Dr. Crippen, the American dentist wanted for the murder of his wife in London, and who for three weeks has mystified the detective forces of Europe, including Scotland Yard, was arrested on the arrival of the Canadian Pacific line steamer Montrose on its arrival at Father Point, Quebec, last Sunday. The doctor admits his identity and that of his companion, Ethel Clare Leneve, and will not fight extradition.

A committee of the State Medical Society composed of Drs. E. W. Warren of Palatka, E. Van Hook of Ocala and G. E. Henson of Crescent City, is preparing, under the leadership of the last named, "to carry on an active campaign against malarial infections in this state." It is the purpose of the committee to enlist the active support of the press of the state in this campaign, and in this it will not be disappointed, as the newspapers of Florida have ever stood ready to aid in every cause having for its object the general good. Malaria is no more prevalent in Florida than in other states bordering on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, and not nearly so much as in some of our interior states, but it is an entirely preventable disease, says the medical profession, and being such should be prevented. The death rate from malaria is low in Florida, but there is a large amount of sickness due to it. "Go for it, Doc, and more power to ye."

The Florida Citrus Exchange, which has just made public, from its central office at Tampa, its doings for the past season, makes a most enviable showing for its first year in business. The report should greatly strengthen the organization. The report says:
"Total boxes shipped by the exchange, for season 1909-10, 1,506,900, as follows: Oranges, 1,172,099; grapefruit 245,819 boxes; tangerines, 56,731 boxes; pines 26,553; crates, miscellaneous 5,897 boxes. Net receipts, $2,003,548.93 or an average of $1.33 per box. Claims filed, $27,673.57, which makes $2,076,222.50, or an average of $1.378 per box. In compiling the statement the amount of claims was not taken into consideration, therefore, the average in reality is as follows: Oranges, $1.198; grapefruit, $2.326; tangerines, $1.859; pines, $3.32; mixed and miscellaneous, $1.421."

The opinion of Attorney-General Wickersham, approved without comment by President Taft, should prove valuable reading to those narrow-minded members of the Grand Army of the Republic who are trying to forget that the war between the states is over, and especially to that branch of the organization of ex-feral soldiers who made vigorous protest against the erection of a statue of General Robert E. Lee in stately hall, Washington, clothed in the garb of a Confederate general. After citing the law and deciding that the placing of this statue was in full harmony with its provisions, General Wickersham goes on to say:
"It is now forty-five years since the civil war was fought in Virginia. Lee has come to be generally regarded as a tycoon, not only all that was best in the cause to which, at the behest of his native state, he gave his services, but also the most loyal and unarmouring acceptance of the complete overthrow of that cause. That the state of Virginia should designate him as one illustrious for distinguished military service is therefore natural; that his statue should be clothed in the Confederate uniform, thus eloquently testifying to the fact that a magnanimous country has completely forgiven an unsuccessful effort to destroy the union, and that the statue should be accepted in the national statutory hall as the symbol of the acceptance without misgivings, of a complete surrender, and a renewed loyalty, should surely provoke no opposition. But, at all events, independently of the question of taste, the Congress has placed no restriction upon the designation by the states of those whom they may desire to honor in this way, nor does it vest in any official, any censorship concerning the designation of the costume in which that statue shall be depicted."
"Therefore, under the existing law, I am of the opinion that no objection can be lawfully made to the placing in Statuary hall of the national capitol of a statue of Robert E. Lee, clothed in the Confederate uniform."

The famous Hastings potato section, eight miles east of Palatka, is going in for long staple cotton as a summer crop, and for this, its first season's planting of that staple, has about 200 acres under cultivation. The St. Augustine Record, in telling of the success of this experiment, says: "Although the experimental acreage of this year is comparatively small, amounting to only 200 acres, it is of sufficient size to prove that the very best quality of staple can be produced here. A boll brought to the Record office by T. A. Carroll, of the American Chemical Company of Jacksonville, who was at Hastings yesterday, is of a size and quality that far surpasses the average cotton from the fields of Georgia, which is supposed to be the home of the staple. The cotton was planted about the first of May, after the potatoes were harvested, and in sixty days will be in bloom, although the staple will be ready for picking by August 20th."

