Application made for entry as second-class mail matter in postoffice at Tallahassee, Florida.

"There have been complaints that corporations took too much interest in politics, and exerted too much influence over lawmaking;
the corporations are apt to answer that when attacked they must defend themselves or be legislated out of business," says the Times-Union—the corporation bible of Florida.

"Attacks" on corporations in this State
are but appeals of the people for justice.

It is the business of the Times-Union to defend corporations.

Why—

Because the Times-Union is owned by the Atlantic Coast Line, the Florida East Coast
and the Seaboard Air Line Railway Companies.

The Times-Union is NOT a newspaper—it
IS a chattel.

And the Chattel of a Republican who contributed $2,000 to elect a Republican Governor of New York.

OH! WILLIE, WILLIE, WILLIE!

It's Sunday morning when I write this, and it will be Sunday morning when it will be read.

So I may say with more truth than poetry:

Good morning!

Did you eat meat for breakfast?

If so, are you acquainted with conditions at the city market?

This place is filthy and unsanitary to the last degree.

It is not a fit place in which to expose meat for sale.

Fresh meat is very susceptible to infection, and it gathers millions of germs when exposed in a filthy place.

Then the flies!

They are there by the millions, and they swarm on that meat with unrestrained freedom of action, that permits them to deposit death-dealing microbes where they will do the most harm.

The Mayor of Tallahassee knows that the city market
is a menace to the health of every one who eats meat.

There is no other place to buy it. The ordinances prohibit the sale of meat in the city limits anywhere else.

The city has a monopoly on meat selling places.

And it forces the citizens to buy infected meat or go without.

No little nigger may come to your door with a string of bream; he has to carry them to the fly sanitarium, to receive their proper proportion of microbes.

No farmer may bring a tender shoat to your door and sell you a choice lot of spare ribs or cracklins.

He must take it to the city market, sell it to one of the city's tenants, so that it may be properly flyblown.

Sounds bad, doesn't it.

It's true, just the same.

It seems as if circumstances have combined to make the city market a fly heaven. It is located just across the street from a livery stable, and this is where flies are bred.

They arise from the stable filth, spread their wings
and head straight for the market, where two minutes afterward they are burrowing their horrid heads in the meat exposed for sale.

Sounds worse as we go along, doesn't it?

But it's true.

You, Mr. Head-of-the-Family, go to the market and see for yourself.

The Mayor of Tallahassee has been there. He told me
so himself.

But he don't act.

He doesn't seem to have force, energy or initiative
enough to cope with this situation.

He needs help.

Citizens should tell him what to do, how to do it, and then keep right after him until he does it.

Oh! what shall we do for meat to eat?

We used to have chickens to fall back on, but now
your pasture for summer grazing:

It's fly-blown meat or the vegetable diet for ours.

The chickens have taken to the tall timbers.

Look at this ordinance and then go out and select
your pasture for summer grazing:—

HONESTLY MADE

The simplest method of producing corn whiskey—the old "primitive method"—has no get-rich-quick scheme hidden in it. That's why so few distillers employ it. It is a slower process, and the yield is smaller than the up-to-date new-fangled way. The whiskey distilled by the "primitive method" is rich in nourishment and makes a fine tonic and tissue builder. That's why we stick to the "primitive method."
