

Thomas Atkins.
The name of Tommy Atkins, which is a sobriquet of the British private soldier, the world over, in Hong Kong, Mandalay, New Zealand, the Soudan and the Transvaal, had an official origin, and was originally used in the instructions to non-commissioned officers, as John Doe and Richard Roe are used in contract forms and other legal papers, for purposes of illustration. Sample blank returns were furnished to show sergeants and corporals and recruiting officers how genuine ones should be made out, and Thomas Atkins, private, Company B, was the fictitious name always used. Model individual reports were also included in the regulations, signed "Thomas Atkins, private, Company B," or "Thomas Atkins, X, his mark." Hence when a recruit arrived at a garrison the soldiers usually addressed him as Thomas Atkins until they found out his real name. Drunken soldiers reported themselves as Thomas Atkins when they were taken up, until the public took it up, and Tommy Atkins became an affectionate synonym for the gallant warriors of Her Majesty's land forces.—Chicago Record.

Stimulating Stamp Sales.
The postmaster of a little town in Ohio adopted an ingenious plan to increase the sale of postage stamps and so increase his salary. He gave a drink with every ten stamps and gave a stamp with every drink. Everybody in town soon developed an intense desire for stamps. The postmaster had, however, forgotten the trifling preliminary of taking out a liquor license, and the government, which did not, of course, object to the sale of stamps being stimulated, arrested him for stimulating the people in an illegal manner. A man with such an ingenious turn of mind is, however, not likely to remain long in obscurity. He will be heard from again.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

OPPOSITION TO LONGSTREET

SOUTHERN SENATORS FIGHT HIS CONFIRMATION.

SOME OLD TROUBLES BROUGHT UP.

The Vote, However, Was Favorable and Was One of Confidence in the "Old War Horse."

A Washington special says: The senate spent two hours in executive session Saturday in discussing the nomination of General James Longstreet to be commissioner of railroads, which nomination had come over from Friday because of the objection made then by Senator Vest.

When the nomination was taken up Mr. Vest took the floor and opposed confirmation in a sharp and vigorous speech. He was followed on the same side of the argument by Senators Daniel, Berry and Caffery.

The opposition was based upon the general ground of General Longstreet's connection with the Kellogg-War-mouth faction in politics in Louisiana in the reconstruction days of that state.

Mr. Caffery was especially zealous in his opposition, saying General Longstreet had in those days antagonized the best interests of his state and that for this reason he was opposed to him now. He held that the general's position at that time indicated a want of judgment which would render him incapable of filling so important a position as that of railroad commissioner.

Mr. Vest stated that he had been in Louisiana during the reign of the reconstructionists and knew that party to have been perfidious in its disregard of the best interests of the people, and said General Longstreet's identification with it was sufficient to condemn him in his (Vest's) eyes.

Senator Daniel, while coinciding with these views, also expressed opposition to General Longstreet because of his criticism of General Lee in his book on the war. He did not go into details, but said he could not in his capacity as an adviser to the president in the matter of the appointment consent to such a selection as this and that he must utter his dissent on this as well as on other accounts.

These objections were replied to by Senators Hoar, Candler and Hawley, republicans; Turner, populist, and Bacon, democrat, of Georgia.

The republican senators who spoke characterized the session as a cause which looked very much like the warring of the "bloody shirt."

Senator Bacon said that while a democrat and a southern man, he could not see his way clear to oppose General Longstreet's confirmation. While it was true General Longstreet had identified himself with the republican party after the war, he had, Senator Bacon said, been a gallant confederate officer, and was, on this account, well regarded in the south. Senator Bacon also expressed the opinion that it was time that disagreements which succeeded the war and the friction which resulted therefrom should be forgotten. As for himself, he said, he did not dare perpetuate the memories of that time, and on this account he would sustain the president in his nomination of General Longstreet.

During the discussion there was some reference to the fitness of the general to the office, the declaration being made that he was not competent to perform its duties. Senator White brought out the fact that the general was seventy-seven years of age. The vote for confirmation was 33 to 15.

ECLIPSE VIEWED IN INDIA.

Natives Swarm to Devotional Exercises And Were Somewhat Frightened.

Advices from Bombay state that the eclipse of the sun was accompanied here by a rapid fall of temperature. An earthly smell pervaded the air and the scene resembled a landscape under a wintry English sun. The duration of totality was two minutes, with a marvelous corona of pale silver and blue.

