

SHE AND I.

Why do I love my love so well? Why is she all in all to me? I try to tell, I cannot tell, It still remains a mystery; And why to her I am so dear I cannot tell, although I try. Unless I find both answers here; She is herself, and I am I.

making for the shore, with a good crew, one of the men standing in the bow, holding up a large lantern, which threw a broad gleam across the water. The sailors were soon ashore, but saw nothing of the boat. They shouted the little boy's name again and again, but there came no response. Far along the shore they pulled, but they discovered no sign either of the boy or the gig. For hours they vainly continued the search. "What surprises me," said an old sailor, "is that we did not hear the little fellow sing out when he found himself going adrift. Can it be, sir, he fell over and was drowned right under the ship's stern?" Bertram bowed his head on his hands and groaned. "I have had that same thought," he said. It was past midnight when the searchers returned aboard. The poor mother, as pale as death, seemed almost ready to swoon, when she learned that no trace of the little one had been found. "We will look again in the morning," said the captain. "Don't despond, Lily."

The report of the rifle had waked him, and he was soon in his mother's arms. His story was to this effect: After he got into the boat, he had commenced to pull on the warp-rope, which, suddenly parting, he fell backward, striking his head against a thwart. He was stunned, and for some time after he was so confused that he hardly realized what had taken place, but lay with dizzy brain, perfectly still. When at last he realized his situation, he was too far off to make his feeble voice heard. When the boat struck the rocks, he got out on the sand. After vainly shouting, he thought he would try to get nearer the ship. He left the beach, wandered about for awhile; but he became very drowsy near the close, marshy thicket, and so lay down and fell asleep. "Aye, aye, my boy," said the captain, and you may thank your mother for saving your life. Lily," he continued, turning to her, after they arrived aboard ship. "God bless you! You have proved yourself a noble creature. The other day I thought and expressed the thought, that one so frail and usually so timid as you could never be brought to show courage. Now I perceive and acknowledge my mistake, for you have shown me that the softest and most gentle woman may, in certain situations, exhibit more firmness and resolution than a strong man."—New York Ledger.

Light and Darkness.

A New York electrical journal some time ago told of an incident that occurred in the fitting up of a new office building near the New York end of the Brooklyn Bridge. The engineer of the building wished to wire the offices throughout for the electric light in addition to the gas pipes on which the conservative proprietor insisted. But all his arguments were in vain, and the apparently useless extravagance of electric wiring was obstinately vetoed. Suddenly, however, a happy thought struck the venerable owner. "Why," he said, "if the wires carry electricity, can't you make them carry gas, too?" A counterpart of this story is now told of a shipyard carpenter, a native of Troon, on the coast of Ayrshire, Scotland. When the contract for lighting the first three steamers fitted with electric light at the Troon shipyard was completed this man formed one of a social party gathered to treat the electricians who had made the installation and otherwise celebrate the event. In a burst of candor and comradeship, he was overheard saying to one of the wiremen: "Man, Peter, after workin' wi' you on they boats I believe I could put in the electric light myself, but there's only as thing that bates me." "Aye, what is that?" said his interested companion, willing to help him if it lay in his power. "It's this, man; I dinna ken hoo you get the ile along the wires!"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Why Lost People Walk in Circles.

It is a matter of common knowledge that when a man is walking blindfold or is lost in a fog or in some unexplored forest or desert instead of walking straight he has always a tendency to work round in a circle. The most commonly accepted explanation of this curious fact is the slight inequality in the length of a man's legs. The result of one limb being longer than the other will naturally be that a person will unconsciously take a longer step with the longest limb, and consequently will tend to the right or to the left, according as the left or right is the longer, unless the tendency to the deviation is corrected by the eye. The explanation is supported by the fact that in the enormous majority of cases the human legs are proved to be of unequal length. The careful measurements of a series of skeletons showed that no less than ninety per cent. had the lower limbs unequal in length; and thirty-five per cent. had the right limb longer than the left, while in fifty-five per cent. the left leg was the longer. The left leg being, therefore, more often the longest, it is to be expected that the inclination should take place more frequently to the right than to the left, and this conclusion is quite borne out by observations made on a number of persons when walking blindfolded.—Science Sittings.

