The following ministers of the gospel have used MILAM with beneficial results, and believe it to be a valuable remedy, authorizing the publication of their endorsement:

- Rev. J. Cleveland Hall, Rector Church of Epiphany, Danville, Va.
- Rev. W. L. McNair, Pastor Presbyterian Church, Charlotte C. H., Va.
- Rev. W. L. Royal, Secretary Board of Foreign Missions, Va. Conference M. E. Church South, Norfolk, Va.
- Rev. Nathan Maynard, Returned Missionary from Japan, Roanoke, Va.
- Rev. L. C. Douthett, Wallhalla, S. C. State Evangelist for Wesleyan Methodist Conference of N. C.
- Rev. J. C. Holland, Pastor Keen St. Baptist Church, Danville, Va.
- Rev. H. D. Guarrant, Methodist Minister, Danville, Va.

The Methodist endorses Milam. The Methodist has never taken any stock in, or placed its faith in, patent medicine. Many of them are fakes of the highest order. Revenue for no real benefit has been the policy of the promoters of these "miraculous" remedies. There has been in Danville recently a medicine that is the product of some of our best citizens can be accredited, has real merit. It is known as the Milam cure.

The effect of this medicine upon some of those who have been induced to try it has been marvelous as a restorer of health. The company who manufactures this remedy has had such a tremendous sale in the composed of gentlemen of the highest moral standing in Danville. We feel that in

"Yes, Tom," almost inaudibly. He gathered her in his arms and kissed her.

"Dearest," he said a little later. "I too, have something I must get off my mind. I thought I would beat Eric at his own game. 'All's fair in love and war,' he used to say, and so it is."

Rose looked startled. He went on. "Did Eric tell you he had sold the house?"

"Yes."

"Well—I bought it. The farm has valuable coal on it, Rose, and I sold the rights. No one knows it, but I am rich now. I had an idea that you did not love Eric Prescott, and I determined to try him, too. I got an uncle of mine to make an offer for the house to see if he would sell. Eric Prescott sent the answer by wire in less than five minutes. Now I am forgiven, dear? The house is still yours. You know."

Rose put her arms around his neck. "You are a dear, but I would rather live in the country," she said.

SOUTHWEST TOWN GROWS RAPIDLY

Franklin County Capital Shows Renewed Signs of Progress and Energy.

ROCKY MOUNT, VA. Special.

Though the $50,000 bond voted by the town for water, sewerage and a municipal power plant have not yet been sold, work has been begun on a survey of the town by Mr. Ludlow, of Winston-Salem, which will result in the treasury available.

The Norfolk and Western station here is being enlarged and improved at a cost of $7,000 or $8,000, and will be completed probably by the early part of April.

The 1,500 acre tract of land at Saunders Siding, about three miles from Rocky Mount, which was sold by Dr. John R. Guarrant to the American Apple Company, of Washington, D. C., of which Mr. C. Louis Allen is president, is to be cleared and planted in apples and the orchard conducted along the most scientific lines. About four plots of 100 acres each will be cleared and planted during the year, the first by the middle of April, a large number of workmen being engaged upon it.

Until the trees attain considerable size, the land will be used as a large canning factory to be erected at Saunders Siding by Mr. Ira Chapman, a prominent farmer of Rocky Mount, who has bought the mill owned by Mr. J. H. Kirby, at Saunders Siding, which he will run, in addition to a mercantile business that he will establish.

The American Apple Company has a paid up capital of $200,000, and the president, Mr. Allen, is an experienced grower of South Dakota, where they raise apples by the most scientific methods, but lack the climate and soil to get the fine flavor of the Virginia apple.

Franklin county, lying in the foothills of the Blue Ridge, is one of the best apple counties of the State, and Franklin apples won gold medals at the St. Louis and Jamestown exhibitions. There are a number of fine orchards in Franklin, among them the Algoma orchard, owned by Dr. S. S. Guarrant, a prominent and well known fruit grower, and the Nassau orchard, owned by his brother, Dr. John Guarrant, a former member of the Legislature, both of whom have done much for the fruit growing industry in this section.

