A Daisy Wedding.

The wedding which was solemnized at the First Baptist Church yesterday afternoon at six o'clock of Miss Luella Harriet Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Clarke, of this city, and Mr. Hayward Randolph, of Tallahassee, was one of the most beautiful witnessed in some time. The chancel of the church had been beautifully decorated with tall palms, ferns and golden hearted daisies and formed an enchanting setting for the wedding party. Promptly at the hour appointed the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played on the organ by Prof. Wilhelm Meyer, accompanied by Mr. Thomas Elmore on the violin, pealed out, and every head turned to see the pretty procession, led by the ushers, Messrs. J. Gilmore Smith and Willis E. Gerow, of Jacksonville, and Arthur Randolph and W. N. Sheats, of Tallahassee. Following them came the maid of honor, the pretty little sister of the bride, Miss Marian Clarke, dressed in a dainty girlish costume of white net and carrying pink bridal roses. Mrs. Willis E. Gerow, the matron of honor, came next, looking very young and lovely in a charming white net gown that was exceedingly becoming. She carried a beautiful bouquet of pink roses. The cushion bearer, little James M. Baker, who followed, dressed in white, was delightfully self-possessed. The three little flower girls, Lillian Gerow, Cordelia Durkee and Louise Eyles, were one of the prettiest features of an unusually pretty wedding, in their gauzy dresses and dainty blue ribbons. Each walked alone, carrying a basket of flowers, which they strewed in the brides pathway as she left the chancel. The bride entered on the arm of her father, who looked very handsome and patriarchal with his flowing white beard. The brides dress was exquisite white net applique with lovely lace from end to end, and every stitch the work of the deft fingers of the pretty bride. A tulle veil, fastened with sprays of lilies of the valley and a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley completed a most becoming bridal array. Her only ornaments were a necklace of baroque pearls, the gift of her mother, and a diamond pendant, the gift of the groom. The groom met the bride at the steps, attended by his best man, Mr. H. L. Dozier, and his brother, Dr. James Randolph. The Rev. J. J. Parsons, of St. Augustine, formerly pastor of the First Baptist Church here, performed the ceremony according to the beautiful ritual of the Episcopal Church, reading the service from the prayer book which had been used at the wedding of the groom's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. T. Hayward Randolph, and which had been presented by Mrs. Randolph, Sr., to her new daughter. It is now one of her most valued possessions. After the ceremony a very pretty reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, the decorations there being in the cool white and green colors that were used in the church. A very large number of beautiful and valuable presents were received, cut glass and silver predominating. Mr. and Mrs. Hayward Randolph left on an evening train for the mountains of North Carolina, where the honeymoon will be spent. Mrs. Randolph's going-away gown was in the new blue taffeta and was worn with a most becoming hat in shades of blue. A very large number of out of town guests attended the wedding, Mr. Randolph being connected with a great many of the best known families of Middle Florida, nearly all of whom were represented among the guests present.—Jacksonville Metropolis.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

One of the prettiest society weddings of the season took place yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock at the First Baptist Church, when Miss Luella Harriet Clarke became the bride of Mr. Hayward Randolph, one of Tallahassee's most prominent young men. The church was most tastefully decorated for the occasion and the wedding was largely attended by prominent citizens of Leon county as well as of this city. Miss Clarke is an attractive young woman, and has a host of friends who wish for her a happy married life. The presents received by the happy young couple were numerous, handsome and useful. Mr. and Mrs. Randolph will reside in Tallahassee.—Times-Union.

Three Fire Alarms.

An alarm of fire was sounded about 4 o'clock Sunday morning, to which the fire company promptly responded, and found the kitchen and the back room of Mr. T. B. Byrd's residence to be on fire. The fire had gained considerable headway by the time the firemen arrived, but, with their usual efficient work, the company had the fire under control and confined it to the part of the house already ablaze. As the building is one of the oldest in town and as dry as tinder, it is remarkable that the fire was so quickly subdued.

The fire is supposed to have been started from a spark left in the kitchen the night before, and was discovered by the servant, who comes very early every morning to light the kitchen fire for the cook, and he immediately turned in the alarm.

