WOMEN'S ACTIONS ON LINER SHOCK MENNEW YORK, Special.—Attention of the United States immigration authorities was redirected Wednesday night to a complaint signed by Professor Theodore L. Neff, of the University of Chicago, and other passengers against the conduct of women aboard the North German Lloyd Line steamship Koenig Luise on her last trip from Bremen to this port, ending on March 29th.Professor Neff says he caused the detention on Ellis Island of several women passengers, pending investigation of their character, in consequence of their actions at sea."There were about a dozen women," said the Professor in Chicago yesterday, whose conduct was outrageous.
Day by day they became more brazen in their actions. Ship's officers flared openly with them. Every one aboard ship was forced to witness this.Had to Let "Worst One" In.
"Finally a group of us decided to try to prevent the landing of the women. I drew up a letter and then other passengers signed it. It was given to the United States immigration Officer who boarded the ship down the bay."The worst woman of the group had a passport and the inspector could not prevent her landing. But after two of us had made affidavits that six of the other women had been guilty of improper conduct they were detained at Ellis Island."The ship companies should be forced to refuse passage to immoral women. I have written to the company at Bremen asking that methods at least be adopted by which decent passengers will not be forced to witness such outrageous conduct."It was learned last night that on the trip of the Koenig Luise a woman passenger, who was promoting the deck, looked through a stateroom door and was shocked by what she said saw. On her complaint a man and a woman, passengers, were taken to Ellis Island for an inquiry as to their moral qualifications to land.
When the witness was asked to testify against them she refused to do so, and they were discharged."No Evidence of Improperity." Assistant Commissioner of Immigration Byron H. Uhl said Wednesday night that because of affidavits by Professor Neff and two other passengers four women and two men had been taken to Ellis Island for examination, but nothing in the evidence proved them to be immoral, and they were discharged. The other women will be deported because they have not money enough to reach their destinations.Uhl said that the women had been taken to Ellis Island for examination, but nothing in the evidence proved
enough to reach their destinations.Captain Beech, of the Koenig Luise, said Wednesday night:
"No Complaint to Me"—Captain.
"Professor Neff sat at my table on the way over. I saw nothing wrong in the saloon. He never complained anything wrong that was the time to make complaint and I the man to receive it."Neither by action nor by word did Professor Neff intimate that he had seen or heard anything wrong. At night everything was serene in the cabin. I saw nothing out of the way, nor did any of my officers."When Captain Beech was told of Professor Neff's statement that some officers had flirted with women the commander's eyes glared."That is nonsense," he snapped.
"The ship's officers know how serious a matter flirting and improper conduct is. They do not take any liberties with passengers under any circumstances. I heard of six passengers who were taken to Ellis Island. I am not certain that they are to be deported, but I know none of them is going back on my ship."JUST WAIT, ANTHONY.
TILL WIFE GETS HOMENEW YORK, Special.—When Mrs.
Charles H. Anthony returns to Mr.
Charles H. Anthony at Muncie, Ind., she is going to give Mr. Charles a piece of her mind.Mrs. Anthony has been stirring up considerable fuss by wearing slippers with diamonds in the heels. The ubiquitous press, it seems, made note of this, and reporters out in Muncie approached Mr. Anthonyand asked him to explain. He snapped:
"The ship's officers know how se-