In the event the acreage now under cultivation proves as successful as anticipated, next season will see the entire Hastings section covered with cotton-fields and a gin established. Cotton-growing, however, is not an experiment in this section of Florida. All farmers heretofore raised it before the war and for a time after. It was only abandoned for other and more profitable crops—crops that could stand the high price of labor. If the present price of cotton can be maintained, farmers may return to its cultivation quite generally in Putnam county. It has always been a leading crop in the northwest section of the county.

Hon. John G. Carlisle, former secretary of the treasury under President Cleveland, died in New York Sunday. His body was interred at Covington, Ky., his old home.

The Tampa Tribune of Monday published a half-page view of the proposed new union passenger station to be built in that city on land now occupied by shacks. The proposed building will be magnificent and entirely in keeping with the wonderful strides of this wonderful city, by many regarded as the coming metropolis of Florida.

Ever since Editor John M. Caldwell of the Jasper News came out in his paper for local option, the advocates of that plan have been calling him "Rev." You see, they need ministers in their business, good men who, like the "Rev." John M. Caldwell, can defend the modern saloon business on the ground "that our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, on one occasion made about a hundred gallons of wine for a crowd who were already well drunk." To be really consistent with his idea of the New Testament, it is hard to understand how the "Rev." John M. can stand for local option, which is prohibition in spots. He should be for free whisky.

William J. Bryan is no longer the leader of the democratic party in his home state of Nebraska, his dethronement having been accomplished at the state convention of his party last week. Mr. Bryan advocated the adoption of a plank in the state platform declaring for local option by counties, and his defeat was brought about by the liquor interests in the party. Funny, isn't it, that the liquor interests of Florida should favor local option, and the same interests in Nebraska should oppose it? But old time Floridians who remember the campaign for local option in this state, at the time of the adoption of the present state constitution, will also remember how the organized liquor interests of the state fought local option. Up to that time these interests had statewide license to do business, and local option meant a curtailment of that business, which has since been, by the vote of the people, confined to 12 of the 47 counties of the state. The adoption of the amendment in November next will ring the death knell of the business in the 12 counties now dominated by it, and from which the large majority of white people are asking the people of the state to deliver them. Mr. Bryan's dethronement in Nebraska was not a defeat by the rank and file of the democracy, but a victory for the cunning whisky element who had obtained control of the state convention. Bryan is all the stronger with the American people for his manly stand in the direction of the ultimate outlawry of the liquor business. Local option is a step in advance of general license and one that gives to the people a taste of power over an enemy of the state—a mere sample taste that leads to a craving for full power—state wide prohibition.

John Trice's Religion.—It rather looks as if the publisher of a Tallahassee journal got himself in pretty deep from the following, which appears in the National Prohibitionist: "Mr. John C. Trice, publisher of Florida, published at Tallahassee, Fla., announces his refusal to support ex-Gov. Broward for the United States senatorship on the ground that he (Trice) has never written an article nor published an advertisement that he did not believe to be for the interests of the community in which he lived. This, he says, is his religion. When one utters or Mr. Trice's paper and finds that twelve big whisky advertisements occupy a very large percentage of its space, he is inclined to feel that Mr. Trice's 'religion' ought to be put in the museum.—Miami Metropolis.

Non-Partisan Nominations.—The Bartow Record seems to think it is specially right and proper that men of all shades of political opinion should vote in our democratic primaries. On the subject the Record says:
"The negro question forbids the existence of any party in this democracy party in state matters; hence the primary is the real election at which men are selected to administer the government of the state. Are the men who are republican, as to national matters, to be barred from expressing a choice as to who will handle the taxes that they pay to the state treasury? If it might be an attractive feature of the advertisers of Florida and its products to put in their literature."
Our contemporary's observation has a very magnanimous sound to it, but the difficulty democrats will find in the way of literally following the course it suggests is that there would not then be any state democratic party. In the days when the democratic party made its nominations by convention the other parties were just as much in the minority as they are today, and the "negro question" was just as prominently with us, but it did not seem to occur to any one that members of other parties should be invited to come into our conventions and hold the balance of power between contending forces within the party. Because we have seen fit to change the method of nominating our candidates is there any good reason why we should invite members of other parties to hold the balance of power and make our nominations for us if they happen to concentrate on one or another candidate?
We fear that Editor Savage is not altogether orthodox and is quite a bit suggested to know more of his party affiliations in the past.—Bradford County Telegraph.