Three Tall Brothers.

"The life of a Maine woodsman and hunter is very healthy," said Charles E. Hayden of Auburn, "and it is not an unusual thing that men who follow the life from boyhood develop into the veritable giant of old. While I was at Castle Hill, Aroostook, I made the acquaintance of three brothers, who were said to be the tallest men in the county. Their names were Allie, Elihu and Eliud Frank. These three brothers, laid along in a line on the floor, would measure twenty-one feet to an inch in their stocking feet, and without their caps on. Two of them were more than seven feet tall, and the other one was a little less. Old Mr. Frank, their father, was taller than any of them. Their occupation is that of woodsmen, farmers, hunters and horse swappers."—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

No Thanks Needed.

A friend of a certain Iowa Congressman tells a story on the statesman, who is at times absent-minded and makes embarrassing remarks as a consequence. During the last session the absent-minded member took occasion to pronounce an eulogy upon a deceased fellow member from a neighboring State. A few days after a brother of the deceased member met the eulogist on a street of the capital, and taking him by the hand thanked him very earnestly for the kind words he had spoken. "I beg you not to mention it," replied the Congressman. "I was only too glad of the opportunity to say what I did."—Sioux City (Iowa) Journal.

THE NEWS.

Edgar Thomas, a prominent lumberman of Ganaboro, Pa., and a brother-in-law of W. A. Croft, editor of the Washington Post, died suddenly of heart disease. The body of Mrs. Julia Huss was stolen from the grave in an Omaha cemetery. Forest fires destroyed a lumber camp near Lake City, Mich., and ten men were burned to death. Frank E. Johnson, the husband of a variety actress in Spokane, Wash., who recently applied for a divorce, committed suicide by shooting himself in the police court, where he had been arraigned on charges preferred by his wife. George Lanford of Marlatta, O., killed his wife and himself. The hot personal campaign between H. Hoy and Brodus, candidates for the clerkship of Page county, Va., has resulted in the withdrawal of the former from the contest and a challenge to Brodus to publish the threatened letters. Cheers greeted Rev. Dr. Talmage when he made the announcement in the Brooklyn Tabernacle that the building was free from floating debt. Eugene Y. Debbes, of Terre Haute, Ind., has been in New York several days consulting friends and old time associates concerning the organization of the American Railway Union as a new labor order. Mr. Debs was secretary and treasurer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen for a dozen years, but though an unimpaired and respected leader. Many valuable blocks of property in Saginaw, Mich., were destroyed by fire. Loss over $1,500,000; insurance $700,000.—Dr. Theodore Hartidge, for many years a leading Florida planter, died at Jacksonville. The Pioneer Furnace, owned by the Cleveland Cliffs Company, in Negaunee, Mich., will close down permanently. This is the oldest furnace in the Lake Superior district. It has turned out over $30,000,000 worth of pig iron, and been in operation forty-six years. Its closing down will leave only one charcoal furnace of ancient in the upper peninsula.—The arrival of the United States ship Albatross at Port Townsend, Oregon, completed the fleet ordered for duty in the Behring Sea.—John Wilson, while abducting Myrtle Summers, his niece, from Mulberry, Ark., was killed by the girl's father, who was discharged subsequently by the coroner's jury.—George Harris' mother, in Lansing, poisoned him to prevent his going up to become a thief.—William J. Burke was sentenced to life imprisonment for murdering his mother, in Rockford, Ill. Epstein's Dime Museum, in Chicago, was damaged by fire to the extent of $40,000.—James B. Murdock, the famous actor, died at his home, near Cincinnati, at the age of eighty-three years.

