THAW HELD UNTIL PAPERS ARRIVE FROM N. Y.

Was Given a Brief Hearing This Morning

IS UP TO GOV. FELKER

New Hampshire Executive Says He Will Be Guided Chiefly by the Attorney General

Colebrook, N. H., Sept. 11.—At the hearing in the Thaw case this morning no action was taken. Proceedings were adjourned to this afternoon but delay will probably be taken until the requisition papers arrive from New York.

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 10.—"Any action that I may take in the Thaw case will be governed largely by the recommendations of Attorney General Tuttle," said Governor Samuel B. Felker today. Governor Felker said that he had received no official notification as yet of Thaw's presence in the state. Attorneys for Thaw had, he said, telephoned him from New York asking for a hearing in behalf of their client before any action on the proposed extradition proceedings against him should be taken. "In this, as in all other matters of the kind," said the governor, "I rely on the attorney general for legal advice. He is a man of experience in such matters."

Colebrook, N. H., Sept. 11.—Harry Kendall Thaw, fugitive from Matteawan, N. Y., arrived here after one of the most exciting days in his career.

Thaw unexpectedly over the Canadian border early today despite the writ of habeas corpus demanding his production before the king's bench in Montreal next Monday, for three hours he was a free man and during that time drove madly in an automobile for 50 miles through the hills of Vermont and New Hampshire. Noon, he ran into the arms of a New Hampshire sheriff and was brought to Colebrook where he retained counsel to resist extradition.

William Travers Jerome, rushing hither on a special train, will assume charge of the case for New York state tomorrow and seek to have Thaw returned to Matteawan. Meantime, Thaw is "detained," charged with no crime, held on no warrant.

When he heard that Jerome was coming for Thaw, Jerome's attorney, Thaw's lawyer, and a special guard and chief of police Kelley swore in 12 armed special deputies who are patrolling the streets about Thaw's hotel tonight.

At 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, Judge R. N. Chamberlin of the Superior court, will hear the applications of Thaw's lawyers for a writ of habeas corpus. Application for the writ was first made this afternoon, but the judge, being occupied with another case, said he could not then consider it.

Atch being put over the border yesterday morning, for perhaps half a minute, Thaw stood there, his straw hat pulled over his eyes, his hair a-wavy, his face unshaven, his clothes rumpled. Then, as there was nothing else to do, he climbed into the automobile of a newspaper correspondent and asked to be driven away.

"Take me to the New Hampshire line," he implored. "Jerome has got the attorney general of Vermont fixed in New Hampshire. I believe I would have a fighting chance against extradition. Maybe we can reach a railroad somewhere and I can buy a through ticket to Detroit."

Talking incoherently of Detroit, his lawyers, his mother and of writs of habeas corpus, he was driven east over a winding road a stone's throw from the boundary. At Averill, Vt., five miles on, the car stopped at the Lakeside inn, a small summer hotel overlooking Lake Averill.

Thaw had not breakfasted. He ordered bread and milk and gulped it down while he tried to get Montreal over the long distance telephone to inform his Canadian counsel and his mother of his predicament.

But wires were bad and Thaw was excited and he could make no connection. He strode out on the porch only to learn that the chauffeur of the car had deserted. This man was Thomas Tribby a substantial business man of Colebrook, and he had volunteered to assist the newspaper men, but had not counted on aiding Harry K. Thaw. Besides, he had not reported his car on crossing the boundary as required by the customs regulations and he was afraid of the consequences. Reluctantly, he turned back leaving Thaw fuming on the porch of the little hotel.

Then came up Frank Cantin, a lean French Canadian. He was driving a small, four-seater car and he was ready to travel anywhere for money. "Sure I will drive you to Hades and back," he assured the fugitive.

Thaw and two newspaper correspondents got in. Thaw sat on the back seat, clinging tightly to a box of cigars. This was all the baggage he carried.

The little car jumped away. Cantin evidently thought it was a race for life. Thaw lit a cigar and tried to appear calm. His hat was swept off, dust blinded his eyes. The car took the Vermont hills like a deerhound.

"Never mind my hat," shouted the fugitive, "we don't want to break our necks."