FURNACE COMPANY IS NOW IN BANKRUPTCY

LYNCHBURG, VA. Special.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed before Judge McDowell, of the Federal Court in Lynchburg, against the West End Furnace Company, of Roanoke. H. H. Creider, of that city, was named as temporary receiver, who gave the required $10,000 bond.

The petition was filed by Charles L. Bailey & Co., of Harrisburg, Pa., who claim an amounting to $34,516.52; Edward Bailey, of Harrisburg, Pa., who is due $600, and the Nelson Hardware Company, of Roanoke, whose account aggregates $951.04.

The furnace is to be continued in operation by the court.

NEW YORK SPECIAL.—Wall Street

learned yesterday that the first offer to bet on the outcome of the next presidential election. The offer was made on the curb by a stock exchange house and no takers could be found. It was a bet of $5,000 to $4,000 that President Taft, if renominated, would be re-elected. It was said today that Wall Street had come to believe that Theodore Roosevelt would not get the presidential nomination at the Chicago convention.

The offer to bet will stand, however, for sometime to come.

NEW YORK NEEDS $11,250,000 FOR TREATMENT OF TUBERCULOSIS PATIENTS.

AUBURN, N. Y. Special.—Characterizing the lack of provisions for treating tuberculosis in the rural districts of this State as shameful, the State Grange, which in its session here today, reported a recommendation that $11,250,000 be demanded from the Legislature for hospitals.

The committee stated that tuberculosis is increasing faster in this country than the city, owing to the lack of institutions for treatment in rural districts. There are at present 15,000 living cases in the country in New York State, the committee said.

Order Obeyed.

WILLS.—My son was spending so much at college that I told him he must cut some of his luxuries. He said: "Did he do it?"

WILLS.—"Yes." He writes me that he has been cutting classes ever since."

IRISH AGAINST CHURCHILL METHOD

Soldiers Ready to Guard Speaker. Notices Reflecting on Visitor Are Posted at Railway Station—City Under Heavy Police Regulations.

BELFAST.—Special.—The expected and threatened by the Ulster Orangemen as a protest against today's home rule demonstration, broke out this morning with the arrival of Winston Churchill at the railway station. The chief speakers invited to address the meeting were the Rev. Dr. Johnston, a big crowd awaited the coming of Mr. Churchill at the railway station, and he had purposely selected a city in which would bring him into the city in the dead of night, hoping thus to avoid the hostile crowds.

The carefully laid plans of the statesmen went wrong, however, for the through which awaited his coming was a heavy rain. By the time of his arrival it was necessary to throw cordons of soldiers to keep the mobs back from the depot so that when Mr. Churchill, who was accompanied by his wife, left the train and entered an automobile, the crowd broke into hoots of derision and a riot was made toward the machine. Singing "God Save the King" members of the mob broke through the lines of police and soldiers and tried to enter the train. The Orangemen were hastily placed along the main lines, however, in the weakest places and the mob was held back.

Mr. Churchill, who was accompanied by his wife, left the train and entered an automobile, the crowd broke into hoots of derision and a riot was made toward the machine. Singing "God Save the King" members of the mob broke through the lines of police and soldiers and tried to enter the train. The Orangemen were hastily placed along the main lines, however, in the weakest places and the mob was held back.

There were cheers for A. Bonar Law, the Unionist leader in the House of Commons, and for Edward Carson, member of Parliament and chairman of the Ulster Orangemen's Association. But none for the leaders of the home rule party which are fighting for home rule. From the time of his arrival at Larne Harbor Mr. Churchill's reception on Irish soil had been hostile. But the demonstration was not so violent as that which took place at the Belfast railway station, where Churchill was compelled to see them, all unaccompanied.

When Mr. Churchill arrived at the huge tent which had been erected on the football field as a shelter against the rain, he was enthusiastically greeted. Thousands of men, women and children were on the grounds and other thousands were pouring through the streets.

The Admiral's visit was escorted by a detachment of police and constabulary. Other distinguished visitors had preceded Mr. Churchill to the grounds. Among them were John Redmond, Lord Pirie and members of the Irish Nationalist party.