William C. Lanford, a pioneer lawyer of the Northwest, died at Spokane, Washington. He was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court of Washington Territory during Cleveland's first administration.—Lou French, who murdered Henry Fowler, was taken from the jail in Seymour, Ind., and lynched.—The body of murderer Palister, who escaped from Sing, was found floating in the Hudson.—The machinist employed at the Great Locomotive Works, Chicago, to the number of seventy-five, went out on a strike rather than to comply with an order of the firm that they would have to work by the piece.—The E. K. Warren leather whip factory at Three Oaks, Mich., one of the largest concerns of the kind in the country, was sold to a syndicate of English capitalists.—Judge Trapp, of South Dakota, recently appointed minister to Austria, sailed from New York.—B. F. Clarke, the real estate agent, is missing from his Chicago home, and about twenty-five of his creditors have instituted a search to discover his whereabouts. Clarke made a voluntary assignment May 1. Since that time he has not been seen in Chicago. An investigation of his business methods is being conducted by the attorneys who represent various creditors and it is claimed that he is short over $50,000.—Two tramps and a passenger were killed in a wreck on the Pass andale near Franzburg, O.

The schooner Polican foundered off Ashabula, Ohio, and three of her crew of seven men were drowned.—Five men perished by the sinking of a dredge in Lake Erie, near Conneaut, O.—A boat belonging to the life-saving crew at Cleveland, Ohio, capsized in Lake Erie, just outside the breaker, and four men were drowned.—Unusually heavy rain storms caused floods at numerous points in Pennsylvania and Ohio. At Newcastle, Pa., several planing mills and houses were washed away, and at Meadville, Pa., considerable damage was done.—Tramps took possession of a place on the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee Railroad, and held up the residents. A pitched battle followed, which ended in the capture of three tramps.—William Cox, a burglar, who escaped from the Hudson county penitentiary, at Snake Hill, N. J., two years ago, was recaptured at Jersey City, just as he landed from a steamer.—By an explosion in C. I. Pope's glue factory, at Geneva, Ill., six men were killed and one seriously injured.—Mrs. McBride, of Memphis, testified that Judge Duboise, tried to hug her.—A New York syndicate, backed by millions, has secured control of the bankrupt Sheridan Coal Company, at Sheridan, O., one mile above Ashland, Ky., and will reopen the mines at once.—The South Carolina Supreme Court has decided in favor of the state in the Chester liquor case. The points in the case did not touch upon the constitutionality of the law, but simply as to whether the City of Chester should not be compelled to issue licenses for a year, instead of six months. The decision is looked upon, however, as practically settling the legality of the dispensary law.—Judge Pardee, of the United States Circuit Court of New Orleans, has appointed R. J. Lowery and H. M. Comer receivers of the Savannah and Western Railroad.

ATE HIS OWN DAUGHTER.

Horrible Cannibalism Among Starving Indians.—Det. Its confirmed vague rumors of Indian cannibalism in the interior of the country on the south of Labrador current in Quebec for some days past. The parish priest of Seven Islands, on the coast, is authority for the report that some of his Indian converts made confession to him concerning one of their companions, who, last winter, killed and ate his own daughter to prevent dying of hunger.

RULE OF THE WOMEN.

Their Congress Begins at the World's Fair

Brilliant Gathering of the Fair Six From Every Section of the World.—Over twelve months of infinite labor, involving correspondence with every portion of the civilized globe, culminated in one of the most truly representative and brilliant gatherings of women that had ever assembled. The scene was the hall of the Columbian, in the new Art Institute, on the site from which the fair of the World's Women Congress, the first of a series of World's Fair Congresses, that will continue to meet each other, week a week, until the end of October. Nearly every city in the world is represented, and the gathering is a most successful one. The congress and its object is to unite all the temperance societies of the world. There will be as many as twenty or more congresses in each city, in addition to the meet in the halls of Columbus and Washington, which have a total of thirty or more, and every subject of temperance will be elaborately discussed. The delegates were permitted to get into the Art Palace and prior to the opening proceedings to be in the hall of the Columbian. The delegates were permitted to get into the Art Palace and prior to the opening proceedings to be in the hall of the Columbian. The delegates were permitted to get into the Art Palace and prior to the opening proceedings to be in the hall of the Columbian.