William Travers Jerome and Franklin Kennedy, deputy attorney general of New York, arrived here at 11.05 o'clock tonight.

Crowds poured into Colebrook tonight as if there were a circus in town.

As a matter of form, Thaw was "arrested" in his room shortly after 9 o'clock on a complaint sworn to by Sheriff Drew, based on information that Justice Morchamer in Dutchess county, New York, has issued a blanket warrant charging Thaw and those who assisted him in his escape from Matteawan on Sunday, August 17, with conspiracy.

Thaw probably will be arraigned tomorrow before a police magistrate on the conspiracy complaint. The ordinary procedure would be to remand him for several days pending a request from New York to Gov. Samuel B. Felker for Thaw's extradition.

Before the governor acts on this he will, if precedent is followed, call for the attorney general's report.

Parmelee of Enosburg Falls and Mrs. W. H. H. Avery.

MR. COBURN AT HOME

North Bennington Pastor is Given a Reception

Tuesday evening witnessed an unusually pleasant gathering at the Baptist church, North Bennington, where a reception was given the pastor, Rev. W. I. Coburn, who has just returned from spending the summer months abroad. The church parlors were well filled with members of the congregation and other friends of the pastor. The rooms were beautifully decorated with cut flowers and potted plants; with a motto, "Welcome Home," conspicuous place above an arch of flowers and green, where the speakers of the evening stood. Music was furnished by an orchestra of three pieces and two solos were charmingly rendered by Mrs. Wells W. White. Several addresses of welcome were given: one from Deacon Henry Darling in behalf of the church; one from Miss Mildred Eddy for the Sunday school. Miss Elsie Millington welcomed the pastor as the new president of the Young People's Union and Mrs. Jay Leomis spoke in behalf of the Ladies' Aid and Mission societies.

Rev. J. S. Clark, pastor of the Congregational church, was present, and extended a cordial welcome in a very happy manner, touching on the pleasant relations existing between the churches in the community. He assured the pastor that with privileges come responsibilities, as he has been permitted the pleasure of seeing many hands, so it now becomes his duty to give to his friends views of the outside world seen through his eyes. Mr. Coburn responded to the various welcomes in his usually pleasing manner, expressing his great joy at being at home again under the stars and stripes. He said to appreciate our homes we should go abroad.

During the evening the pastor was serenaded by the North Bennington band. The occasion, although a joyful one, had also its sad side, for the reception was also a farewell to J. M. Durr, of Arlington, Mass., who has so ably filled the pulp, during the pastor's absence. Mr. Durr, long endeared to every member of the congregation, and it was with regret that they bade him good-bye. A purse was presented to Mr. Durr as a slight testimony of regard from his friends. Cream and cake were served and all present reported one of the pleasantest evenings spent in the church.

$20,000 ALIENATION SUIT

First Case at Opening of Windham County Court

Newfane, Sept. 9.—Windham County court opened here this morning with Judge Willard W. Miles of Boston presiding. Indications are that the term will be long as there are 32 jury cases set for trial of which about half are slated for trial at the term. The criminal docket contains several cases including a homicide case from Bellows Falls.

The first case to be tried is that of Rose M. Bromley of Putney against Frank P. Bromley of Danby in which the plaintiff seeks to recover $20,000 from her father-in-law for alleged alienation of her husband's affections. The case will begin tomorrow morning before a struck jury and is expected to last several days. Chase & Chase of Brattleboro appear for the plaintiff and Lawrence, Lawrence & Stafford of Rutland and C. C. Flitts of Brattleboro appear for the defendant.

CURRENCY BILL IS DEBATED AND ATTACKED

Murdock Says It is Timid Halting and Half Way

ALDRICH PLAN BORROWED

If It Becomes a Law Will Compel All National Banks to Invest Their Stock

Washington, Sept. 10.—Oratory which will attend the passage of the administration currency bill through the House began today with a series of speeches for and against the measure. The general discussion will continue throughout the day and night sessions of the House until Saturday evening. Next week the bill will be taken up in detail.

Chairman Glass, father of the bill; Representative Hayes of California, Republican ranking member of the committee; and Representative Murdock of Kansas, Progressive floor leader, opened the debate for their respective parties. Chairman Glass presented the bill as a positive cure for the financial ills of the country. Representative Hayes admitted the value of some of the provisions of the bill, and Representative Murdock criticized the measure as "halting, timid, half-way, compromising."