Mr. Churchill opened his speech with an explanation of the home rule policy of the Liberals, but keenly criticizing the present parliamentary government of Great Britain, saying that they were not sufficiently representative of the local and professional life of the nation.

In order to keep pace with the world movement, he said, it is vital necessary for England to learn how to govern. The fullest expressions of national and local interest with the strongest brain of Imperial unity.

Mr. Churchill declared that he regarded the Home Rule as the first milestone along the road to eventual union of the English-speaking races.

Touching upon the religious aspect of the situation, Mr. Churchill declared that Protestant fears under home rule are groundless, for the necessary, he continued, for the United Federation of the British Empire. If the House of Commons is to hold its position, a great representative assembly of the British Empire must be freed from the mass of business with which it is congested.

Mr. Churchill outlined his idea of a home rule which should be constituted both in the senate and lower house to be really and fairly representative of the British nation. There should be Protestant and Catholic representation, urban as well as rural.

The Crown should be authorized to refuse assent to any unjust bill and the Imperial Parliament should be empowered to repeal such measures. The government home rule will contain provisions safeguarding the religious freedom of both Protestants and Catholics.

The speech was punctuated by surfragettes, who cried out at intervals: "How about the women?"

The interruptions finally became so annoying that the women were put out by force by the police.

MORSE MAY YET REGAIN HEALTH

FORMER CONVICT SITS UP FIVE HOURS DAILY AND READS THE NEWSPAPERS.

ATLANTA.—Special.—Sitting up about five hours each day, reading the newspapers and taking particular interest in the happenings of New York City, Charles W. Morse, former convict, ice king and banker, is making appearances recovering. It is now admitted that the report that he is permanently improved is true and hope is expressed that he will live for many years. While he will go to New York, statements that he will re-enter Wall Street are not confirmed.

Dr. A. J. Fowler, chief of Morse's physicians, made the following answer to a question as to the exact condition of his patient:

"Mr. Morse is able to sit up four or five hours a day, but not strong enough to go for a walk."

The physicians who a few months ago, when he was a prisoner under guard at Fort McPherson, stated that Morse had a chance to conquer the disease which seemed to threaten his death. The joyous anticipation of being in prison lifted from his mind has already given him new life and new determination.

While his friends will not admit that Morse has any idea of re-entering business in New York should he regain his health, it is admitted that they hope the President will restore to him his citizenship.

Plans have already been made for the transfer of the prisoner to New York, probably on Saturday, to be accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Morse. There it is planned for Morse to remain for several weeks before going to Bad Nauheim, Germany, for the carbonic acid baths.

Mrs. Morse refers all inquirers about her husband's health to Dr. Fowler, once the Federal prison physician, lately Morse's personal doctor. It will be remembered that Dr. Fowler stated on Morse's release that his year was all he would give him to live.

Dr. Fowler stated today that his patient is recuperating more rapidly than he had expected. He is mentally sane in physical condition. He said Morse can walk about his room and takes much interest in newspapers.

The Atlanta Journal carried today a squib over the return to health of the prisoner.

"The prompt recovery of Mr. Morse shows the triumph of pardon over suffer, or mind over matter, whichever it is."

LAUNDRYMEN WILL MEET IN RICHMOND

ROANOKE, VA., Feb. 8.—Mr. C. M. Deyerle, secretary and treasurer of the Laundrymen's Association of Virginia and West Virginia, stopped here from Richmond, where he attended a meeting of the executive committee, which has arranged the program for the next meeting to be held in Richmond, March 11th and 12th.

The organization has as its purpose improvement in laundry work and in the employment of better sanitary conditions. The membership now numbers eighty-four out of the 132 laundries in the two States. In September, 1910, the association met in Roanoke. At that time there had been twenty-six members and has grown to its present size since that time.

The Monotone Girl.

Sometimes she is well known. Sometimes she is effective, occasionally monotonous. All depends upon the girl's artistic sense and knowledge of her own coloring.

The woman who has not much of an income does well to be a monotone. The initial cost may stagger her, but it is not cheap to have all one's belongings match or harmonize. Once they do, there are wide possibilities in hangovers. Last year's hat or frock is much more possible when one wears anything but blue or black and white or various shades of brown.