At an address of length was delivered by President Charles C. Boone, of the World's Congress Auxiliary. He paid a tribute to the late Secretary Blake for the earnest and untiring co-operation through the State Department, to the movement; also eulogized Cardinal Manning, Lord Tennyson and John C. Whittier, all of whom had furnished their co-operation, but had passed away before their names could be included. A number of foreign representatives were introduced and responded on behalf of their respective countries. Most of the representatives spoke in the language of their own country. In the language of their own country, Mrs. May Wright Sewell, of Indianapolis, Sig. Muggensen for Iceland; Mme. Quesada, for South America; Isabelle Bogelot, Ernest Urban and Ceille Hanon, for France; Jane Cobden, Edwin M. Florence, for England; Mrs. Dr. Todd, Mrs. John Harvie and Dr. Emily Howard Stone, of Canada. In the afternoon there was a public reception to the delegates in the hall of the Columbian, and the welcome exercises were continued, and the delegates from Germany, Belgium, Denmark, Sweden, Switzerland, Australia, Finland, Greece, Spain, Bohemia and Scotland were presented.

Getting the Fair in Shape.

In point of weather an attendance, the third week of the Exposition did not open so auspiciously as the second week closed. The wind again blew strong and cold from the lake, clouds hung over the White City, and occasionally made way for a glimpse of the sun to be seen, but no rain fell. Very little remains to be done to give the Exposition a full dress appearance. The foreign exhibits, especially in the Liberal Arts Building, are waiting for the dust and dirt to be removed from incomplete sections before they will expose their costly works of art, and in the case of New York, where the exhibits are waiting for the dust and dirt to be removed from incomplete sections before they will expose their costly works of art, and in the case of New York, where the exhibits are waiting for the dust and dirt to be removed from incomplete sections before they will expose their costly works of art.

CABLE SPARKS.

The Polish pilgrims presented 35,000 francs to the Pope. A treaty of commerce has been concluded between Spain and Germany. Valuable books and manuscripts were destroyed by fire in Bishop's Court, Isle of Man. The financial crisis in Australia is still acute. One month's no day has been proclaimed in Queensland. There was a lively altercation in the Berling arbitration court between Sir Charles Russell and Agent Foster. HERB PAACH, the Jew biter, was sentenced to 15 months imprisonment in Berlin for libeling Chancellor von Caprivi. The Norwegian radicals and socialists made a demonstration in favor of independence and universal suffrage. A BATTLE between the French and Siamese has occurred at Khont, in the Cambodia Valley, and several men were killed. The session of the Bohemian Diet was attended with violent scenes of disorder and personal encounters between the members. The Viking ship, which is sailing from Norway to the World's Fair, has encountered rough weather off the north of Scotland. A CONFERENCE is now proceeding at Hull between parties representing the shipping federation and the striking union dock laborers to arrange the details for the resumption of work. It is reported from Rome that Archbishop Fallot has represented that the hierarchy and leading laymen in the United States favor the establishment of an American legation at the Vatican. The Berlin correspondent of the London News says that Emperor Williams speech on the Templehof pier was carefully edited and the most reckless statements stricken out before it was published. THE GOVERNMENT to William I was unveiled at Goertrich by the Emperor, who said it was the duty of Germans to maintain the Fatherland in its integrity, and to that end they must strengthen the army.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS.