When He Fell and Expired.BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Special.— Former Governor Charles B. Aycock, of North Carolina, dropped dead at the Jefferson Theatre Friday night while addressing the Alabama Educational Association.Mr. Aycock was speaking on "Universal Education—Its Necessity and Benefit." He was about one-fourth through his address when he suddenly staggered back a step and fell to the floor so suddenly that those on the stage were unable to reach him in time to support him. Water was hastily thrown in his face and he was taken to the wings of the theater, but expired at once. His death was pronounced to be the result of heart failure.Governor Aycock followed Governor O'Neal, of Alabama, who had just delivered an address to the association on "Some Educational Problems." Governor O'Neal and other men prominent in educational circles in the South were seated on the stage during Governor Aycock's address.The remains were taken to a local undertaking establishment, where they will be held until advices can be received from North Carolina as to their disposition.Health Was Bad.
RALEIGH, N. C., Special.—Charles Brantley Aycock, ex-Governor of North Carolina, who dropped dead in Birmingham Friday night, left Raleigh last before last to deliver an educational address at Birmingham. The only speech he has made outside a courthouse this year.He had been in poor health for several months, and only a week ago returned to Raleigh from Philadelphia, where he spent a month in a sanatorium, fortifying himself for the strenuous canvass of the State which he was to begin Friday, April 12th, with an opening speech in Raleigh, to be followed by one in Charlotte, for the nomination by State primary for United States Senator to succeed E. M.
Simmons.The other two opponents of Senator Simmons—Governor Kitchin and Chief Justice Clark—began their campaign last night, but Governor Aycock had delayed his campaign for several weeks, meantime making an effort to build up his health.PARIS BANDITS LAUGH AT POLICEPARIS, Special.—While more than 100 of the pick of the French police and detectives were seeking the bandits in the last night, whose last exploit of holding up and killing an express messenger near this city has added to the reign of fear, M. Lepine, prefect of police, received a communication purporting to be from the chief of the band, mocking the authorities for their fruitless efforts at capture.It was learned that the value of the loot secured by the bandits from the express messenger, who was strangled to death near Ivry amounted to over $5,000.The police are continuing their search upon the theory that the majority of the band are anarchists known to the international police, although information secured privately that two women, Americans, are in the gang also.So great has become the panic among the more timid that many tourists have left Paris.Chauffeurs and messengers, whose duties compel them to carry valuables, have been granted licenses to carry weapons.Some of the tourist cars, whose routes lie through lonely sections, are little better than moving arsenals.FEAR FOR KNOX PARTY IN CUBAPrecautions Are Taken to Protect the Lives of the Americans.QUANTANAMO, CUBA, Special.— Secretary Knox arrived in Cuban waters Friday from Port Au Prince, Haiti.The cruiser Washington, with the Knox party aboard, got in from Haiti early in the day and was saluted by the United States warships in the harbor.Secretary Knox left the Washington, going on board the smaller warship, Eagle, which sailed at 8 o'clock for Santiago.Extraordinary precautions will be taken to guard the American statesman while he is in Cuba, because of the hostile feeling engendered recently by the order of the State department to the Cuban government to restore international peace or suffer intervention. The Eagle is scheduled to return here Sunday.Little Observations Upon Life.

ARE OUTLAWEDRICHMOND, VA., Special.—While the General Assembly of Virginia failed to do what was asked by Senator Burton, the State Insurance Commissioner, relief has been brought in an unexpected way by the action of Congress in suppressing the sulphur match—the kind that strikes anywhere and at any time.The bill to prevent the make or sale of the common match was presented in the Senate during the early part of the session by Senator Harman, and the match trust got into the game and proceeded to put the knife into the measure in a hurry.Even when the bill was so amended as to provide for what is known as the "double-dip" match, the members found that it was such a worthless improvement over the old "parlor match" that they did not press it, and the bill died on the calendar.The United States Senate has passed the bill after debating it for some two hours and in spite of the opposition of Senator Joe Bailey, of Texas, who ADVERSELY REPORTEDWASHINGTON, D. C., Special.— Senator Penrose, chairman of the Senate Committee on Finance, reported adversely from that committee the Underwood bill, which recently passed the House, revising and reducing the tariff duties of the metal schedule.The report, which was adopted two weeks ago, is the Republican response to the Democratic measure, and was endorsed by all of the Republican members of the committee except Senator La Follette, who was absent taken.The Absurd Question.

A prominent dentist in Omaha had as his patient not long ago a Kentuckian who, somewhat bloodshot of eye and unmistakably nervous, entered the office with the statement that he had a terrific toothache."Me tooth is in an awful fix," said the son of the Blue Grass State, showing further signs that he had adopted an alcoholic remedy for it."Does cold water hurt it?" asked the dentist, after making a thorough examination."Cold water!" roared the Kentuckian. "I haven't had any cold water in me month for the last thirty years."—The Popular Magazine.The Reason for the Change.
