WHEN I HAVE TIME.

When I have time, so many things I'll do To make life happier, and more fair, For those whose lives are crowded now with care: I'll help to lift them from their low despair, When I have time.

When I have time, the friend I love so well Shall know no more the weary, toiling days; I'll lead her feet in pleasant paths always, And cheer her heart with words of sweetest praise, When I have time.

When you have time the friend you hold so dear May be beyond the reach of all your sweet intent, May never know that you so kindly meant To fill her life with sweet content, When you had time.

Now is the time. Ah, friend, no longer wait, To scatter loving smiles and words, or cheer, To those around whose lives are now so dear, That may not meet you in the coming year.

Now is the time. —Providence News-Democrat.

A HINDOO'S CLEVER TIP.

Shows Value of Mental Suggestion in Swearing Off.

Do you wish to stop smoking or even drinking? Have you tried and failed? Don't despair; it is the easiest thing in the world to give up the weed, or any bad habit for that matter. Will power has nothing whatever to do with it; it is a mistake people make. They try to cure themselves of bad habits by will power, but they can never succeed in that way. All you need is a little mental suggestion.

A few years ago a very talented young man was going to pieces because of his insane desire for whisky. He realized his condition, did everything he could to stop, but to no purpose. Friends deserted him; his talents served him no longer, and the street seemed to be his only refuge. One day he found himself in Boston, after a stolen ride on a freight, and, while wandering aimlessly through the streets, an amiable old man stopped and talked to him. The old gentleman had seen at a glance that here was a man whose face showed ability and refinement, but on whom the strong hand of drink had taken hold so tightly that wreck and ruin were upon him. The old man learned everything of the young man's desire to stop drinking and his utter lack of power to do so. He said to him:

"Don't be discouraged. I'll take you to a man right now, a Hindoo philosopher, who will tell you how to cure the drink habit without difficulty and in a very short time.

They were ushered into a room, where the Hindoo, a tall, dignified man a little past middle age, met them. He was a man who believed that clean habits brought the most happiness and that mental suggestion was a great aid in bringing about such a condition.

"Young man, you have exhausted your will power," said the Hindoo, after hearing his story. "What you need is a little mental suggestion and you will be a new man in a short time. You can apply such suggestion yourself. Let me tell you how! Now, keep right on drinking, but whenever you are about to swallow a glass of whisky think of something nasty, disgusting, and disagreeable in connection with drink. You see, a bad habit is usually based on the false principle that you are getting enjoyment out of it. Now, the next drink you take, just think of something very unpleasant in connection with it. Think if you will, of the starving mother and children waiting at home for the drunken husband; think of what a disgusting thing a drunken man is to the person who is sober. Think of yourself, of what your end will be if you continue. Think of what you might be if you let the liquor alone. Just do these simple things, and in a very short time you will have no more taste for liquor. Use no will power whatever. It isn't necessary, and it will do you no good."

Such simple advice at first made the young man laugh, but the earnestness of the Hindoo and his new-found elderly friend impressed him. It was so simple and it cost nothing to try. He would do it.

That night he earned a dollar doing an odd job for a saloon-keeper, and he proceeded at once to spend the money at the bar. With his first drink of whisky he thought of the degradation of drink, the poverty, the wretchedness, and the vice which accompany it. He kept on drinking with the same mental pictures before him. Still he drank until he was too drunk to stand and was kicked out of the place, only to be arrested and put in a cell.

He was discharged, and again sought the saloon. Those "drink pictures" were still with him. He persuaded the bar-tender to give him a drink of whisky, promising to sweep the floor or do any little job for him. Strange to say, he felt a disgust for that whisky, but he drank it down, anyhow.

Later in the day he again went into a saloon to get another drink. He filled the glass, put it to his lips, but could not drink it. It seemed like a miracle, but it was nevertheless a fact. From that day on that man has never touched a drop of liquor, and he stands today high in his profession, honored, and revered by all who know him.

