

ANNOUNCEMENTS PARALLELED.

Each Candidate for the State Senate From Leon County Speaks for Himself.

To the People of Leon County:

I hereby announce my candidacy for the position of State Senator from the Eighth Senatorial District. To you I submit the question of my qualifications to represent you in that capacity.

If nominated by the Democratic primary, and elected, I shall devote my best efforts to your service, and your interests and welfare shall be my sole consideration.

Respectfully,

JOHN W. HENDERSON.

To the Citizens of Leon County:

Important events will face us at the next session of the Legislature. Many friends have been kind enough to think that my services would be needed and that, with my past experience with legislative bodies in this State, and in my large acquaintance with its people, I could be of material help. I therefore announce that I am a candidate for the position of State Senator from this district, and if honored by your votes, I shall in the future, as in the past, devote my best energies to all that is for the best interest of my people, and respectfully solicit the support of every good citizen of Leon county.

Very respectfully,

W. A. RAWLS.

The Ideal Guest.

It has been said that women may be divided into two classes, that of the "born hostess" and that of the "born guest," and that neither fits into the other's role with any degree of success. There is one charming woman who is known among her friends as "I. G.," which mysterious appellation stands for "Ideal Guest!" She explains her unique title by saying: "It is so silly! Any one can be a perfect guest if she only tries. All you have to do is to be pleased with your entertainment, and try to help your hostess make things agreeable to the others. Yes, I do visit a great deal, and I make it an inviolable rule never to repeat in one house what I have seen or heard in another."

The "ideal guest," for instance, makes the care of her room as easy for the maid as possible. When she leaves it in the morning the bed is stripped, and the mattress turned to air. When she leaves it for dinner or supper in the evening all her own belongings are carefully put away in closet or drawers, thus making no "picking up" after her—work which is wearing to the maid and which takes much time. The "I. G." also remembers at noon, or when the guest room has the most blaze of sunlight, to close the blinds or drop the awnings, thus helping to keep fresh her hostess's dainty furnishings. —Harper's Bazar.

Coughing Spell Caused Death.

"Harry Duckwell, aged 25 years, choked to death early yesterday morning at his home, in the presence of his wife and child. He contracted a slight cold a few days ago and paid but little attention to it. Yesterday morning he was seized with a fit of coughing, which continued for some time. His wife sent for a physician, but before he could arrive another coughing spell came on and Duckwell died from suffocation.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Dec. 1st, 1901." Ballard's Horehound Syrup would have saved him. 25c, 50c and $1.00. For sale by all druggists.

His Subject "Character."

The incident occurred in a town in southern Michigan. A new minister had been called over the head of a local brother who thought himself thoroughly competent to "fill the desk" of the negro church, but who was not acceptable because of some reputed defects of conduct.

The new minister was a man of considerable ability and of high ideals. The second Sunday morning of his pastorate his subject was "Character." He had set forth with telling vigor the fact that character expressed itself in conduct, and that, therefore, a man's conduct is the index of his character.

Hector, the local brother, had been uneasy all through this stern probing of the inner life. The sermon ended, he arose and, addressing the speaker, said: "Brudder! What'd we call you heah foh?"

The speaker, somewhat taken aback by this unexpected catechizing, was at a loss for an answer. Hector came to his assistance with: "Doesn't we hiah yo' to preach de gawpel to de sinnahs?" "Why, yes," said the incumbent, feeling his way through the maze. "Yaas, sah!" shouted the questioner in a tone of triumph, "we hiah yo' to preach de gawpel to de sinnahs, sah. We doesn't hiah yo' to come heah to expose our charactahs."—Everybody's Magazine.

Cured Paralysis.

MOTHER'S CLUB.

Many Mothers Present and Good Officers Are Elected to Direct Work.

The mothers meeting at the Kindergarten Hall last Friday afternoon brought together about sixteen mothers who are interested in the excellent character of the work being done at that school and who appreciated to the utmost the exercises of the afternoon.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. J. B. Ley. There were a number of interesting talks on the mother's and teacher's responsibility in training the tender lives of the little ones.

In connection with the work of our kindergarten school, too much praise cannot be given the Misses Cherry and Child, for their patient labor and self-sacrificing devotion to their chosen work, and they gratefully appreciate the encouragement they have received from their patronizing friends. One of the features of the afternoon's entertainment, already referred to, was the address of Rev. Mr. Ley, which, if possible, should be given to the press. However, we feel constrained to reproduce a very few of his suggestive utterances as they may be quoted from memory. Mr. Ley said, among other good things: "We are slow to appreciate the importance of kindergarten work. We devote our energies to reforming or reclaiming grown sinners, when with less expenditure of strength, we could save the little tots by giving their minds and hearts right direction in their very early years. If I were a Carnegie, or a man of many millions, it seems to me I could not more wisely expend them than by dotting our cities and villages with kindergartens."

The importance of this work may be seen in the fact that in many homes very little or no discipline and direction is given, and in many others very little of the right sort is found. It is my profound conviction that the most important years of a child's life, the years which have the greatest bearing for good or ill, in the matter of discipline and training, are from the years of 3 to 7, illustrating the often quoted minister who affirmed that if he could have a child till he was seven, he would make him what he pleases. It is at this age that these good women seek to take, and with their own well stored minds and well trained wills, seek to store, to train and to direct the plastic minds of our baby boys and girls. May God bless them in their work, and may we do all we can, humanly speaking, to encourage them.

