

SUMMER FERTILIZING OF CITRUS TREES

This is a very important application, for a liberal supply of food at this time increases the size of the fruit and gives a large bearing surface for next year's crop. You cannot afford to economize (?) on fertilizer. Neither should you delay about applying it. Nature calls for help in May, and this is the time when fertilizer will do the trees the most good. Later applications prolong the growth and therefore the maturing of the fruit, thus making the crop late and sapping the vitality of the tree. We have fruit and vine formulas to meet every condition of soil. Write to us about them and ask for our booklet, "Good Old Summer Time in the Orange Groves."