"Well," said the newspaper man, "when I heard this story I thought I would try it and apply it to my smoking habit. Really I did not think very seriously about it, but my curiosity was aroused and I wanted to see what there was in it anyhow.

"So every time I lit a cigar I thought

"IF."

Twixt what thou art and what thou wouldst be, let "If" arise on which to lay the blame. Man makes a mountain of that puny word, But like a blade of grass before the scythe It falls and withers when a human will, Stirred by creative force, sweeps toward its aim.

Thou wilt be what thou wouldst be. Circumstance Is but the toy of genius. When a soul Burns with a God-like purpose to achieve All obstacles between it and its goal Must vanish like the dew before the sun.

"If" is the motto of the dilettante And idle dreamer; 'tis the poor excuse Of mediocrity. The truly great Know not the word or know it but to scorn.

Else had Joan of Arc a peasant died, Uncrowned by glory and by men unsung. —By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

"MAN'S INHUMANITY TO MAN."

"The average man comes very near being an idiot in taking care of himself. You have seen him wearing a fur cap on his head while his shoes let in the snow and water. He wears an overcoat on his back and nothing but a thin shirt over his chest. He is mighty scared about freezing his fingers while his throat is exposed to blizzards and he is often ailing or thinks he is. It's herb tea, root tonics, Psters pills, Paul's pine tar, condials or plasters and cures, until the balance wheel in the machine comes to a stop. Nature wants to keep going, but she can't. He drinks whiskey and that clogs the valves; he drinks beer and that clogs the wheels; he pours down lemonade, ginger ale, buttermilk ice water, tea, coffee, and what not, and then wonder why the fires under the boiler do not burn. If you should take an ox and put him through a like performance he'd be dead in a year. The simplest and plainest laws of health are outraged every hour of the day by the average man. Did Adam smoke? Did Eve wear corsets? Did Solomon chew tobacco? Did Ruth chew gum? Did the children of Israel make for a beer garden after crossing the Red Sea? Did Rebecca eat gum drops and ice cream and call for soda water? Adam was the first and was made perfect from head to heel. How long would he be main so after eating a mince pie before going to bed? Suppose he had slept in a bedroom 5x7 with the windows down, the door shut and two dogs under the bed? Suppose Eve had laced herself up in a corset, put on tight shoes, sat up all hours of the night eating her fill of trash and sizzled her hair. When you come to look at the way a man misbehaves himself you can only wonder he ever lived to get there." —Cherokee Messenger.

Kindly Man Best Husband.

(By Beatrice Fairfax.)

Girls, there is one indispensable quality to look for in a husband, and that is kindness.

A man may be rich and handsome, a power socially and financially, but if he is not kindhearted he is not the man to marry.

Good looks and money help a man very much in his wooing, but they can't make you a happy wife, if your husband is not kind and thoughtful of your happiness.

You must remember that married life is not a continuous round of pleasures, such as theatres, parties, etc. The husband is not so ready with candy and violets as the sweetheart was. But if he is tender and considerate you won't miss the excitement of courtship. The qualities that count are those you must live with day after day. A man may be an Apollo to look at, but if he comes to breakfast as cross as a bear he is not very pleasant to live with. Or he may give you every luxury and yet never give you the joy of giving you the petting and love your heart is aching for. And all his money won't make you a happy woman.

When a young man is attentive to you find out first of all if he is kind. Notice his manner toward old people and children. When he calls on you observe his treatment of your parents.

A kind-hearted husband will consider your welfare before all else. To work for you, to make you happy, to give you a good home will be his first consideration.

Don't throw yourself away on a man who has nothing but money or good looks to recommend him. A man may be extremely attractive and carry you off by his impetuous wooing, but try to keep your head until you really know him. Then if you detect him in any cruelty or disrespectful action toward others, send him away; no matter how much it hurts to do so. He may be charming to you now, but if his nature is cruel you will suffer for it some day. And if you have any reason to know he is temperate and kind, when you marry a man you are investing your whole life's happiness to him, so you must be very careful to know as well as possible what kind of a man he is. Of course you cannot know him really well until you marry him, but you certainly can know if he is kind and temperate. Don't spoil your whole life by marrying a man who will not treat you as a friend and companion as well as a wife.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE MAN OF CHEER.

