VALUE FISH AND GAME CLUBS

Their Organization Advocated by Commissioner Titcomb.
State Fish and Game Commissioner John W. Titcomb of Lyndonville has been commending to the sportsmen of various towns in Vermont the fish and game leagues of Rutland, Bennington, Addison and Caledonia counties and has been advising the formation of similar organizations in all of the other counties. There is no question but what these associations have done and are doing a great deal of practical work along the line of protecting and propagating fish and game and creating a sentiment in favor of observing the law.

There are a great many men in Vermont who do no fishing and hunting themselves but who have been interested deeply in the matter because they believe that it is a distinct material asset to the State to have attractive fishing and hunting conditions. They realize that Vermont if it is to come to its own as the "playground of America"—to again use the characterization of Lord Bryce that seems to fit—Vermont must do everything possible to develop all of its natural resources.

The department in charge of Mr. Titcomb is certainly doing its full share toward keeping Vermont on the map as an ideal spot for anglers and hunters to come during certain seasons. Mr. Titcomb is quoted as saying in Brattleboro that the State fish and game department never had so many trout for distribution in public waters as it has this spring. While many sportsmen believe that fingerlings are much better for stocking purposes than fry the commissioner calls attention to the fact that the State has facilities for hatching about ten times as many trout as it can raise to the fingerling stage, and that as fry can be shipped for about one-tenth the cost of fingerlings the department believes it good policy to hatch all the trout it can and distribute the surplus fry.

Mr. Titcomb is convinced that fry properly planted at this season of the year—that is, distributed in the small tributary streams—are more valuable than fingerlings when the comparative cost is taken into consideration, basing his conviction on an experience covering a long term of years.

The commissioner says that a county or local organization provides the facilities for systematic stocking of streams and ponds from year to year, and that the counties that have such associations are getting the most fish for the reason that they make more applications than the others.
A club of 200 members each paying the small sum of $1.00 a year would have in its treasury funds enough to pay the entire cost of planting all the fish that could be secured from the State and the federal government, and if this work were carried on for several seasons the improvement in the fishing would be so great as to be almost beyond belief.

Commissioner Titcomb hopes to issue before long a circular letter to be sent to each of the 40,000 holders of hunting and fishing licenses throughout the State. In it he intends to explain the aims and hopes of the fish and game department and to point out why it should have the hearty co-operation of every hunter and fisherman in Vermont.

The letter will also contain argument in favor of the six-inch trout law and suggestions in regard to further changes in the laws pertaining to fishing. Mr. Titcomb firmly believes that great things can be accomplished for Vermont with the funds available from the fishing and hunting license fees, and he is anxious to have the sportsmen of the State in thorough sympathy with the plans of his department.—Rutland Evening News.

GERMAN "LEMON RUB"

It is Applied to Suspects as They Leave the Country.
Warnemunde, Germany, June 1.—The last impression of a traveler leaving Germany nowadays is likely to be that of a "lemon rub"—a measure intended to bring to light, or efface as the case may be, such maps and military information as may have been entrusted to the suspects skin.

According to the German frontier survey officers, the practice has been common enough, but recently great vigilance at all border points has discouraged such a method of getting information out of the country. The purpose of the lemon rub is to develop the drawing or writing upon the skin or to remove the chemical which through the action of another agent would become visible. Lemon juice, or its principal constituent, citric acid, will do this without injuring the skin or causing pain.

At a certain frontier point, the name of which is not given, 127 persons were detained and treated to the lemon rub in March, and one of the officers said that a number of long term imprisonments had resulted. He also explained that while the actual information obtained was in most cases carried out of the country by women, so that for some time it has been very difficult for women to get permission to leave the Central Empire, and quite recently the order went out that no woman who could not be vouched for by some responsible official was to receive permission to use the Balkan train.

On the whole, it has become almost impossible now to cross a border of the central group of belligerents. A veritable gauntlet of examinations has to be run by the would-be traveler before the necessary papers were obtained. These permits and visas have now been standardized in Germany, Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey. Getting them is equally difficult in all these countries.

LITTLE GIRL MURDERED

Child Assaulted While Going Home From School.
Boston, June 2.—Loretta W. Wakelin, seven, died at Melrose yesterday, after being assaulted while on her way from school to her home. The child's mouth and nostrils were filled with sawdust. Her assailant escaped, and the police say they are without clues. The father of the child, Joseph Wakelin, discovered the body after he had sought to learn why she did not return home for luncheon.

NOTABLE GATHERING

Vermonters from Other States to Attend Annual Meeting.
Vermont associations in other states are showing great interest in the annual meeting of the Greater Vermont Association to which they have been invited to send delegates. The Vermont Association of Washington, D. C., has appointed the following five delegates to be present at Montpelier, July 12 and 13: Major Charles G. Gould, W. W. Husband, Hon. Wendell Philipps Stafford, Mrs. William E. Chamberlin, Secretary of the Assn., Reverend Samuel H. Greene.