The object of the meeting—to organize a Mother's Club—was carried out and the following officers were elected: President—Mrs. J. B. Ley. Vice-President—Mrs. Horn. Treasurer—Mrs. Byrd. Secretary—Mrs. Sanberg. All the mothers of Live Oak are invited to join this club, and unite their efforts with those of the mothers already interested and the teachers to guide and train the little children which have been entrusted to their keeping.

The mothers whose children have been attending the kindergarten were pleased to see a display of their work, which consisted of sewing, weaving, drawing, paper folding and cutting, peas work, sand table harvest display and parquetry mounting, which was neatly done for their first efforts and showed that painstaking training had been given them.

The musical selections rendered by Miss Ley and the dainty refreshments served by the kindergarten teachers, Misses Cherry and Child, made the afternoon more enjoyable.

The president of the club will announce the time and place of the next meeting. Let all the mothers try to be present, as this is a matter of great importance.—Live Oak Daily Democrat, 7th.

Heart Fluttering.

As shown by records kept in the buildings of the State Fair at Tampa, not less than 5,000 home-seekers from other States, including those of the great Northwest, have attended the fair, and these are still in Florida, looking for locations for permanent homes. A large portion of this number bought one-way tickets, intending to locate in Florida without returning to their former homes. Every Floridian who feels an interest in his State should attend the fair before the close, November 30th.

DREADFUL DREAMS.

They Shock the Nervous System and May Even Cause Death.

People have actually been killed by dreams. Most persons have suffered from those terrible nightmare visions in which the victim is pursued by an assassin with upraised knife or is trembling on the edge of a fearful precipice or is in some other imminent danger of a sudden and terrible death. These dreams are common enough, and nearly always the sufferer awakes, thankful and happy at his escape. But sometimes he doesn't awake. Sometimes the knife falls or the sleeper in his hallucinations plunges down the precipice. These are the dreams that kill, says the Chicago Tribune.

In cases where dreams kill there is a sort of combined action between the dream and the disease through which death is accomplished. In the first place the dream is usually the product of the disease. A person may have heart disease which never asserts itself or allows the victim in any way to know of its presence until the fact is disclosed in a frightful dream. Moreover, terrifying dreams are often the first evidence of heart disease. Then the frequent recurrence of these dreams, dealing repeated shocks to the nervous system, aggravates the disease until the heart is so weak that one more shock is sufficient to cause death.

If a person has had dreams it does not necessarily follow, however, that he has heart disease. Dreams indicating heart disease are usually of a terrifying nature and relate to death. On awakening the sufferer will notice a violent heart palpitation. Chronic pericarditis is always preceded by horrible dreams, such as that of being thrown into a lake of fire or being crushed in a railroad wreck or burned by a volcanic eruption.

The approach of insanity may also be revealed by unpleasant dreams, or insanity may be hastened by such dreams. There are many cases on record where a person has been driven insane by a dream.

AN INDIAN LEGEND.

How the Autumn Leaves Were Transformed into Birds.

An Indian story that has been handed down and is still believed by many Indian tribes is one about the transformation of leaves into birds. Long years ago, when the world was young, the Great Spirit went about the earth making it beautiful. Wherever his feet touched the ground lovely trees and flowers sprang up. All summer the trees wore their short green dresses. The leaves were very happy, and they sang their sweet songs to the breeze as it passed them. One day the wind told them the time would soon come when they would have to fall from the trees and die. This made the leaves feel very bad, but they tried to be bright and do the best they could so as not to make the mother trees unhappy. But at last the time came, and they let go of the twigs and branches and fluttered to the ground. They lay perfectly quiet, not able to move except as the wind would lift them.

The Great Spirit saw them and thought they were so lovely that he did not want to see them die, but live and be beautiful forever, so he gave to each bright leaf a pair of wings and power to fly. Then he called them his "birds." From the red and brown leaves of the oak came the robins, and yellow birds from the yellow willow leaves, and from bright maple leaves he made the red birds. The brown leaves became wrens, sparrows and other brown birds. This is why the birds love the trees and always go to them to build their nests, and look for food and shade.—Kansas City Journal.

Explained.

An old Scotch lady who had no relish for modern church music was expressing her dislike of the singing of an anthem in her own church one day, when a neighbor said: "Why, that is a very old anthem! David sang that anthem to Saul." To this the old lady replied: "Weel, weel! I noo for the first time understand why Saul threw his javelin at David when the lad sang for him."

Encouraging Her.

Stationer—What do you do with all the lead pencils you buy, Mr. Smith? You average about three a day. Mr. Smith—Oh, that's all right. My wife is taking whittling lessons.—Columbus Dispatch.

Few enterprises of great labor or hazard would be undertaken if we had not the power of magnifying the advantages we expect from them.—Johnson.

"Going," East and West.

"I tell you what," said Gotham, entertaining his western cousin, "everything's so high here it's almost impossible to keep a house going."

"Well," replied the Kansan, "the winds are so high out our way it's almost impossible to keep a house from going."—Philadelphia Press.
