lyness escaped the hospital and a fearful operation. Her experience should encourage other women to follow her example. Write to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I thank you very much for what you have done for me, for I had given up in despair. Last February, I had a miscarriage, and by overwork. It affected my heart, and me to have sinking spells three or four days, lasting sometimes half a day, and could not be left alone. I flowed constantly. The doctor called twice a week, and once a day for four or five months. Finally he said I would have to undergo an operation. Then I commenced Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after one week I began to recover and steadily improved until I was completely well. By taking the Pinkham medicine, I avoided an operation which the doctor said I would certainly have to undergo. I am gaining every day and will cheerfully tell anyone what you have done for me."—Mrs. LYNSS, 10 Frederick St., Rochester, N. Y.

ALABAMA LADIES

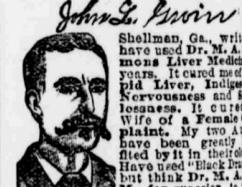

Brave as Lions.

Mrs. Mattie Owen's Story.

Insufficient Menstruation
Is sometimes caused by non-development of the parts, sometimes by obstruction of the month of vagina, and sometimes by unbalanced condition of the system, which tends to nature from overbearing any exposure, such as fright or getting feet wet. Dr. Simmons' Squaw Wine Wine builds the system and cures the disorder. Dr. W. A. Simmons' Liver Medicine cleanses the constipation, indigestion, loss of appetite, pains in back, lips, head and which are usually present.

John S. Brown

Skin and Eyes Yellow.
This disorder finds its direct cause in derangement of the liver and its allied glands. The bile, instead of passing out through the bowels, has been retained, and finding no outlet through its usual channels, has accumulated and been absorbed by the absorbents and distributed throughout the system, poisoning the blood and causing all the functions of the body to be deranged. Liver Medicine should be taken regularly until the complexion becomes clear.

Spurs Frauds that court your money. The imitations that try to take the place of the Original Dr. W. A. Simmons' Liver Medicine, while by interested dealers sold as "the same," are advertised as "the same," and you may be deceived for your money at the expense of your health. Beware!