The loss was very small and fully covered by the insurance.

On Monday afternoon about 5 o'clock another alarm was rung in, from box 13. This time the fire proved to be the pile of paper waste behind the Capital printing establishment. On Tuesday at 12.45 o'clock still another alarm was sounded, from district 12. The kitchen roof of Judge J. B. Whitfield's house was found on fire, but was soon put out, with practically no damage.

Wedding of Gen. Foster to Miss Young.

(St. Augustine Record, June 7.)
Trinity Church, of happy memory to so many in old St. Augustine and to others, who, though far away, still call it home, was this afternoon the scene of perhaps the most brilliant wedding ever solemnized within its walls.
At half-past three o'clock Joseph Reed Foster of Tallahassee, adjutant-general of the Florida State Troops, led to the altar Miss Agnes Winifred Young of this city, daughter of Captain William Young.

For many weeks society has been anxiously awaiting this very interesting event. Long before the hour set for the ceremony, invited guests arrived at the church, and when three o'clock came the building was completely filled with friends of the bride and groom.

Under the supervision of Miss Bernice Frazer, the church had been beautifully decorated, the color scheme of green and white being effectively carried out by a profusion of white oleander, magnolias and Spanish bayonet blossoms caught up with festoons of bamboo vine.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Lawrence Canfield, organist for the Memorial Church choir, of which the bride has been a member for some time, played the following program:
Grand offertoire, "St. Cecilia," by Baptiste.

Pilgrim's Chorus, from "Tannhauser," by Wagner.
Bridal song, by Jensen.
Bridal chorus, by Lohengrin.
Prayer, by Groven.

Wedding march, by Mendelssohn.
Promptly at the hour set carriages containing the wedding party arrived at the canopied entrance on St. George street. The bridal procession was led by two sweet little girls, the Misses Ione MacWilliams and Adelaide Old, wearing white point d'esprit over white taffeta, trimmed with white ribbon and with pink sashes.

Following them came the ushers, Messrs. J. H. Harry Pritchard and A. M. Taylor, Colonel W. A. MacWilliams and Major Frank J. Howatt.
The bridesmaids were Miss Emma Yockey and Miss Adele Burroughs of Jacksonville, wearing white China silk over taffeta, with white picture hats and carrying bouquets of pink carnations.

The maid of honor was Miss Anna Enslow, whose costume was white French organdie over taffeta with motifs of white lace, white picture hat of chiffon with white ostrich plumes. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Next came the little flower girl, Miss Mildred Estes, in white point d'esprit over taffeta, with pink sash, carrying a basket of ferns and roses. The page was Master Willie Genovar in white satin and lace and carrying a white prayer book.

Radiantly happy, the bride entered leaning on the arm of her father, Capt. William Young. She wore a gown of imported white lace over white chiffon and taffeta and carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

Awaiting the bridal party at the altar were the groom and his best man, Col. John S. Maxwell, of Jacksonville.

The very impressive marriage service of the Episcopal church was read by the rector of Trinity church, Rev. L. Fitz-James Hindy, the bride being given away by her father. During the ceremony the soft notes of the intermzzo from the "Cavalleria Rusticana," arranged by Eddy, were played by the organist.

From the church the wedding party proceeded to the Monson House, where a reception was held. The house decorations were in green and white, similar to those at the church.

Little Mazon Floyd Dead.
Master Mazon Floyd; the little grandson of Mrs. W. M. McIntosh, Sr., of this place, fell out of a large pecan tree and sustained a compound fracture of his arm. The arm was broken not only at the wrist but also near the elbow, the bone being severely cracked at the latter point, thereby making proper knitting difficult. Dr. Ausley who attended the brave little sufferer, says the break is a very serious one indeed and fears the arm will be stiff even after it knits together. The little fellow is only five years old and showed great fortitude while the doctor was fixing him up.

LATER—Little Mazon died of lock jaw Tuesday afternoon, and all Tallahasseeans sympathize with the family in their deep affliction. He was a bright little fellow and was admired by everyone who knew him, and was loved by all of his little school mates.
