The Gila Valley railroad is surely doing a heavy business. At all hours of the day and night, long freight trains come and go, loaded with products of the mines and valley for the outer world, and with merchandise from outside for the people of this valley. So heavy is the traffic, a disinterested observer might easily believe the local road was a transcontinental line.

Charles Schroeder, the enterprising baker announces that he is extremely gratified at the generous patronage he has already received. On the Fourth of July, everything he had prepared was sold, although he had provided an enormous supply of pastry and bread. Not a shred of anything to eat was left in the shop. Mr. Schroeder also expresses his gratitude to Mr. and Mrs. Dial and Mr. Miller for their generous aid on the Fourth.

Reckless Thievery Run to Earth

About three weeks ago a popular young lady clerk in the Cyclone store lost her pocketbook, containing several dollars and other valuables. Our local contemporary at once took charge of the matter, and with a burst of "scare" heads in wooden type, as ferocious as a circus poster, denounced the thieving marauder who would dare to purloin a purse in the brazen way that characterized the theft in question. The sleuths of the paper found several clues to the thief, gave rapid chase, and were close on the trail of the hell hound for two or three weeks. Nothing but the lack of bloodhounds prevented their nabbing the highwayman red handed. They even tracked the thief to his home, depicted in the glowing language possible only to our esteemed neighbor how and where the criminal spent the money; how he ran a riot of bacchanalian orgies with a set of horrid companions with his ill-gotten gains; and promised by the sacred Ibis of the Iberian Isthmus to hound him to earth or perish in the glorious attempt. There was a perfect chaos of bright, brilliant, broad wood type headlines, limited in size and strength only by the sad fact that our neighbor is only six columns broad, and with bated breath an anxious public awaited the paper's rounding up of the scoundrel.

Literary Society Elects Officers

The Safford Literary Society met at the residence of Mr. Roach in Layton last Friday evening and had a very pleasant session, with games, music, refreshments, etc.

 President, William Cavanaugh; vice president, Weaver Briar; secretary, Elsie Swanger; treasurer, Guy Houck.
 The next meeting will be held at the residence of Mr. Swanger on July 19th.

Town Aroused For Lost Child

A baby boy belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith of Layton strayed away and lost itself last Friday afternoon, and for a time great alarm was felt by its parents, as they feared it had fallen into one of the canals. They searched for it for some time without success, and finally an alarm was given and many citizens aroused during the evening. Lanterns were obtained and a systematic search was made. The little one was discovered about midnight, safe and well, placidly sleeping in an alfalfa field not far from home.

Lively Squabble At Pima Depot

A sequel to the Fourth of July in this city took place at the Pima depot Friday. Several young men insisted on smoking in the passenger coach, and when they refused to desist, the conductor endeavored to put them off the train. They put up a fight, and the conductor was joined by the brakemen, agent and others. A lively battle took place, the participants mauling each other around the depot for some time. One or two of the young fellows were badly bruised.

Record of Death On Recent Fourth

Chicago, July 5.—Thirty-six persons were killed and 1,471 injured while celebrating Independence day, according to the Record-Herald. In Chicago six persons were killed by revolvers which were supposed to be unloaded and with the deadly giant firecracker. New York furnished seven of the dead, while the remainder of the list of fatalities are scattered over the country. In the list of injured were a number of seriously injured, and some will probably die.
 The cannon cracker was fatal among children who did not understand how to handle it.

THE CHARMING WOMAN

Is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could not serve as an artist's model, possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires: neatness, clear eyes, clean, smooth skin, and that sprightliness of step and action that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive, not even to herself. Electric Bitters restore weak women, give strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, beautiful complexion. Guaranteed at all druggists. 3c.
