The Taikoneac Camp Fire girls will hold their first out-of-door ceremonial tomorrow afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock. All members are to meet at the playground at 4 o'clock, bringing ceremonial gowns. The prospective woodgatherers should learn the form for receiving their ring.

The playground will be reserved for the use of older girls Monday and Thursday evenings during the rest of the summer. There will be basketball, volley ball, and tennis, special instruction being given to beginners in this latter sport. After a couple weeks of practice a series of match basketball games will be arranged and also a tennis tournament. Only girls over 14 years may come. Start tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. L. Durand of Paris are expected to arrive in New York tomorrow and Mrs. Durand will come to Bennington to visit her mother, Mrs. E. D. Bennett. Mr. Durand's business has been destroyed by the war and he expects to remain in this country until the war is over. Mr. Durand tried to enlist but was rejected on account of being near-sighted. His younger brother, Louis Durand was in the French army, but had been in the trenches only two days when the explosion of a shell broke both his eardrums and injured him so badly about the head that he is still in the hospital.

CASTLE OF DESPOND.

It Got Its Dismal Name From a Tragedy Born of Love.

One of the finest French renaissance buildings in France is the Castle of Despond, famous in the legendary lore of the Toulousian country in which it stands. Over the window of one of the inner courtyards is sculptured in the stone a head above the motto, "Plus d'Espoir." These were the last words of Rose de Martial, whose story has been sung by the poets of Toulous.

Rose de Martial was the daughter of the house of Martial, to whom the castle belonged, and she was courted by the lord of Castelhat, whose manor she could see from her window. But, although she was beautiful and tender hearted, the lord flitted her, and she fell into a melancholy. She sat every day by the window, whence she could see the little lord of Castelhat's manor.

One morning he passed by in the valley below. She sang to him, but he never looked up. "Plus d'Espoir" she cried and threw herself out of the window on to the flags below, where she was killed. The manor of Martial was known thenceforward as the Castle of Despond.

The fine building was falling to ruins when M. Fomelle bought it, and he had it completely and skillfully restored before making a gift of it to the nation.

DEEP SEA FISHES.

Some That Get Along With Only One Meal or So a Year.

There are more than 50,000,000 square miles covered by a depth of three miles of sea, but even at this great depth—where the pressure of the water above would instantly crush a man's body to pulp—there is a great world of life.

Many of the fish and other creatures of the deep are blind.

They are, however, able to see by means of the lights which they carry themselves.

The "lamps" are little organs dotted over the body, and with the light from them, which is made in much the same marvelous way as the glow worm's, they can use their bulging eyes to see what is going on about them.

But even with the ready made lighting apparatus and telescope eyes it is a difficult business finding a dinner, so the fish have jaws with an enormous gape and a stomach so elastic that they can accommodate a larger fish than their voracious appetites themselves.

When they have made such a capture they retire for something like a year's meditation to digest the meal, two or three of which are sufficient to last an average lifetime.—London Answers.

First Straw Hats.

The first hat of straw to be worn in the United States appeared in 1800. Straw had been used before to thatch houses, but not the heads of civilized citizens. It made comfortable bedding for cattle and was stuffed in sacks to increase the softness of the pine boards used by men and women to sleep on. But straw for the head? Never! It might do for the tropical savages, but not for the inhabitants of the great zone in which the progressive nations lived.

Previous to 1800 men had worn felt and cloth hats. And it was not till the time of Elizabeth that men began to wear hats at all, in distinction from caps and bonnets. The blossoming of literature in the Elizabethan period was contemporary with the building of brims on head coverings and their transmigration into hats.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Doubtful.

"When do you expect to see Green again?"
"I don't know."
"But don't you usually see him once or twice a week?"
"Yes, but yesterday I loaned him five that he was sure to pay back tomorrow, and it is doubtful now that I shall see him for a month or two."—Detroit Free Press.

Following Him Up.

"How about your constituents?"
"What of them?"
"Are they behind you?"
"Very much so," said the congressman. "Too close for comfort."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

ABOUT TRIMMING TREES.

For those who undertake the trimming of trees for the first time it is a suggestion worth remembering to saw from beneath close to the tree on limbs of considerable size. After making a cut of fair depth the sawing may be done from the top side. This precaution prevents the splitting down of the limb and the marbling of the trunk just beneath. A further safeguard in the cutting off of large limbs is to take them off a foot or more from the trunk, later taking off the stub. All limbs should be removed in such a way that the cut will be as close to the trunk as possible and on a line with the one of the trunk.

TOMATO BYPRODUCTS.

In Italy there are several manufacturing concerns that are now utilizing tomato waste in the making of valuable byproducts. From 1,500 tons of dried residue 150 tons of tomato seed oil have been secured and 800 tons of oil cake. The oil byproduct has been found a valuable element in the manufacture of soap.

The summer schedule on the Rutland railroad went into effect Sunday. The principal changes are the resumption of the train which leaves Rutland at 6 o'clock a. m. in the morning and arriving at Bennington at 8:15; the resumption of the train leaving here at 11:05 for the north, the changes in time of both the north and south bound flyers in the afternoon and the resumption of the train for Troy at 5:05. The north bound flyer leaves Bennington at 2:30 and the south bound at 3:15.

Claude Walsh, who has been superintendent in the finishing room at the H. E. Bradford company's knitting mill, has resigned to take a position of a similar nature in the west. At the closing hour Saturday noon the employees gathered about Mr. Walsh and one of their number in behalf of the force presented him a handsome ring. There was also a cut glass tea service for Mrs. Walsh. Mr. Walsh was so completely surprised by the expression of friendship on the part of his fellow workers that he was unable to make much of a response but his appreciation was plainly evident.