The native astronomers predicted terrible calamities. The natives swarmed to devotional exercises and there was general fasting, but no great alarm.

TALMAGE WEDS AGAIN.

The Noted Divine Marries Mrs. McCutcheon, of Alleghany City.

A Pittsburg, Pa., dispatch says: Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, the noted divine of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Elora McCutcheon Collier, of Alleghany City, were united in marriage Sunday at the McCutcheon residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Talmage met during the past two summers at East Hampton, a Long Island resort, where the romantic courtship, which culminated five months ago in a formal engagement, was carried on. The engagement was kept a profound secret.

FIFTEEN ACRES OF FACTORIES.

Will Manufacture Farming Implements At Marinette, Wis.

Marinette, Wis., capitalists have subscribed $800,000 and organized a stock company to carry on the manufacture of farming implement.

The big plant of A. W. Stevens & Co., at Auburn, N. Y., is to be removed and located in Marinette, just across the river from Menominee. The factory buildings will cover fifteen acres and upwards of 300 hands will be employed in the works.

NO SATURDAY RECESS.

Owing to the Cuban Situation Senate Remained in Session.

So critically is the situation in Cuba regarded in high circles that the United senate remained in session Saturday, although for time out of mind it has been the custom to take a Saturday recess. When the question of adjournment came up in executive session Friday the question was raised whether it were advisable to follow the usual custom and take a recess until Monday.

Senator Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, said that while he had no definite information as to a Cuban crisis and did not know if one were approaching or not, still he thought owing to the seriousness of the situation that the senate had best remain in session in case of the expected or the unexpected happening. His suggestion was concurred in by other senators who regard the situation as very grave.

The navy department has put the flotilla of torpedo boats under cipher orders from General Lee. Should the cables be cut, or messages stopped, owing to accident or to any other cause, the torpedo boats are under orders to proceed at once to Havana to learn the cause. A cipher system has been established between Havana and Key West by which the authorities in Key West hear every hour or so from General Lee. Should this cipher fail to come at any time one or more torpedo boats are under instructions to hasten to Havana without waiting for other orders, either from Lee or Washington.

These are unique orders which are only given under extraordinary circumstances, and the action of the senate, in remaining in session, was the result of important developments in the Cuban question.

Senator Bacon presented a number of petitions from Georgia citizens praying the passage of the so-called anti-scalping bill.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATIONS.

Name of New Jersey's Governor Sent in For Attorney General.

The president sent following nominations to the senate Saturday:

State—John W. Griggs, of New Jersey, to be attorney general; Selah Morrill, of Massachusetts, to be consul at Jerusalem, Syria.

To be collectors customs—C. Wesley Thomas, at Philadelphia; Domingo M. Pappy, at St. Augustine, Fla.

Interior—St. Clair A. Mulholland, pension agent at Philadelphia; Henry S. Chubb, receiver of public moneys at Gainesville, Fla.

Justice—John F. Horr, marshal of the United States for the southern district of Florida; John Eagan, attorney of the United States for the northern district of Florida.

Mr. Griggs is at present governor of New Jersey. It was unofficially announced several weeks ago that he would succeed Mr. McKenna.

EXCITEMENT IN MADRID.

Caused By Reported Movements of American War Ships.

The report that American warships have been ordered to Cuban waters has caused great excitement in Madrid.

The impartial, in the course of a violent article, says: "We see now the eagerness of the yankees to seize Cuba."

A grand banquet was given at the palace Sunday evening in honor of the name day of King Alfonso. The members of the cabinet and the principal members of the diplomatic corps were present.

The cabinet met afterwards and decided—so it is reported—to address a manifesto to the country.

One minister, in the course of an interview, said the government was quite tranquil respecting the movements of the American warships, which were fully known to the minister of marine.

ANTI-JEWISH RIOTS.

Blood Spilled in Streets of Algiers By Mob.

Advices from Algiers state that the anti-Jewish riots were renewed Sunday. The mob invaded the Jewish quarter and pillaged the shops in the Rue Babazoum, driving the Jewish merchants into the street.

A squad of chasseurs was ordered to the scene and charged the mob with drawn swords, but the mob re-formed further on, cheering for the army. Revolvers and daggers were freely used.

GROVER BUYS GAME PRESERVE.

He Will Stock It Thoroughly and Build a Lodge House.

A dispatch from Trenton says: Grover Cleveland has purchased a tract of land near Princeton, N. J., to be used as a game preserve.