The greater part of today's Republican opposition to the bill, voiced by Representative Hayes and Representative Dyer of Missouri, was based on the provisions of the measure requiring that national banks subscribe 20 per cent of their capital stock and five per cent of their deposits as a fund to capitalize the federal reserve banks.

Representatives Korb of Indiana and Phelan of Massachusetts, Democratic members of the committee, supported the arguments of Chairman Glass.

At the night session Representative Mondell of Wyoming (Republican) said the bill "borrowed the ideas and largely the phraseology of the Aldrich plan."

SHOOTING AT ESSEX

Workman on New Dam Killed By Boss

Essex Junction, Sept. 9.—An Italian who was only known by his nickname of "Jumbo" was shot and killed here this evening shortly after six o'clock by "Benny" Mazello, derrick foreman of a gang at the dam which is being constructed for the Burlington Light & Power company. Mazello fled to the nearby house of the master mechanic, pursued by two other Italians. The foreman sought protection and the master mechanic locked him in the bathroom.

Mazello was taken in charge of Constable H. G. Gates, and Sheriff J. H. Allen and Officer Demag were summoned. They arrested Mazello and the two Italians, who gave the same name, and lodged them in the county jail at Burlington.

Dr. Matthew Hunter and Dr. John Hunter were called and found the Italian called "Jumbo" dead from three bullet wounds. The body was removed to the Douglass undertaking rooms.

The shooting occurred near the bridge. It is said that the Italian who was shot had been discharged several days ago for intoxication and that since then he had dodged the foreman and threatened his life. The two Italians arrested with the foreman had not been working today. While the cause of the shooting is not known, it is supposed the Mazello shot in self-defense.

The Italians at work with the construction gangs are given numbers and their names are not known.

PROUTY HEARS LUMBERMAN

Mileage Freight Rates Asked in Place of Present Zone System

Chicago, Sept. 10.—A. Trichmann of Crossett, Ark., and other dealers today testified before Charles A. Prouty, examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in support of the contention of certain yellow pine dealers in the South and Central States that the mileage freight rates, if put into operation, would be more advantageous to them than the zone freight rate schedule which the railroads were using.

The dispute is between the yellow pine lumber companies of Arkansas and the yellow pine tract holders in States further South. Arkansas dealers say the lumber companies 700 miles away have the same freight rates to Northern points.

AFTER DEATH LIFE YET PERSISTS SAYS ODGE

British Scientist Takes "Advanced" Ground

CAN TALK WITH THE DEAD

Under Certain Conditions Sir Oliver is Convinced of the Possibility

Birmingham, Sept. 10.—The inaugural address delivered by Sir Oliver Lodge, this year's President of the British association, which began its annual meeting in Central hall here today, had been more eagerly awaited than almost any other similar utterance in the history of the association. Sir Oliver, as is well known, is one of the most "advanced" of present-day scientists, in the sense that he utterly condemns the failure of science as a whole to take into consideration the discoveries, or alleged discoveries, of those who are engaged in what is now known as psychical research.

It was at first reported that Sir Oliver would deal with one or more of the subjects that are popularly grouped under the term "occultism." This report was later denied, but the earlier statement proved to be correct, and the address was fully as "sensational" from a scientific point of view, as the most ardent advocates of a more liberal view of the results of recent investigations in the psychical field could desire.

About 3,000 persons listened to Sir Oliver's address, including many men and women celebrated in various scientific fields. Lord Rayleigh presided in the absence of Sir Edward Schafer, the retiring President of the British Association.

Sir Oliver Lodge in his Presidential address chose the subject of "Continuity." He attacked the modern scientific tendency to deny the existence of anything which makes no appeal to organs of sense, and urged a belief in ultimate continuity as essential to science. He reiterated his belief in the freedom of personality and in the persistence of personality after bodily death, concluding with the assertion that, to his mind, the evidence went to prove that discarnate intelligence, under certain conditions, might react with mankind on the material side, thus indirectly coming within the scientific ken.

