We had urgent need of assistance in the case just referred to.

The question of the day is no more urgent than the question of the night. The question of the year is as urgent as the question of the hour. The question of the decade is as urgent as the question of the moment. The question of the century is as urgent as the question of the instant. The question of the millennium is as urgent as the question of the second. The question of the eternity is as urgent as the question of the breath. The question of the universe is as urgent as the question of the atom. The question of infinity is as urgent as the question of a single point. The question of God is as urgent as the question of man. The question of righteousness is as urgent as the question of sin. The question of love is as urgent as the question of hate. The question of hope is as urgent as the question of despair. The question of faith is as urgent as the question of doubt. The question of religion is as urgent as the question of atheism. The question of charity is as urgent as the question of selfishness. The question of education is as urgent as the question of ignorance. The question of knowledge is as urgent as the question of ignorance. The question of science is as urgent as the question of superstition. The question of truth is as urgent as the question of error. The question of justice is as urgent as the question of injustice. The question of peace is as urgent as the question of war. The question of freedom is as urgent as the question of slavery. The question of liberty is as urgent as the question of tyranny. The question of happiness is as urgent as the question of misery. The question of prosperity is as urgent as the question of poverty. The question of health is as urgent as the question of disease. The question of life is as urgent as the question of death. The question of eternity is as urgent as the question of time. The question of the soul is as urgent as the question of the body. The question of the individual is as urgent as the question of the community. The question of the nation is as urgent as the question of humanity. The question of the world is as urgent as the question of the universe. The question of the present is as urgent as the question of the future. The question of the past is as urgent as the question of the present. The question of the future is as urgent as the question of the past. The question of the present is as urgent as the question of the future. The question of the past is as urgent as the question of the present. The question of the present is as urgent as the question of the past. The question of the future is as urgent as the question of the present.