RIPON HAZARD'S forthcoming novel is to bear the title of "The Way of the Transgressor." He has just completed it. MATTHEW ARNOLD'S "Letters" are to be brought out in the autumn. Arnold's old friend, George Russell, the under secretary for India, is editing them. Mrs. HENRY WARD is writing a new novel—a companion work to "David Grieve" and "Robert Elsnore." "David Grieve" has been translated into Swedish. MARY, Marchioness of Albesbury, who has just died, has been for a century one of the most prominent figures in the fashionable world of London. She was the wife of the Duke of Wellington, and the two were old friends. The famous old lady was always a home ruler in a way, so much so that she has often tried Lady Salisbury's patience. ESOLIN loves the soldier, and at the opening of the Imperial Institute last week it had a big one to deliver. He was General Lord Roberts, back from India and a life of distinguished service. Many say Wolsey could not rank with him, and the life of the great soldier-England has had since the Duke of Wellington. He is a great organizer and has made the Indian frontier impregnable. NEW YORK is going into the skyscraper business, and proposes to set the pace from the start. The Manhattan Life Insurance Company is putting up a building 347 1/2 feet high from sidewalk to top of dome. The foundations will be put in by end of January, and will be planned 55 or 60 feet below Broadway. The building Broadway frontage will be but 47 feet. The architectural style will be Italian renaissance. A HALF-HOUR speech made by Gladstone in Parliament last Thursday at the dinner hour is said to be one of the most effective ever heard in Westminster. It was a reply to Chamberlain and was heard almost exclusively by sixty-five loyal Irishmen, who, when the Grand Old Man had recovered from a spell of weakness anguishing him in one of Gladstone's age, made the hall ring with cheer upon cheer. The observer said to go on living after such an effort as Gladstone would be in the nature of an anti-climax. WHILE it is not positively known that Major Mann Page, the president of the Virginia State Alliance, will allow his name to be used in the convention of the people's party for the nomination for Governor, it is yet believed that he will be the nominee of that party. It is believed the republicans would support him against the democratic nominee. A handsome mural tablet is to be erected in the chapel of William and Mary College in the memory of George Wythe, student and professor of this institution. The dedication ceremonies will take place in June, during the bi-centennial celebration of the college. The tablet is the gift of the Bar Association of Virginia. CHAS. A. SCHREYER & Co., of Brooklyn, N. Y., have completed arrangements for the establishment of a large tannery at Bristol. To begin with the tannery is to have a capacity of 30,000 large hides per annum, but is to be increased from year to year until it reaches a capacity of 60,000 hides. One of the five bodies found a day or two ago in the drifts of New river, near Bluebonnet, had on a shirt marked with the initials J. M. A. A well-known young man of Richmond, James M. Anderson, has been away from his home since April 11, and his family fear that he was one of the drowned, as the initials form his name. MISS LILLY KING, of Upper Clifton, London, E., was drowned in the mill pond near the celebrated falls in Falling Spring Valley, Alleghany county, She, with her brother, Thomas King, and several others were bathing when the accident occurred. Miss King was a young lady of most excellent character and considerable wealth, and had devoted her whole life, aided by her means, in the mission of redeeming the criminal poor of London, working in connection with Miss Octavia Hill. Miss King had been in America only about ten days, having come on a visit of recuperation to the family of W. O. Tule, in Alleghany county, who were English settlers. THOMAS A. BLACKFORD, for two years past commandant and professor at the Augusta Military Academy, has accepted a position as commandant and professor at Kanyon Military Academy, Gambier, Ohio. Mr. Blackford is a native of Lynchburg and a distinguished graduate of the Virginia Military Institute. He is a son of Dr. Benjamin Blackford, superintendent of the insane asylum at Staunton. JEROME J. W. MYER and associates, of Philadelphia, have bought the Rockbridge Hotel at Glasgow, and made a cash payment of $5,000 thereon. Estimates have been obtained as to the cost of completing the hotel, which will be about $12,000. REV. V. W. WHEELER, of the Baltimore Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South, has been exonerated by a committee of ministers from charges involving his ministerial character. MR. W. R. SLECHMAN, of Occoquan, has just completed a raft of 8,000 twenty-five-foot piles to fill a government contract for dikes in the Rappahannock river. MRS. MARY L. ARGENBRIGHT, wife of Geo. L. Argenbright, of Augusta county, died aged 88 years. THE Richmond Chamber of Commerce has requested Judge W. W. Crump to write a history of that city. A BATTLE WITH TRAMPS. They Held Up People and Robbed Them of Their Possessions. A gang of ten tramps, armed with revolvers and with considerable jewelry about them, took possession of the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee Railroad junction and made life a burden to everybody in the neighborhood. A saloon-keeper was held up at the point of a revolver and relieved of a gold watch and some money. The police were notified and three officers had a pitched battle with them, the tramps hiding in the woods and opening fire first. The officers responded, and over forty shots were exchanged, but owing to intense darkness, their aim was necessarily bad. The officers succeeded in capturing three of them after a hard fight, and one of them, giving the name of George J. Wilson, was so badly cut and wounded that he was covered with blood. He fought desperately, and shot twice at Detective Durr during the scuffle, but missed his mark. On his person were found a fine revolver, the saloon-keeper's watch and a kit of burglars' tools. After the battle the tramps escaped in the darkness, and meeting Patrolman Starr, who was attracted by the firing and hastening to the scene, they surprised him, and at the point of a revolver compelled him to throw up his hands, while they leveled him with his hands and revolver. A leveled him with his hands and revolver. A large squad of policemen searched all night for the other tramps, but were unsuccessful.

