Straight From Mother Earth

—Without flour your staff of life would be but a broken reed

The golden grain waving in the pure, sweet air, drawing strength and vitality from sunshine and Mother Earth, turns away in each tiny wheat berry all the elements necessary to sustain life.

Flour forms the bulk of the shapely rounded loaf over the framework of the other bread ingredients.

Just so, with its Gluten, rich in the quantities that rebuild muscle and tissue, Flour fashions the delicate fabric of firm flesh over the human frame, through the delicious medium of Bread.

Flour also contributes Starch, the fuel-element of Bread, the carbohydrates that produce energy. This splendid, invigorating, driving force quickens the brain, directs the body, gives zest and endurance for work and a keen joy in play.

DAVENPORT'S BREAD is made of the highest grade of wheat flour, rich in well-developed Gluten and Starch. The result is a quality loaf, wholesome, appetizing and nutritious because perfectly baked.

Colonists Poor in Aultery.

On May 13, 1788, congress ordered two cannons to be named, one "John Hancock" and the other "Samuel Adams," being the remainder of the four cannons which constituted the whole train of artillery possessed by the colonists at the beginning of the Revolution. The other two had been captured by the British.

FOR SUNSHINE LAND.

I want to hear the steamboat blow for sunshine land away.
 I want to hear the whistle sing for blue leagues down the bay.
 I want to hear the old stevedore yell out the bow line's free—
 I want to go to sunshine land that lies in the fairy sea.

I want to watch the bugeye's sail spread snowy in the light.
 I want to lie beneath the sky in the starry autumn night.
 I want to hear the captain roar and the mate pass on the sign;
 I want to sail to the sunshine land on the ships of the cliff line.

I want to leave the winter world and all the storms that fret.

I want to go to a summer clime and play I'm a youngster yet.
 I want to hear the steamboat blow. And I want to be right there when she shows her heels and her old side wheels.
 Throw the spray high in air.

WOMAN DIVER "MAKES GOOD"

Her Record in Tobemory Bay Compares Favorably With That of Male Companions.

Since 1914 it has become quite the usual thing to find woman invading what had always been regarded as man's own special domain in every direction, and now comes the news of a woman diver being employed in the salvage operations in Tobemory bay, which lies off the west coast of Scotland, near the Isle of Mull. Although the weather conditions were far from ideal on the first day she attempted her trip below seas, the venture turned out a complete success. In 1588 one of the treasure ships of the Spanish armada was sunk in Tobemory bay, and it is in connection with the recovery of this treasure that the services of a woman diver have been put into operation. During the last two months various articles have been recovered from the wreck, among them pieces of black African oak, sheets of lead, copper, and pewter, broken pieces of pottery, old Spanish coins, and some large roundish stones. With regard to the latter, in the general orders issued to the Armada by the duke of Medina Sidonia, appears the following instruction: "Every ship will carry on board casting stones to be used during a fight." The sheet lead was used on the largest galleons to protect their decks and sides. Among the coins are some pieces of eight, which are supposed to have fallen from the pockets of the Spanish sailors. These show the usual castles and also the claim of Philip II to be king of the Indies.

TOO LATE.

I'm going to the ball game this afternoon. I'm anxious to see our new ball player.
 My dear, it won't do you a bit of good to go. I saw by the paper that he had died trying to steal third.

The Curved Line.

The curved line has more than one meaning in music. When placed over two or more notes of different pitch it means that the notes are to be played smoothly, the first note generally has an accent and the last note played lightly. When placed over a series of notes of the same pitch with a dot over each note, it means that the notes should be detached, or played in a half staccato manner. A short curved line with a dot beneath indicates that the note or rest beneath should be prolonged indefinitely.

Now Prefers Home.

"How is it that Arthur never takes you to the theater nowadays?" queried Marie.
 "Well, you see," her friend replied, "one evening it rained and we sat in the parlor."
 "Yes?"
 "Well, ever since that we—oh, I don't know; but don't you think that theaters are an awful bore?"—London Tit-Bits.

Could Holler That Far.

"Here's a gent says his name has been heard from ocean to ocean."
 "I believe he's right, at that."
 "What do you mean?"
 "He used to be a lecturer on the Panama circuit, where it's only forty miles from ocean to ocean."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Time's Changes.

Mrs. A.—How do you manage to keep your maid?
 Mrs. B.—I'll tell you. In the old days we used to give the maid Thursday evening out. Now she takes the rest of the week and Thursday is our night out.—Boston Evening Transcript.

It's Not Being Done.

Her Mother—If you don't like Mr. Gaulk and his attentions annoy you, why don't you send him about his business instead of keeping him on the string?
 Vera Philippe—And let some other girl get him? I should say not.

Irritating Service.

"Why is Flubdub spluttering so about the service at that cafe?"
 "Some slick lawyer persuaded waiter to serve Flubdub with a subpoena."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Wonderful.

Wife—How do you like your new radium watch, dear?
 Husband—It would be wonderful if I did not have to light the lamp every time to find my glasses.

The Right Idea.
 A colored aspirant for a commission was being examined.
 "And supposing you were in command of a regiment in the field of battle and, in some manner, your men should be scattered over a territory of several miles. How would you collect them?"
 "Well, suh," answered the prospective as he scratched his head, "I think I would take a little path of dice and hollah 'Whose dollar bill?'"

LOCATED.
 Absent-Minded Professor—Margaret, please take that cat out of the room. I cannot have it making a noise while I am at work. Where is it?
 Servant—Why, sir, you are sitting on it.

Different Natures.
 "Edith is ambitious; she intends to be a woman one can look up to."
 "How different from her frivolous sister; her only desire is to be looked around at."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Couldn't Feaze Pa.
 "Pa," said Willie, looking up from his book, "what kind of fruit comes from an ambush?"
 "A bury," replied the old man. And silence reigned.—Boston Transcript.

Love Will Find a Way.
 "The old-fashioned buggy had its advantages. You can't drive a car and hug a girl at the same time."
 "I notice many ladies are learning to drive."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Tact.
 She—The reason for my assertion is as plain as the nose on one's face.
 He—Then if it is like your nose, it must be a pretty good argument.

TURNING OUT USEFUL MATCH
 Thirteen Distinct Processes From the Log to the Hands of the Consumer.
 Matches begin life as a three-foot log and undergo at least thirteen distinct processes before they reach the state in which we use them. First, the bark of the log is chopped off, then the log goes through a veneering machine, which cuts it into strips, and these strips in turn disappear into the chopping machine, to reappear as match sticks. As the match sticks fall out of the chopping machine into a chute, they are sucked up through a large pipe to drying machines on the floor above. After undergoing the drying process they are sorted and stacked in shallow boxes ready to go to the dipping machine. This machine is an arrangement of endless-chain carriers, which pass the tips through the fire-making solution. Such a machine can readily handle 1,000,000 matches at a single operation. After being tipped off, the matches are packed into paper boxes and journey forth to make the world brighter.