The Imperator, according to the dispatch, left Hamburg yesterday with the largest list of cabin passengers ever carried on a single voyage of any ocean steamship.

VILLAGE SCHOOLS CROWDED MORE THAN EVER

Rooms in Graded Schools All Above Limit

RELIEF NONE TOO SOON

Rooms Intended for 35 Pupils, Some Have Over 50—Increase Over Last Year Is 37

The public schools opened Monday and the fourth day of the term finds the enrollment in public schools 901, which is 35 more than the enrollment the second Monday of last year. The first day or week enrollment of last year was not recorded. After the round-up of truant the next two days, the second Monday of this year will doubtless show a gain over last year of 50 or more. There are 182 in high school, 79 of whom are in the first year class.

In the grades there is great need of two more rooms. No teacher can do well with over 35 pupils. Two rooms have each 35, twelve rooms over 35, and four rooms with less than that number. The kindergarten is the smallest with only 26. Ten rooms have over 40. Room 12 with forty-eight pupils and only forty-two seats; room 2 with fifty-three, room 3 with fifty, room 4 with forty-nine, room 5 with forty-nine present a difficult problem. The high school cannot seat all the pupils and is making use of hallways for recitations. Sewing is given the girls of the eighth grade two periods a week. The teacher of domestic science is rapidly organizing and planning the new course.

The list of teachers is as follows: High school, Principal F. D. Mabrey, science; D. L. Judd, commercial dept.; Anna D. Rogers, mathematics; Amy E. Cutler, English; Hazel McLeod, Latin; Florence Quilan, French and German; Elizabeth Hoffman, teacher training; Olivia Taylor, history; Ruth A. Spalding, domestic science; eighth grade, Bridget M. McGuire; Mary Robinson, seventh grade; Elizabeth A. Welch, Eunice E. Lyons, sixth grade; Frances L. O'Donnell, Mary A. Carey, Cora B. Whitney, fifth grade; Teresa H. Dalley, Kathryn Burt, Mary E. Hyde, fourth grade; Mary Cutting; third grade, Daisy P. Rudd; second grade, Elizabeth L. Keeler, Carrie A. Wood; first grade, Gertrude E. Carey, Agnes F. Streeter, Annie E. Dakin; kindergarten, Christine E. Bennett, Jennie Alden; supervisor of music, Mildred Ford; superintendent, Albert W. Varney.

GOATS PLAYED ALIVE.

Cruel Tortures Inflicted on Animals in Many Parts of India.

In an illustrated pamphlet issued by the Animals' Friend society of England attention is drawn to the Indian practice of playing live goats. This commercial barbarity is prevalent throughout Bengal and is done in order to obtain longer measurements for the market, so called long necks commanding a higher price on account of the extra length. The dreadful process is carried out by beginning the flaying at the eyes and mouth of the living goat and working down the neck, after which the throat is cut. In one of these cases, which came under the notice of the Hon. Mrs. Charlton, the flaying had been partially carried out, and the animal, though rescued from his tormentors, finally succumbed in misery to the agony he had endured. The initial act of torture was performed under the eye in the shape of a cut in the form of a St. Andrew's cross, and the skin, torn away in flaps, fell down the animal's neck.

The practice of branding domestic animals for ornamental purposes and slitting the ears and nostrils of donkeys is prevalent in many parts of India. These cruelties result in much suffering, though they are erroneously supposed by the poorer classes of the population to convey some benefit to the animal.

Bullocks with one side of the face almost burnt away are to be seen everywhere throughout the east, and but little comment is aroused by the plight of these unfortunate creatures, which toil yoked to a heavy, ill balanced cart. These poor animals are insufficiently fed, habitually overladen and overdriven, and their shrinking necks show tumors and ulcerated sores caused by the incessant working of the clumsy yoke in daily use.

In Delhi and elsewhere secret places exist where bullocks are turned into monsters for exhibition in religious processions. "I myself," says Mrs. Charlton, "saw one of these poor men made monsters at Hardwar, a sacred place in the Dun (United provinces), and secured a photograph. It was being led about in charge of a fakir, who showed me with pride several legs which had been grafted on its back, and the process must have been most painful." In performing this cruel operation more than one animal is killed in the greatest agony.
