

Statehood Bill Introduced In House by Representative Hamilton Of Michigan Administration Measure Differs From Former Acts

Provides for Adoption of Constitution. Its Retification by the People of the Proposed State of New Mexico After Which President is to Proclaim the Admission of the New State and the People Will Then Proceed to the Electipn of Their Officers; Liberal Appropriations of Public Land for Support of State Institutions; Similar Provisions for Admission of Arizona Incorporated in the Measure.

The bill for the admission of the territories of New Mexico and Arizona into the union of states, and the bill which it is believed is certain will pass the United States congress at the session just opened was introduced in the house of representatives yesterday by Representative Hamilton of Michigan, chairman of the house committee on territories. Today, Tuesday morning it will be introduced in the senate by Senator Borah of Idaho. That the bill will pass congress at this session does not admit of a doubt.

This statehood bill is an administration measure. It is said to have been written by President Taft in collaboration with Secretary of the Interior Ballinger and Attorney General Wickersham. It is designed to meet the objections offered to former measures of this kind and is likely to go through both the house and senate practically without amendment.

Every effort will be brought to bear for its rapid passage and as far as known now practically all all opposition to the measure will be withdrawn and New Mexico will be a state his year.

The bill provides for the election of delegates to a constitutional convention at which a constitution will be drawn up for the new state of New Mexico, to be submitted to the people. It provides, however, that officers for the state shall not be elected at the time of the vote on the ratification of the constitution, but shall be chosen at an election to be held after the constitution has been passed upon by the president and the state of New Mexico is formally proclaimed. Thereafter the people will proceed to the election of a state government and until such time the present territorial officials will remain in their positions. The capital is to remain at Santa Fe until 1915, after which date the people may vote on its location.

The bill makes liberal appropriations of land for the support of territorial institutions, allowing 120,000 acres for university purposes.

The bill as affecting New Mexico follows in full, similar provisions being made in the case of Arizona:

Coil Spring wire fencing, barb wire fencing and woven wire fencing for sale at A. & B. Schusters Prices made to meet ALL competition. Write for estimates on fencing.