It is expected that Mr. Andrew W. Edson, president, and Mr. H. K. Twitchell, ex-president of the Vermont Society of New York will be able to attend the meeting and that there will be other representatives of the New York organization.

E. E. Rollins, secretary of the Vermont Veterans Association of Boston and vicinity, writes as follows: "In regard to attending the celebration of the 125th anniversary of Vermont's joining the Union such members as I have seen are greatly in favor of it. We shall have a special meeting within two weeks to consider the matter, and I will immediately thereafter inform you of the result. We certainly thank you for the invitation."

A Memorial Day Vision.

The past, as it were, rises before me like a dream. Again we are in the great struggle for national life. We hear the sound of preparation—the music of the boisterous drums, the silver voices of the heroic bugles. We see thousands of assemblages, and hear the appeals of orators; we see the pale faces of women and the flushed faces of men; and in those assemblages we see all the dead whose dust we have covered with flowers. We lose sight of them no more. We are with them when they enlist in the great army of freedom. We see them part with those they love. Some are walking for the last time in quiet woody places with the maidens they adore. We hear the whisperings and the sweet words of eternal love as they lingerly part forever. Others are bending over cradles, kissing babes that are asleep, some are parting with mothers who hold them and press them to their hearts again and again, and say nothing; and some are talking with wives and endeavoring with brave words spoken in the old tones, to drive away the awful fear. We see them part. We see the wife standing in the door with the babe in her arms—standing in the sunlight sobbing. At the turn of the road a hand waves—she answers by holding high in her loving hands the child. He is gone, and forever.

We see them all as they march proudly away under the flaunting flags keeping time to the wild grand music of war—marching down the streets of the great cities—through the towns and across the prairies—down to the fields of glory, to go and die for the eternal right. We go with them one and all. We are by their side on all the gory fields, in all the hospitals of pain, on all the weary marches. We stand guard with them in the wild storm and under the quiet stars. We are with them in the ravines running with blood—in the furrows of old fields. We are with them between the contending hosts, unable to move wild with thirst, the life ebbing slowly away among the withered leaves. We see them pierced by balls and torn with shells in the trenches of forts, and in the whirlwind charge where men become iron with nerves of steel. We are with them in the prisons of hatred and famine, but human speech can never tell those they endured. We are home when the news comes that they are dead. We see the maidens in the shadow of her sorrow. We see the silver-haired head of the old man bowed with the last grief. The past rises before us. We hear the roar and shriek of the bursting shell. The broken fetters fall. These heroes died. We look. Instead of slaves we see men and women and children. The wand of progress touches the auction block, the slave pen and the whipping post, and we see homes and firesides and school houses and books and where all was want and crime and cruelty and fear, we see the faces of the free.

These heroes are dead. They died for liberty—they died for us. They are at rest. They sleep in the land they made free, under the flag they rendered stainless, under the solemn pines, the sad hemlocks, the tearful willows and embracing vines. They sleep beneath the shadows of clouds, careless alike of sunshine or storm, each in the windowless palace of rest. Earth may run red with other wars—they are at peace. In the midst of battle, in the roar of conflict, they found the serenity of death.

I have one sentiment for the soldier living and dead—cheers for the living and tears for the dead.—Robert G. Ingersoll.

LOWELL ANIMAL FERTILIZERS

To Progressive Farmers:
Due to the great European war, there is practically no potash in this country available for agricultural purposes. This scarcity makes those commercial fertilizers which depend on potash far too expensive for the majority of farmers.
Extensive experiments have been carried on by the Lowell Fertilizer Co. in conjunction with farm experts. The results have proven that larger amounts of organic ammonia and phosphoric acid than are ordinarily used will practically act in the place of potash!
We have made fertilizers from nature's own prescription—animal matter, consisting of Bones, Blood and Meat. These fertilizers have been tested, and in every instance they have proven that good crops can be grown without the added expense of potash.
Read this letter from a progressive farmer who has tried the Lowell Fertilizer on his farm.
"In regard to fertilizers without potash, I used the three kinds you sent me, with good results. They were compared with a few tons of last year's goods containing 8 per cent potash. These I planted in plots throughout the field, a ton or so in the plot, and when I dug my potatoes, I could see very little difference in the yield. I shall probably use 30 or 40 tons of your fertilizer next year, and if I cannot get potash at a fair price, will use without potash."
E. J. PARKER, Patton, Maine.
You can make your crops good without paying abnormal prices for potash. See your nearest Lowell dealer or address
