European travel being prevented by the war now raging in European countries, the American people are being brought daily to realize the beauty of our own New England states. The Librarian has placed a number of interesting books about New England where they may be selected conveniently. Among the collection are several new ones, including "We Discover New England" by Hal, "Highways and Byways of New England" by Johnson and "Handbook of New England" by Sargent.

Preparedness: How it Helps Coughs and Colds. Early Fall brings cough, bronchitis with its racking, weakening cough, asthmatic breathing, troublesome night coughs, whooping cough, and tickling, irritable throat. It aggravates the distressing cough of weak lungs, and the chronic cough of elderly people. Buy your bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar now, and be prepared to stop these coughs and colds before they have a chance to work mischief in your system. It is a safe, sure and reliable medicine. BIG SHOW COMING

LeRoy, Talma and Bosco at Opera House Next Week.

Fourteen skilled theatrical mechanics, electricians and propertymen are employed by LeRoy, Talma and Bosco, the triple alliance of illusionists, transformists and necromancers, who come to the Bennington Opera house on Wednesday, September 29, with their big company of European mystery people. More than fifty tons of scenery, properties, electrical effects and other paraphernalia is carried with this organization.

Not since the days of "Ben Hur" has so many theatrical mechanics been employed with any road attraction. Every piece of scenery, every property used in their performances is carried with the company. It is the biggest and most elaborate production of the character. (In fact there has never been any similar attraction in this country) ever sent on tour.

The LeRoy, Talma and Bosco company was organized in London, England, for a three years tour of the world. Their engagements ran from one to three months in such cities as Calcutta, India, and Melbourne, Australia. The war interfered with its itinerary, and rather than risk further travel in the war zone the organization was brought to the United States. Since its arrival in America, its tour has been confined to the larger cities in the first class theatres.

Seldom has any attraction bearing the expense of the LeRoy, Talma and Bosco company been seen in the one and two night stands. The production is so large, in fact, that only the largest of stages can be used. Their supporting company is a large one numbering upwards of thirty artists. More than 100 head of live stock, which ranges from African lions to Canary birds, are used in the performances.

In Windham County

The primary produced one result which would never have taken place under the old convention of making nominations. For years it has been the custom to nominate one senator from each probate district. Under the new law the nominations go to the two men having the most votes on the primary ballots. Mr. DeWitt of Newfane received the largest vote, with Mr. Eddy of Brattleboro, second. They become the regular nominees, although both are residents of the Marlboro district. Mr. Ware of Townshend and Mr. Dvoil of Rockingham, both beaten, are residents of the Rockingham district. The southern part of the county also gets the sheriff and state's attorney, leaving the northern district with only two names to go on the official ballot—Warner R. Graham of Rockingham for judge of probate in the Rockingham district and E. L. Hastings of Townshend for assistant judge of the county court. This result was brought about by the provisions of the primary law and not by a desire of the voters of the southern district to "hog" the offices.—Brattleboro Reformer.

A Primary Vote of Over 42,000

A few days before the State primary various people in a position to have some idea of the situation expressed the belief that the total vote throughout the State would reach at least 39,000. That seemed a large figure when we consider the small number of voters that attend caucuses usually.

As the returns came in, newspaper offices began to amend their ideas as to the total vote, but few people dreamed that the aggregate would reach the figures finally represented in the summary of the State vote by counties.

When over 42,000 voters go to the ballot boxes in a Vermont primary to help select candidates by their own direct votes, as was the case on Tuesday last, a wide degree of interest is demonstrated and the system which generates that interest is worth more than second thought.—Burlington Free Press.

Detroit's Marvelous Growth.

The rapid increase in Detroit's population is due, not only to natural advantages, but to a certain progressiveness of spirit which is rarely found. The natural advantages, however, were not greater than those possessed by many other cities, most of which are still lagging far behind.

The increase in 10 years from 390,000 to 800,000 inhabitants is very unusual, even for American cities, and probably morals can be drawn to it.

While this city does not possess the best shipping facilities for every manufactured article, it is by no means an undesirable location. It is a little more expensive on the part of capital that is needed with the opening of the new canal a modest investment might very easily make Burlington the center of a great inland waterway traffic between Montreal and New York. There is room for more manufacturing. The woolen business has prospered here, and there is no reason why shoes and many other articles could not be manufactured advantageously.—Burlington News.