Styles of Architecture.—In their architecture the Moresque strove for the negation of the weight altogether; the Egyptian placed the weight firmly on the ground; the Greek lifted it up in the air with an assertion of graceful power; the Roman confused weight and support; the Byzantine represented weight without support; the Moor suggested that there was no weight at all.

Bagpipes in Nero's Time.—Bagpipes are generally ascribed to Scotland, where they have been in use for a long time, but it was an instrument upon which the ancient Greeks and Romans played. Nero is said to have performed upon it, and an old piece of Grecian sculpture represents a player on the bagpipes dressed in the fashion that is known today as the highland costume.

What State Editors are Saying.

Young Men to the Front!—The fight for prohibition this year is to be won by the young men of the state. They have grown up since prohibition has become respectable, since the wet sideboard and the family jug have become a thing of the past. They have been taught and understand the underlying principle of prohibition, that the man is worth more than the dollar. They have brains which the fumes of liquor have not befuddled; they stand separate and distinct from the alcoholic age, and have clear eyesight to see an onlooker the trail of blood and crime made by the saloon. They know that the white man's obligation, the strong man's burden, is to save the weak. We are glad to see young men, brave and strong and courageous, coming to the front in the fight for a clean, decent and sober state. Rejoice that the banners of prohibition are in the hands of the young men of Florida. It means victory for state-wide prohibition.—Brooksville Argus.

The Fight is On.—In last Saturday's Floridian we published this pointed paragraph:—"We make the positive statement that the whiskey men of Jacksonville are now putting up the two-dollar bills in the hands of negroes to qualify them to vote against the prohibition amendment to be ratified or rejected in next November's election."
We have been requested to reproduce the editorial containing that assertion in this issue.
Our idea in this is to prove to the decent people of this State the kind of warfare the whiskey interests are preparing to give us.
Up to the time we published that statement we fully intended to fight the ratification of the amendment proposed for our Constitution looking to state-wide prohibition.
But it's all off now!
We have seen enough! And we are going to tell our readers about some of the things we have seen.
We have taken some pictures of the kind of "Business Men" whose poll-taxes are being daily paid by this whiskey trust, and we are going to take some more.
For fully thirty years the editor of this paper has fought to free the noble women and helpless children of the south from this kind of citizenship. "Colliers Weekly" had a splendid photograph of one of them some two years ago. It told of the heinous crime he had committed. And it told of the bar-keeper who sold that heinous friend the booze that caused him to commit his crazy deed.
Those hirelings of the booze merchants before the House Committee of the last Legislature then and there threatened to give us the negro in politics.
We too thought that an idle threat. But with the brazen effrontery of the devil himself, these same whiskey men are paying the poll-taxes of the lowest and dirtiest of the negro race that they may hold the reins of our City, County and State governments as they did from '63 to '75.—Albert Williamson in the Floridian.

PARENTS DON'T ACCUSE YOUR CHILD OF BEING LAZY
Ninety-Nine Cases Out of a Hundred It is Sick—Something is Sapping the Life Blood
Have you hook worms? Yes, you may if you ever had ground it, as estimated by leading physicians, who have investigated the subject, that some country districts in Florida, where the land is sandy, that eighty-five per cent of the children have hook worms tugging away, day and night, at their vitals, your child is just as fat and bloodless, with no energy, don't accuse it of being lazy. It is sick! Probably thousands of those parasites are sapping the life blood and making a dwarf of what otherwise would be strong and healthy boy or girl.
You may try to shift the responsibility but you cannot do it, since it is so easy for you to get the information that will free them from this dreadful disease without any cost to you. Once you understand the nature of hook worm disease, you can treat it yourself.
Write at once for "Booklet N" which contains the real scientific facts taken from the bulletins issued from the office of the State Board of Health and from Dr. Siles reports, who is a recognized authority for the world on hook worm disease. In fact, a complete history of the hook worm disease, its nature, its effect upon the human system and on society and how to treat it yourself. This booklet will be sent to any address free of charge. It should be in every home in the South. Write today. Lock box 322, Tampa, Fla., and ask for "Booklet N." It is free.

Strong Coolies.
The power of endurance of the Chinese coolie is marvelous. Many will travel over forty miles, carrying a heavy load on their backs, and think nothing of it. A writer mentions the case of certain coolies who, after going twenty-seven hours without food and having carried a heavy burden in the meantime, still had strength enough left to offer to carry a man fifteen miles farther.
