CITY AND COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

Fresh Ranch Butter from the ranch of J. B. White at Wolcott's Cash Store. 37¢

WEBSTER HANNIGAN is the new collector for the El Paso district.

MINISTER EGAN says that he was a prisoner of Balmaceda and if he had not acted as he would have in the district court was numbered 1615, and that number represents the number of suits filed in the district court in ten years.

THERE is no truth in the report from the City of Mexico that Balmaceda is on board the Condell, bound for San Francisco. The Condell is now in the hands of the Chilean minister at Callao Peru. The belief is growing that the late dictator is in the happy hunting grounds.

At the department of state it is said the policy of this government has been to avoid the encouragement of premature recognition of revolutionary movements, particularly in the case of the unsettled republics of the American hemisphere. This may be all so, but it does not warrant the turning of the key of the state department when the envoys of the insurgents went around to say good morning to the proxy Secretary of State.

The city hall bonds held by Don Sanford which were called in a few months since, were being cancelled today by Treasurer McAllister, they having been sent from New York a few days since for payment. They were purchased by Sanford, Jan. 9, 1884 for 90 cents on the dollar. The amount redeemed was $2,000 and is the last, but one of $200 outstanding. The profit to Sanford on the purchase was about $1,700.

In the last call for city warrants was one held by L. M. Jacobs of the face value of $263.20 drawn in favor of the Record-Epithaph. This warrant was purchased for 50 cents on the dollar and cost $131.60. The interest on the warrant to the time it was called in was $150.35. It took $413.65 August 10th 1891 to pay a warrant purchased in 1885 for $131.60, a profit in six years of $282.05 or 215 per cent. This is simply one of the illustrations of the credit system of doing business and its result.

"German Syrup"

Here is something from Mr. Frank A. Hale, proprietor of the De Witt House, Lewiston, and the Tontine Hotel, Brunswick, Me. Hotel men meet the world as it comes and goes, and are not slow in sizing people and things up for what they are worth. He says that he has lost a father and several brothers and sisters from Pulmonary Consumption, and is himself frequently troubled with colds, and he often coughs enough to make him sick at his stomach. Whenever he has taken a cold of this kind he uses Boschee's German Syrup, and it cures him every time. Here is a man who knows the full danger of lung troubles, and would therefore be most particular as to the medicine he used. What is his opinion? Listen! "I use nothing but Boschee's German Syrup, and have advised, I presume, more than a hundred different persons to take it. They agree with me that it is the best cough syrup in the market."

A PRECIOUS HUMP.

The Queer Hiding Place of a Beggar's Wealth.

Every day for years past might have been seen on the steps of the church of St. Sulpice, writes the Paris correspondent of a London contemporary, a venerable mendicant with a hump on his back, which, by the way, did not diminish with age, but, on the contrary, grew in a most abnormal manner. It was not until the beggar was gathered to his fathers that an explanation of the phenomenon was forthcoming. Pere Antoine was a canny old man who did not make duels and drakes of the alms which he received. He spent very little and invested his steadily increasing capital in shares, which, with a certain amount of gold and silver, he kept in a bag securely tied over his ragged coat. Mysterious hints as to the importance of his savings led several people to show him considerable attention, and among them was a neighbor to whom he had promised the whole of his little fortune. A few months ago he was taken ill suddenly, and one night while delirious he jumped out of a window and so put an end to his days. The neighbor immediately possessed himself of the bag and found that it contained share certificates and money to the amount of nearly twenty thousand dollars. Unluckily, however, for him he soon ascertained that Pere Antoine had two relatives to whom he had bequeathed his savings in a will. The good neighbor sent them the contents of the bag, with the exception of four thousand dollars which he retained for himself, and the words: "Your uncle is an old rascal" which he forwarded on a piece of note paper with the parcel led to his discovery. He was prosecuted for the theft and was condemned to two years' imprisonment.

HAGGLED WITH WORTH.