We love the man with a smile, the man with the roses on his tongue, the man who sees your boy's dirty face but mentions his bright eyes, who notices your shabby coat but praises your studious habits, the man who sees all the faults but whose tongue is quick to praise and slow to blame. We like to meet a man whose smile will light up dreariness, whose voice is full of the music of the birds, whose hand-shake is a benediction. He makes us forget our troubles as the raven's dismal croak is forgotten when the wood thrush or the brown thrasher sings. God bless the men of cheer!

There is plenty of trouble here, but we need not increase it. There is a lot of dying ahead of time. There are living men, who have already crossed Jordan two or three times, and, unfortunately, they are not of the type who "cross the river of Jordan once in the Lord," but who sing, if they sing at all, dismallest, dreariest, deadliest music. The very tone is fatal to happiness. If you have faith, preach it; if you have doubts, bury them. If you have joy, share it; if you have sorrow, bear it. Find the bright side of things—God's side—and help others to get sight of it also. —Zion's Herald.

BODIES 9,000 YEARS OLD.

It is generally admitted that Egypt was settled first by people of Asiatic origin, and confirmation of this theory has been discovered in the graves of Nag-ed-Der, in which many skeletons of the earliest period were found. These were fortunately in perfect condition, and afford splendid anatomical material for determining the racial character of the prehistoric people, which ethnologists conclude, was Asiatic and not Arabian. Even the contents of the intestines were so well preserved that it was possible to determine, not only the food, but even the medicines which were contained in them. The disease from which the person died could be easily diagnosed. Many were resurrected who died of some kidney complaint, others of gall stones, and others of diseased bowels.

It's too bad to see people who go from day to day suffering from physical weakness when Hall's Rocky Mountain Tea would make them well. The greatest tonic known, 25 cents. Tea or Tablets. E. M. Sanders, White Stone; Ellis C. Richardson, Kilmarnock.

The public has probably overlooked the passage of a law at the last session of Congress, which deals away with the necessity of special delivery stamps. Instead of placing a special stamp on a letter which it is desired shall be delivered immediately, the writer has only to put on it ten cents' worth of stamps, in addition to the postage necessary to carry it to its destination.

A series of competitive tests and peaceful battles of the two types of submarine boats, the Lake and the Holland, will be made in Narragansett Bay, beginning on April 30. The Holland Submarine Boat Company and the Lake Submarine Boat Company have each built a new boat for the tests, the Octopus and the Lake.

A Delaware farmer dosed two turkey hens with rye whiskey and placed each of them upon a nest of twenty-five chicken eggs. Judicious potatoes kept the turkeys stupid and they would not leave the nests. The result was that out of 50 eggs 48 chickens came forth.

AGRICULTURAL HIGH SCHOOLS.

There was introduced at the last session of Congress a bill to appropriate $8,000,000 annually for industrial education in high schools of secondary grade. It is proposed in that bill to devote about half of this sum to instruction in mechanic arts and home economics in city high schools and half to instruction in agriculture and home economics in agricultural high schools. There have been established in various States between thirty and forty agricultural high schools articulating with the rural schools below and with the agricultural colleges above. As these schools return most of their graduates to country life, they are properly said to articulate with the farm also. This bill would cause the States to establish two or three hundred more of these agricultural high schools, one for each ten agricultural counties. Numerous cities have established mechanic arts high schools, and others have introduced mechanic arts and home economics as elective studies into their general high-school courses. —From "Public Industrial Education," by Willet M. Hays, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for May.

and the "mothers" were allowed to sober up in order to care for their broods, which they are doing with true maternal tenderness, though both seem somewhat puzzled over the matter. Two more turkey hens have now been put to rest upon twenty-five eggs each, and if the little black jug holds out there will soon be four dozen more chickens running about on the farm.