This tract consists of eighty-five acres, for which $900 was paid. It is full of rabbits and quail, but Mr. Cleveland intends to stock it with good game and put a pretty little lodge house upon it.

Mr. Cleveland will have his preserve ready by next fall, and he is already preparing to purchase quail, pheasant, partridges, snipe, woodcock, rabbits, foxes, squirrels and English hares.

OPPOSITION TO PLANS

Of Monetary Commission By New York Merchants.

The Merchants' Association of New York, representing thousands of business houses and millions of invested capital, through its representatives to the monetary convention, just adjourned at Indianapolis, has announced that the bill incorporating the plan of the commission will be fought in congress in its present form and changes must be made in it.

HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS.

Keeping Things Hot.
When it is necessary to keep a meat hot place the plate upon the fire over a pan of boiling water, covering the plate with a pan that will fit over the edge of the plate.

Filling Cracks in Floors.
Cracks in floors round the skirting-board or other parts of a room may be neatly and permanently filled up by thoroughly soaking newspaper in paste made of one pound of flour, three quarts of water and a tablespoonful of alum, thoroughly boiled and blended. The mixture will be about as thick as putty, and may be forced into the cracks with a knife. It will harden like papier-mache.

On Ventilating Sleeping Rooms.
The window should be lowered from the top two or three inches every night. If it is also raised an inch at the bottom a current is created in the room by the entrance of the two volumes of air. This keeps the air always sweet and fresh.

Very often mothers do not dare to allow even so small an open space in the window because the bed is necessarily in the line of the draught. In such cases it is wise to make a little window screen of cheesecloth and wood.

On a frame that will exactly fit the window sash across, and that is not higher than three or four inches, tack tightly a loosely woven piece of cheesecloth. Through this the air will filter, rather than blow, and there will be no danger of colds from draughts.

A screen at the foot of the bed is also useful in those rooms where the bed is opposite the window.

But no matter how cold it is or how windy, remember that it is better to wear a night cap and blankets to no end than to keep the window closed and get along with fewer coverlets.

It is not either wise or necessary that an Arctic gale should blow upon one while she sleeps in order that the air in a bedroom be kept fresh. Pneumonia need not be made the inevitable result of fresh air.

And yet night after night they go on filling their lungs with air that has been used so often that it is positively poisonous.—New York Journal.

Recipes.

Pumpkin Cakes.—To one cup of cooked and sifted pumpkin add one well-beaten egg, one cup of milk, one-third teaspoonful of salt, one scant teaspoonful of baking powder and sufficient flour to make a batter.

Beet and Potato Salad.—Cut one-third part cold beets (cooked) and two-thirds cold potato in dice; a small onion. Dressing: Two tablespoons oil, salt, pepper, one pint vinegar. Arrange salad in glass dish; cover with chopped hard boiled eggs, and pour dressing over.

Chesnut Sandwiches.—Boil one pint of chesnuts until tender, remove the husks and skins and rub the chesnuts through a wire sieve with a wooden spoon. Butter the bread, slice thin and spread the chesnut paste over it, a dust of salt, a sprinkle of grated cheese and cover with another slice.

Roasted Onions.—Prepare as for boiling. Parboil twice, cooking twenty minutes; then put in baking pan. Season with salt and pepper. For one dozen onions mix one-third cup water. Pour part over the onions and keep rest for basting. Roast forty minutes (do not let cook too fast), pour cream over and serve hot.

Spanish Potatoes.—Cut three large boiled potatoes in dice. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in pan, add a minced onion and a tiny bit of garlic. Stir until brown, then add two ounces of cheese cut in dice. Pour over half a cup of vinegar; put in the potatoes, season with one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of cayenne pepper, simmer five minutes. Serve.

Artichoke Sauce.—Take the bottoms of twelve artichokes (use the canned), two level teaspoonfuls of butter, one level teaspoonful of flour, one small onion and two sprays of parsley; mince all very fine. Let fall this fry for one-half hour; when browned, put in two teaspoonfuls of boiling water, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of pepper. Let simmer until thick. This is a delicious sauce to pour over a broiled beefsteak. The sauce is always very dark.

Dromedaries That Smoke.