And the Famous Man Milliner Feels His Dignity Seriously Outraged.

Every man has his price, though it is in the case of renowned persons occasionally high. No man understands this better than Worth, the man milliner, as any woman who wears his confections can vouch for. There is a good story, says the New York Recorder, told of how one misguided man ventured to remonstrate with the faiseur de chefs because he charged her six hundred dollars for a dress, which at first sight seems to ordinary people rather an inexpensive gown.

"The material," said the lady, "could be bought for one hundred dollars, and surely the work of making up would be well paid with twenty-five dollars more."

"Madam," replied the outraged tailor, in his loftiest manner, "go to M. Constant, the painter, and say to him: 'Here is a canvas and colors, value one dollar. Paint me a picture on that canvas with these paints and I will pay you thirty-three and one-third cents.' What will be the answer? 'Madam, this is no payment for an artist.' No, but I say more. If you think my terms are too high keep the dress and pay me nothing. Art does not descend to the pettiness of haggling."

History does not record the lady's reply.

LIKE A FAIRY TALE.

How a Poor Young Man Got a Diamond for His Girl.

A charming girl had a fine pair of solitaire diamond earrings and she lost one of them to her infinite sorrow. She could not find it anywhere, and after months of grief and spasmodic search she resigned herself to doing without diamond earrings. Having lost the mate of it she did not know what to do with a single stone, but she was full of womanly invention. She was engaged to a struggling young man without money except what he earned, and unable to bestow diamonds upon his fiancée. One day, says the New York Press, she was walking with her sweetheart, and suddenly pausing she pointed to a point of light in the street and said: "What is that—a diamond?" He stopped and picked it up with delight and surprise. "I suppose whoever lost such a gem will advertise it," he said. "Well, you keep it," said she, "until it is advertised for, and if it is not you can have it set in a ring for me." She wears the ring now and he does not know yet why that diamond was not advertised for or that his sweetheart dropped it in the street for him to find and have set into the ring she knew he was not able to buy.

Italian Brigands.

The Infame Legge, which was discovered a short time ago in Andria, is an organization similar to the Mafia Vita, although far less notorious. The confiscation of its account books in the house of a member led to the revelation of interesting details of its management. A candidate for membership received instruction in fencing and shooting for two dollars monthly. After acquiring the necessary amount of skill for his murderous calling he became a "mucophyte." The chief, during the ceremony of admission, cut the candidate in the breast with a dagger, and then the candidate, with his hand on the bloody weapon, swore loyalty to the society. The steps of promotions were indicated by the titles, "mucophyte," "regent," "the initiated," and "chief." In Barietta the Infame Legge had a woman's branch organization. The first arrest of members of the society took place on June 20 in Andria. In one hour fifty of these declared highwaymen and murderers were captured, and the work of hunting them down is still in progress. The name of the society means literally "infamous law."

Ayer's Pills

May always be relied upon as a certain cure for liver troubles, constipation, sick headache, biliousness, dyspepsia, jaundice, and rheumatism. Unlike most cathartics, Ayer's Pills strengthen the stomach, liver, and bowels, and restore to these organs their normal and regular action. Taken in season, they check the progress of colds, fevers, and malaria. Being purely vegetable and sugar-coated, Ayer's Pills are family medicine, while travelers, both by sea and land, find them to be indispensable. "We sell more of Ayer's Pills than of all other kinds put together, and they give perfect satisfaction."—Christensen & Haerlow, Druggists, Babwin, Wis.

Family Medicine

I know of no better remedy for liver troubles and dyspepsia."—James Quinn, Hartford, Ct. Capt. Chas. Mueller, of the steamship "Pelicia," says: "For several years I have relied more upon Ayer's Pills than anything else in the medicine chest, to regulate my bowels, and those of the ship's crew. These Pills are not severe in their action, but do their work thoroughly. I have used them, and with good effect, for the cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and dyspepsia."