Dr. Theodore Gill, associate in zoology at the U. S. National Museum, vindicated the fish from the charge that it was deficient of all parental instinct, a belief which, he says, has prevailed since Aristotle's time. He says the male fish does the guarding of the eggs, and the raising of the young, and that often times the female would eat the eggs and small fry but for the male fish. This discovery is the result of almost a lifetime of study.

The suspension of publication of the newspapers of Butte, Montana, because the publishers would not meet what they regarded as exorbitant demand for the raise of wages on the part of the pressmen, has proved a fine advertisement of the advantages of advertising. The business of the retail merchants has been practically paralyzed, owing to their inability to advertise, and the leading department store of the city, which has a population of 36,000, is said to have sustained a loss of 60 per cent. An article in an outside paper says it is admitted that its retail business has fallen off from 25 to 50 per cent since the suspension.

A gift of one $1,000,000 for the establishment of a fund for rudimentary schools for Southern negroes was announced in Philadelphia Tuesday. The donor is Miss Anna T. Jeanes, a Quakeress of that city. Booker T. Washington, head of Tuskegee Institute, and Hollis Burke Frissell, president of the Hampton Normal and Industrial Institute, are named as trustees of the fund, but neither of the institutions they represent will share in the gift. The income of the million dollars is to be used for the sole purpose of assisting in the "Southern United States community," country and rural schools for the great class of negroes to whom the small rural and community schools are alone available.

This world is scared to death—the people I mean. It's easy to frighten people because they're ready for it all the time. Fear, fear, fear! Afraid of something all the time; looking for trouble. Oh let's be happy and forget it! We're not sick or sinful; let us be happy. * * * What people think is what they are, and the world is what you think it is. To some it is a paradise, filled with sunshine, flowers, loving friends, etc. To others it is a prison. The trouble is there are too few people who tell their own thinking, they let others do their own thinking. If you want to believe something, believe the dictates of the divine soul within you. Use your brains—God gave them to you to use. —Buster Brown.

Forty-one stalwart young men, each of whom averred that he was a total abstainer from alcoholic liquors of whatever kind, and one equal stalwart young man who said that he used liquor only for medicinal purposes, were vested with the powers of constables so that they may be organized into a force of park guards and policemen at Willow Grove Park, Philadelphia, during the coming summer.

An Irish priest had labored hard with one of his flock to induce him to give up whiskey. "I tell you, Michael," said the priest, "whiskey is your worst enemy, and you should keep as far away from it as you can." "Me enemy is it, father?" responded Michell. "And it was your reverence's self that was telling us in the pulpit only last Sunday to love our enemies." "So I did, Michael," responded the priest, "but I didn't tell you to swallow them." —Kansas Independent.

In reply to the question whether or not it is unlawful for any one to give intoxicating liquors to minors, Section 3828 of the Code, provides that if any merchant or tradesman or the keeper of an inn, ordinary, bar-room, saloon, distillery, or any other person dealing in intoxicating drinks, sell, barter, give, or cause to be sold, given, bartered, or furnished, or if any other person shall sell or barter any spirituous or malt liquors to any minor, or to any student of the public schools, or other institutions of learning, he shall be fined from $25 to $300, and in the discretion of the court confined in jail not exceeding six months. —Times-Dispatch.

The other day I picked up a newspaper, and glancing over the advertisements for help, read as follows: "Wanted—Bar-tender. Must be a total abstainer. Apply, etc." Is not that a curious advertisement? What should we think of such an advertisement in any other line of business? How would an advertisement like this look? "Wanted—A Barber, who has never had his hair cut. Apply at the barber shop on the corner." Or this? "Wanted—A Salesman in a shoe store. He must go barefooted while on duty. Apply at Blank's shoe store." What other business find it necessary or desirable to advertise for help pledged to make no use of the goods sold? Can it be that liquor traffic finds that it has wrought so great demoralization among its followers that it is forced to draw upon temperance, or total abstinence fanatics in order to continue business. —Exchange.
