THE NEW DISTRICT.

A reporter of a Phenix paper—the Herald—has been to the new diggings and sends the following report to his paper which we reprint, knowing it will be of interest to the public:

As requested I send you a few lines on the prospects of the new camp at this point, the west end of the Harqua Halla mountains.

The big strike made by Harry Watson, Bob Stein and Mike Sullivan is of course the leading topic and the Mecca of all who come here. The gentlemen who own them treat every one royally and show all the bonanza, explaining the whole situation, and in the case of your correspondent winding up with an invitation to dinner, which was duly appreciated. The principal veins of rich gold ore is of a rosy red and iron stained character, in many places wholly decomposed. The quartz is very lively in character and seems to cross a very strong dyke of lime and quartzite that is perhaps 400 to 600 feet wide and extends across the country fifteen or twenty miles. This dyke is washed by porphyry and shale of a character much like slate. Lying in the dyke are a number of veins or deposits of sand carbocates that so far as tested give $40 to $50 each, gold and silver, though some tests are reported to run as high as $2,000 of the carbocates. Of the quartz veins assays run from $300 to several thousand, in fact many sacks of quartz are full of free gold and many pieces of rock and nuggets that beyond question are so great in percentage of the yellow metal that ordinary assays would not be the correct thing but rather by the nitric system of so much an ounce.

There is no question that the importance and extent of this strike are fully up to the best report, and from the opinion of those qualified to judge, there is extracted and sacked in nuggets and vein gold from $30,000 to $50,000. To illustrate the richness of the claims, all who visit the Gold Hill claim spend a little spare time looking for pocket pieces which are rounded pebbles of black quartz with vein gold running through it, if not large or rich they will do for mementos. Your correspondent has a very fine one. All this seems fabulous but is here to be seen, and reminds one of the silver nuggets of Richmond Basin where many thousand dollars in value of silver were found in nuggets in a pure state.

Of course there are many old locations including the Centennial group, several properties owned by Goldman & Co., Burgher and other Placemasters but they all seem to be located north of the bonanza lead or dyke. The carbonate ore of this camp will be of great value to reduce the dry ores of the vicinity of Phenix seem to exist here in great abundance, so easy do they mill that it is the common test to run them down in a frying pan on the camp fire.

There are now here about forty or fifty people but no store, restaurant or saloon, yet every day outfits arrive from every direction which have been delayed by the soft roads incident to the storm. The best road from Phenix is by the Buckeye, upper Gila Bend and Mullin's Well for light rigs though not well enough beaten for freight. The distance is about 105 miles; this might be shortened fully 15 or 20 miles and should be done to save Phenix the trade.

A SHORT VICTORY.

Allen Potter Robs Mary Tack of Her Valuables

And Is Captured at Wilcox This Afternoon.

Mary Tack, who keeps the lodging house on Allen street, is one of those unfortunate women who have a kind heart and in consequence thereof is not free from imposition by those whom she oftentimes helps. The latest instance happened last night and proved to be the betrayal of her confidence—a victory of short duration. On Sunday night last a young man came to her house and asked for a room, but not having any vacant at that time she gave him his supper, which he asked for, and he left, but returned next morning and asked for his breakfast, which was given him, he stating that he was broke. He worked all of that day, slept there at night and seemed anxious to work around the house. Last evening she went out for about ten minutes, returning about 8 o'clock. Before going she asked the man to remain till she returned and in case any one came to give him room number 6. Before leaving she placed the tin box containing her valuables in the dish cupboard in one corner, supposing that no one was watching her. The box contained about forty dollars in money, a gold neck chain, a gold buckle, a silver watch and various articles of value, also notes as security for money loaned to the amount of $800. Her first impulse was to go to the closet on her return, and the fact of her loss stared her in the face. The door was open and the box and contents gone. She rushed into the yard and discovered that the gate was broken open. The truth that the man she had befriended had robbed her flashed across her mind in a moment, and she lost no time in notifying the police, who started a diligent search for Potter. No trace of him could be found, and not until this morning did any clue of his whereabouts show up. A son of Earnest Storm who stops at Mary's house when he comes in town, luckily came in this morning, and contrary to his usual custom of finding Mary in a good humor found her terribly out of sorts. On inquiring the cause of her downheartedness she related the story of her loss. On describing the man who had done the job, Storm exclaimed: "Why that's the same man who stopped at the ranch this morning and wanted to pay me a dollar for his breakfast." Storm further stated that the man left before he started, walking in the direction of Dragon Summit. No time was lost in telegraphing to the operator at this station. At half past ten the fugitive loomed up and was interviewed by the operator but he could do nothing to hold him. He started off again after resting a few moments. The operator telegraphed to Wilcox to the authorities there, and at precisely 12 o'clock a dispatch reached this city that the man had been captured in Wilcox and was in jail, and the goods recovered with the exception of a couple of dollars in money and the notes which he had probably destroyed. When the news was carried to Mary she was nearly crazed with joy as she had given up all hope of ever seeing her treasures again. A diligent search is being made for the missing notes and Chief Gage thinks that he can find them near town. He is out hunting for them as we go to press. Potter will be brought over here at once. He is an old hand at the business, having been in the county jail once before for a similar offense.

NEWSPAPER MEN.

Where They Spring From and How They Worked Their Way Up.

Charles A. Dana is perhaps the most famous of the men who have drawn prizes. As editor of the Sun he draws a salary of $25,000 per year, and from other sources his income is swelled to about $150,000 per year, upon which he manages to live very comfortably, aided by a French cook, whose income is bigger than that of a Congressman. Dana started on the New York Tribune at a salary of $12 per week. He started in a small way from a town in the interior of Ohio. Joseph Pulitzer of the World, is said to clear $2,000 per day. He is not a working journalist now, but not many years ago he was an ordinary reporter in St. Louis, and they say he was a hustler too. Whiteley Reid as a matter of fact draws a salary of some $15,000 per year from the Tribune, but his income from his stock in the paper is several times this amount. John A. Cockerell is one of the working managing editors and newspaper men, and draws a salary of $15,000 per year from the world and has an interest in it besides. Cockerell was a typo and fought his way up from the ranks. Amos Cummings is said to have an income of $15,000 per year. He was a compositor and a private in the Union army during the rebellion, and he, too, came from the bottom up to where he is now. Chester A. Lord, the managing editor of the Sun has a salary of $7,500 per year. He started on a small paper in the interior of the State of Ohio, and had to work hard for success. But he is little known outside of New York. Geo. F. Spinney, a managing editor of the New York Times, has a salary of about $7,000 per year. But he has been a hard-working journalist all his life, and the salary is not so much. He, too, is little known outside of New York.

Worth Knowing. Dr. W. H. Morgan, merchant, Lake City, Fla., was taken with a severe cold, attended with a distressing cough, and running into consumption in the third stage. He tried many so-called popular cough remedies and steadily grew worse. Was reduced to bed, had difficulty in breathing, and was unable to sleep. Finally tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and found it a most reliable relief, and after using about a half dozen bottles found himself well, and has had no return of the disease. No other remedy can show so grand a record of cures, as Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is guaranteed to do just what is stated for it. Trial bottle free at J. Yonge's Drug Store.