Dromedaries are said to be particularly fond of tobacco smoke, and can be made to do almost anything under its influence. Travelers in Egypt, it is asserted, rely more on the tobacco smoke for their control over these huge beasts than anything else. When traveling on long journeys the dromedaries are in many cases required to travel night and day without rest, and the beasts are kept up to their tasks by smoking cigars. The driver carries a triangular piece of wood, which is pierced at one point like a cigar-holder. This is inserted in the mouth of the beast, the cigar being lit and pressed into the hole in the same fashion followed by man. The dromedary immediately closes its eyes and puffs away through its nostrils until the cigar is burned away. The indulgence appears to refresh it and the keeper has no difficulty in persuading the animal to plod on without further rest.

Message On a Cartridge.

On a cartridge that had failed to do its work in sending him out of the world, James Young inscribed a message.

He wished to commit suicide. He had already written to his wife a farewell letter. The bullet failed to do its work. Then he scrawled a few lines upon it, telling that it had failed to explode and that he would use another to finish the job. He did and the cartridge acted as a paper weight to the letter he had written to his wife.—New York Journal.

ENGLAND'S WHEAT FIELDS.

Many of Them Are More Than Ten Centuries Old.

Some very competent writers, frightened by the disproportion between the wheat grown in England and the quantity needed for our daily bread, have recently urged the establishment of public granaries, for use in time of war. The only wonder is that the figures which impress them have not made more impression on the public. But while hundreds of thousands of acres of good wheat lands lie uncultivated in England, the proposal to buy and hoard foreign corn is rather too previous. Our best public granaries are the wheat fields of old England, which have fallen into partial ruin and premature decay.

The wheat fields of England have two special claims to consideration, based on their merits, and apart from sentiment, though we have lately begun to apprehend that national sentiment in great concerns may be as valuable as public spirit in small ones. But the fact remains that the wheat fields of England are the oldest national industries in this country, and the most productive in the world.

A wheat field a thousand years old is quite a common sight in this country. Of course, it has not grown a crop of corn every year in the ten centuries, but during that long sequence of ages, in the fixed and abiding order of this in the fixed and abiding order of this ancient country, that particular area of land has been cultivated, with the production of wheat as its main object, and it has remained as part of the English granary from the days of Edward the Confessor until those of Victoria. Many of the wheat fields are far more ancient than this, but the record of Doomsday Book is a practical voucher for a period of 1,000 years. The custom of the Saxon cultivators, and the evidence of local names, are proof of a still greater antiquity of cultivation on some of the best corn land; and beyond the days of the Saxon lie the last two centuries of Roman occupation, when England was the great wheat producing country of the west, and supplied the population of Rome with daily bread.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of our ancestral corn lands is the small degree in which their appearance can have changed in the course of ten or twelve centuries. Their area is much greater than in the old times, when villages were separated by wide woodlands, and only grouped and contiguous in the open country. The early Saxon times were not days in which men cared to lay field to field. There was plenty of ground available, and of this the villagers cultivated and sowed with corn as much as they needed for their year's supply.—London Weekly Country Life.

Chronic Rheumatism.

From the Industrial News, Jackson, Mich.
The subject of this sketch is fifty-six years of age, and actively engaged in farming. When seventeen years old he hurt his shoulder and a few years after commenced to have rheumatic pains in it. On taking a slight cold or the least strain, sometimes without any apparent cause whatever, the trouble would start and he would suffer the most excruciating pains.

He suffered for over thirty years, and the last decade has suffered so much that he was unable to do any work. To this frequent occurrences of dizzy spells were added, making him almost a helpless invalid.

IN ALL SORTS OF WEATHER.

He tried the best physicians but without being benefited and has used several specific rheumatic cures, but was not helped. About one year and six months ago he read in this paper of a case somewhat similar to his which was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and concluded to try this remedy.

After taking the first box he felt somewhat better, and after using three boxes, the pains entirely disappeared, the dizziness left him and he has now for over a year been entirely free from all his former troubles and enjoys better health than he has had since his boyhood.

He is loud in his praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and will gladly corroborate the above statements. His post-office address is Lorenzo Neeley, Horton, Jackson County, Michigan.

All the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves are contained in a condensed form, in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. All druggists sell them.

A highly respectable lady, of religious tendencies, who lives on Pacific avenue, was informed by her cook that she proposed to get married.

"I hope, Mary, that you have given the matter serious consideration?"

"Oh, I have, ma'am," was the earnest reply, "I've been to two fortune tellers and a clairvoyant, and looked in the sign book and dreamed on a lock of his hair, and been to one of those astrologers, and to a meejum, and they all tell me to go ahead, ma'am. I ain't one to marry reckless like, ma'am."—Exchange.
