WILSON ADMITTED TO BOND FOR SHOOTING OF COOK.

BY JOHN C. TRICE

The preliminary hearing before Judge Mcleod Tuesday, at which Capt. B. Wilson was charged with the murder of Marvin Cook drew a crowd and consumed most of the day. The result was that Capt. Wilson was admitted to bail in the snm of $2,500, thus disproving the charge of murder, though the Judge thought there was sufficient reason to believe the laws had been violated to hold the accused for a grand jury investigation.

Murder is not bailable, and the small bond imposed makes it certain that all thoughts of murder had been driven out of the Judge's mind.

The prosecution was conducted by Judge Oven, of Tallahassee, and the defense by Cols. Hodges, of Tallahassee, and Walker of this place. The prosecution was one of the most determined ever witnessed in the courthouse at this place, producing an array of evidence mechanically precise, so much so that it failed to impress the court. The witnesses all seemed to be laboring under the impression the deceased had a right to make the accused get up in the middle of the night and open up his place of business against his will, notwithstanding he had been there beforethe store was closed and could have made his purchases beforehand. It was admitted by all the witnesses for the prosecution that they had been there three times and had been pursuaded to go away. When one man had failed on the third round. Cook went to try his hand, and got shot.

The defense was that Capt Wilson did not know who it was calling and being unable to get them to go away and leave him and after Cook went to his window and tired to raise it, he up his place of business near hours of midnight against his

ANNANIAS' SUN HAS SET

No longer does Annanias hold the record as the world's greatest prevaricator. Woodville has produced one greater. It is with regret we cannot give his name, for his fame should go ringing down the ages. Like his kind he stabs incognito, and uses a many edged sword. Here is his latest:

Woodville, Fla., July 18.—Mr. Cook a brother of Representative Cook of Franklin county is dead as the result or a fight at Panacea Springs, in Wakulla county, Thursday. Decenta Wilson also of that vicinity, is charged with his murder.

There had been previous trouble in this locality, and it is alleged that something about whiskey was the cause. At that time a Mr. Jenkins was shot and killed.

Thursday Mr. Cook and Wilson met and had some words. No one seems to know exactly what the row started about, but in a short time Mr. Wilson drew a revolver and fired. The bullet entered Mr. Cook's stomach and he fell to the ground. He died in a few hours.

There is only three true statements in the above, and they are so intevwoven with falsehood it is hard to detect them. Cook is dead. He was hit in the stomach, and Capt. Wilson is charged with the killing. This was proven at the preliminary hearing not to be murder, and the accused was released on a small bond, after the most determined prosecution ever witnessed in the Wakulla courthouse.

There was no general fight. In fact no fight. Just an attempt to make the old man open
