PEACE IN IRELAND IS CHRISTMAS HOPE

Dublin, Dec. 14 (By the Associated Press).—The talk of peace between factions in Ireland increasingly heard as Christmas approaches action taken by a new senator of the Free State in appointing a committee to work for the immediate cessation of hostilities has developed evidence that a considerable portion of the Republic and that rank and file is moving in that direction.

It is feared that the unwillingness of the Irish rebels to surrender arms will prove the chief difficulty.

DAUGHERTY CASE SEEMS TO PROVE MOSTLY A FARGE

No Evidence Produced Against Attorney General

CHARGE NOT SUSTAINED

Chief Interest at Hearing Was on Conflict Between Burns and Gompers

Washington, Dec. 14.—Chairman Volstead of the House of Representatives Judiciary Committee at last night's hearing on the impeachment charges against Attorney General Daugherty, declared that he did not see any case made out so far and that, judging from the evidence on the first two days, he did not think it possible to sustain the charges.

The chairman asked Jackson H. Rabston, counsel for Representative Keller, of Minnesota, who brought the charges, if he did not think he "had a lot of cheek" to try to obtain impeachment on the evidence presented.

Interruption, controversies and objections marked the day and night sessions. There was so much law or that finally Representative Goodykoontz protested that the hearing had degenerated into a farce.

"I object to carrying on this hearing like a town meeting," said Representative Yates. "No one seems to have any gravity over this matter. This is not a vaudeville entertainment. It is a proceeding to impeach the highest legal officer of the United States Government."

The other witness was Thomas Stevenson, attorney for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, who is in conference with Attorney General Daugherty and other officers of the Department of Justice over the strike-impediment proceedings. Stevenson, while called as a witness for Representative Keller, said he was not there to press impeachment charges.

Asked by Representative Foster if he believed the accusations constituted grounds for impeachment, Mr. Stevenson hesitated and said he had not studied them. Pressed for an answer, he said he did not think so.

The hearing turned suddenly into an arraignment of William J. Burns this afternoon, with Burns on the stand before the committee. With Burns denied that he had taken part with a jury list on the Pacific Coast, and added that he had been "hooded" by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, ever since the McNamara trials.

Senator Johnson of California took the stand to give a glowing endorsement of Burns' character and ability. He discounted the fact that George W. Wickersham had recommended a pardon for a man convicted through Burns' alleged jury-fixing by saying that if the record was a question of veracity between Burns and Wickersham, "I have no hesitation in saying I'd take Burns." Later he explained that he did not know former Attorney General Wickersham and meant no reflection on him.

The three midshipmen thus punished are: Thomas J. Casey, Roxbury, Mass.; Thomas F. Boyce, Mount Vernon, Ind.; and Howell C. Fish, Bath, N. Y.

HERRIN RIOT CASE

Trial of Five of Accused Starts at Marion, Ill.

Marion, Ill., Dec. 13.—With Attorney General Brandage and Frank Farington, President of the United Mine Workers of Illinois, sitting at opposite tables, the first trial of union miners for the Herrin murders of last June got under way today with opening statements by the prosecution and the defense.

Evidence was offered by the State regarding the death of Howard Hoffmann, who was shot and stabbed in the groin and back and had his throat cut, dying in the hospital two days after the massacre. The first important witness for the State will go on the stand tomorrow. Three preliminary witnesses were heard today.

Despite efforts of the State to restrict the trial to a plain murder case, resting on identification, it became apparent at once that the whole issue of unionism, protection of private property by armed guards and rights of open shop employers would be kept to the front by the defense.

The driver of the booze car itself, who escaped when halted by Mr. Harburt, was nabbed on the train to Alburgh, having caught the milk train at the North Hero station. A telephone message effected his capture.

Mr. Harburt received a message about seven this morning that a booze runner had got by at Alburgh. Stationing himself on the Grand Isle bridge he stopped the roadster, and found the booze neatly packed in about 15 cases.

The car and the liquor were taken to the customs headquarters at St. Albans.

"Legislation for the disabled" was given "first and supreme importance" in the outline of purposes.

GRANVILLE WINS FROM LEGION FIVE

BY SINGLE POINT

Forged to Front in Second Half and Finished 31 to 30

LOCALS IN HARD LUCK

Shot Two Baskets Lost Because Fouls Had Been Called on Home Team

Last evening a fair sized audience saw the Granville All Stars nose out the American Legion basketball team by the score of 31 to 30 in a close and exciting game. Bennington's last score coming just before the blowing of the final whistle.

The game started somewhat slowly, neither side being able to score with any regularity, fortune favoring first and then the other, the half ending with the score 13 to 11 in favor of the local team. During the second half, however, by virtue of their superior team work, the visitors forged slowly ahead, the Legion, nevertheless, bitterly contesting every point until time was called. Paulson having a basket not ten seconds before he game ended.

While somewhat ragged in spots, the game never lagged for a moment and was, on the whole, cleanly played, the fouls called, being for the most part, the result of over guarding on both sides. The Legion's shooting from the floor, while not as yet good, showed a decided improvement over the Salem game, but the Bennington team demonstrated a marked inability, which failing may be said to have cost the game for the ex-service men. It was also unfortunate that two of Paulson's goals from the floor should have been coincident with the calling of fouls on the local team, for these two baskets, as later results showed, would have been sufficient to have turned the tide.

The Granville team created a most favorable impression here, by giving a clean and fast exhibition and showing at all times the most excellent sportsmanship.

It may be well to say in this connection that every effort is made to associate games with the fastest amateur teams in this vicinity but the people should understand that it is an event beyond the control of the local management, if visiting teams make last minute substitutions of inferior players as in the instance of the Salem game. Salem, as was stated in the Banner before the game, had one of the fastest teams in northern New York last year and the game would have been all that was claimed for it this year, had the men guaranteed by Salem's manager to appear in his lineup, made the trip to Bennington, and surely no one who saw the game was more disappointed with the poor showing made by the visitors than those who were responsible for securing the game.

On next Wednesday, the Legion plays the F. M. T. A. Society of Pittsfield, last year's champions of Berkshire County. This game should prove to be a fine exhibition of basketball and those interested in the development of a first class basketball team in Bennington should not fail to attend. The Legion team desires the support of the public and is doing its best to deserve it.

The box score is as follows:

MEN'S CLUB MEETING

E. L. Gaylor Speaker Before Congressional Club

E. L. Gaylor of Boston of the Harvey Blodgett Company, a firm which writes financial advertising for banks, was the speaker Wednesday evening before the Congressional Men's club. Mr. Gaylor's subject was "The Human Balance Sheet" and was illustrated in an original and interesting way by blackboard lettering and diagrams.

Mr. Gaylor defined "success," the factors in personal life which equalled success and so happiness were stated to be more "bits" of good and bad personality in the development of mind and body and pointed out how laws make or break men. Stress was laid upon the laws of health, and some very wholesome advice was given about exercises, breathing and eating.

Of supreme importance, Mr. Gaylor said, was the development of the qualities of action. It was service in life which counted for most. A man's success finally depended upon his capacity. The Rotary Club motto, "He who profits most serves best," summed it up.

Mr. Gaylor finished his talk with an interesting memory test tried upon the members of the club. Fortunately no one was called out before the others and all were asked to recite in concert what they had quickly learned.
