The First Methodist Episcopal church Christmas exercises were a decided success. The program by the little people went without a hitch from the start. The church choir rendered some very fine music. The "tree" was a departure from the regulation cedar. A fine palmetto stood on the rostrum, beautifully decorated and laden with many presents, bags of candy, nuts, and a generous supply of the golden fruit. The entire church was very tastefully decorated.

A stranger was brought here from Port Orange Monday, suffering with brain trouble. He was put off the passenger train at that place, supposed to be intoxicated. Papers in his possession show that he is the owner of the schooner Trumpet of Brunswick. There are several gashes on his head and it is presumed that he had been sun-bagged. He was taken to DeLand and will be examined. If deemed best he will be sent to the marine hospital at Jacksonville, or to the asylum at Chattahoochee. The man's name is Albertis Wright.

The Miami Metropolis last week published some very sensational stuff about certain members of the Holiness band, now in Daytona. It is alleged that members of this band of sanctified (?) people are living together unlawfully as man and wife. Letters published in the Metropolis, written by persons in North Carolina, who are directly interested in the case, go to show that a couple of the women left their husbands and children and about the same time a couple of men left their families, in a destitute condition at that, all the parties claiming that they were called upon by the Divine Spirit to go forth and preach. These persons were at Miami for some time but were requested by the authorities there to "move on" and it is said that they are now here. We refrain from giving any names at present, but later on expect to be able to give more information on the subject.

Schmidt's Villa had a very handsomely decorated Christmas tree Tuesday evening. There was something on it for all the guests of the house and for the members of Mr. Schmidt's family. It was decorated as fine as any tree our attention has been called to this year.

Some people say that advertising does not pay, but the other day in Chicago one of the big department stores signed a contract for a page advertisement in the Tribune of that city every day except Sunday for which the firm agrees to pay $120,000. This is said to be the largest single newspaper contract ever made. Yet some people say that advertising does not pay.—Ada Index.

Live Oak Chapter, No. 5, O. E. S., held their regular meeting Christmas evening. The business was rushed through and the evening given up to social pleasures. A Christmas tree was the means of much fun and laughter. All the children were made happy by their gifts and candy bags. Miss Ballough and Mr. Thomason provided sweet music, while some of the sisters prepared the evening's repast, surprising the brothers with a regular Masonic banquet, their much talked of chicken pie occupying a prominent place. After the brothers had shown their appreciation of the sisters' efforts, the mandolin and guitar again charmed the audience. Good night and Merry Christmas were heard to echo, the lights were put out and all left, feeling younger and happier for their frolic.

The J. D. F. C. Club, of south Ridgewood, gave their first monthly amateur entertainment before a large audience at Major M. Pellett's on Christmas Eve. The side splitting farce in two acts, "Advertising for a Servant" kept the audience laughing from start to finish. The cast of characters were assumed by the following: Mrs. Chas. Bray, in want of a girl, was well acted and dressed by Miss Theresa Dittman; Chas. Bray, a fussy old crank, by Mr. Est; Bridget O'Tingley, an Irish jewel, was well done, brogue and all, by Miss Rosie Dittman; Katherine Katzenheimer, Dutch as sauer kraut, was taken successfully by John Pellett; Lilly Snowdrop, a colored girl with coon cake-walk, was richly acted by Miss Susie Pellett; Mrs. Geo. Jones, a cracker widow, was well done on short notice by Miss Rose Dittman; Freddy, her son, was well taken by Freddy Dittman. The audience was amused between acts by a recitation by Kate Dittman. The next piece, "A Haunted Castle," by the company in five acts, will be played February 14th.