In adopting a color make sure it is yours. Because you read somewhere that brown is the best setting for the red-haired, do not believe in "the brown lady" or "the pink lady" at market she is sure to look bad. If you feel pink in your color dress like a summer sunset the year around.

Consider age in being a monotone. The young girl who goes in for gray or black will rue it later when she has a feeling against looking ten years older. Better that than adopting rose color when the roseate tint of youth have fled. Gray, violet, black and white, on the other hand, give an older woman distinction, if well handled. She never need fear a "kittenish" effect.

Service durability must not be overlooked. Only the wealthy monotone can afford to wear nothing but white or delicate colors—nothing in the hands of an amateur. If leveling bills enter into one's scheme of life, fading is inevitable with many shades otherwise feasible.

Do not overdo your monotone. If you wear nothing but violet, for instance, don't think it necessary to have your walking boots made of violet to get harmonizing tones and cut out violet gloves. Gray or white ones always look well and are far better form.

If she must dress on little the monotone if her fate is to be economical. Undoubtedly one color dressing has much to recommend it for the girl on small allowance. It would have more if shades were not even more adaptable than radically different colors.

And the monotone must be a good buyer, have a clear business head. When you can take any gown or hat that is good looking bargains often come your way. Confining to one color, material, fit, tone and purse frequently are "at outs."

WEEKLY SHORT STORY

GIFT OF THE GROOM

By Oliver Roberts Barton.

Eric Prescott stood at the window of his little real estate office in Fordport. He had opened it in the fall and now it was spring.

He looked at the landscape complacently, well pleased with himself for various reasons. In the first place, coming from the South, he had survived and shaken all the cold Northern winter; but the warm May weather suited him. The freshness of everything, the little yellowish green leaves, the smell of the lilacs and the songs of the birds made Fordport more like home.

Another reason for his felicity was the little office and the row of six nearly completed frame houses half a block down the street. He could see the latter from his window. The outside work had been done before the rough weather and the inside during the winter months. Nothing remained to be done but the trimming, paving and one extra coat of paint on each.

Eric Prescott was engaged to be married to Rose Marshall, the belle of Fordport. When he had settled in the village eight months before Rose was engaged to marry Tom Lyle.

The minute he saw Rose Eric made up his mind to have her. The fact that she was engaged to Tom Lyle was nothing to him.

Few girls would have been proof against the siege he immediately laid to Rose's favor. His southern accent and excellent taste in clothes, waist set of his tall slender figure, made him a favorite with all women.

Eric showered gifts of candy, roses, books and music on Rose, who refused them all at first—then accepted a few flowers reluctantly. He was overwhelmed with many attentions, surrounded completely. Then she and Tom quarreled and that was exactly what Eric wanted. They were soon engaged and Rose was seemingly happy. She was the envy of all the Fordport girls.

The corner house in the row was to be hers when they were married. Eric gave her to understand that before she had accepted him. She joked at home about leaving the house as much as she loved Eric.

The house began to look different from the others in the row. The porch was extended around the side and made two feet wider than the other porches.

Rose, busy with her trousseau, appeared to be very happy and the wedding was a month away. She seldom saw Tom Lyle. He was spending most of his time now at the farm a half mile from the village. She congratulated herself that she had escaped a life of monotony in the country. Tom Lyle suited her.

One day she met Tom driving two strange men toward the farm. He seemed to be explaining something to them and merely nodded at Rose. She went home thoughtfully. He evidently was not unhappy.

The day following this meeting with Rose, Tom hitched his little black mare to the runabout and drove away to see his chief counsellor and confessor, Aunt Polly Goodwin. She was taking a "nap" in her sitting room when Tom drove in the gate.

"What news, Tommy? Sit right down here. Now tell me—is there much coal on the farm?"

"Yes, Aunt Polly, acres of it they say. Congratulate me, I am a rich man."

"Bless your heart, Tommy," said the old lady, wiping her eyes with the corner of her apron. "I am so glad, so glad for you."

"Thanks, Aunt Polly, but riches do me little good now," he returned a little bitterly.

The old lady looked at Tom keenly.