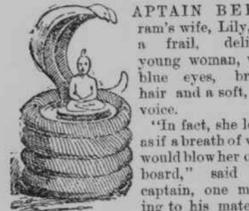

VIRGINIA ITEMS.

The Latest News Gleaned From Various Parts of the State

Wm. G. VETTER, one of the oldest citizens of Shenandoah county, is dead. Mr. Vetter was born in Mickselstadt, Germany, in 1804, and was eighty-eight years, five months and seven days old. He landed at Baltimore when a young man of twenty-seven years. Since the refusal of Greenbrier county court to grant bar-room license at Romeville five applications for drug store licenses have been presented to the municipal council of that town. The council has raised the license fee for drug stores from $20 to $70. Rev. J. William Jones has been elected chaplain at the University of Virginia, to serve for two years from the beginning of the next session. He is now the secretary of the home mission board of the Southern Baptist Church, with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga. Dr. J. N. Warwick Byrd died in California recently of blood poison. He was one of the pioneers of California, having moved to that State from Bath county, Va., in 1849 or '50, and was a man of considerable wealth. THE Radford Inn, at Radford, recently destroyed by fire, is to be rebuilt this summer at a cost of $30,000. The Enterprise Coopers Works in Goodland county, was the scene of a fatal accident the other morning. The sawyer, H. W. Carter, while adjusting one of the smaller bolts, was caught around the legs by the main 16-inch belt of the factory and carried under and over the wheel and thrown some ten feet against a brick wall. His legs, arm and body were badly crushed, and he died in a few minutes. He was about twenty-six years old. WHILE it is not positively known that Major Mann Page, the president of the Virginia State Alliance, will allow his name to be used in the convention of the people's party for the nomination for Governor, it is yet believed that he will be the nominee of that party. It is believed the republicans would support him against the democratic nominee. A handsome mural tablet is to be erected in the chapel of William and Mary College in the memory of George Wythe, student and professor of this institution. The dedication ceremonies will take place in June, during the bi-centennial celebration of the college. The tablet is the gift of the Bar Association of Virginia. CHAS. A. SCHREYER & Co., of Brooklyn, N. Y., have completed arrangements for the establishment of a large tannery at Bristol. To begin with the tannery is to have a capacity of 30,000 large hides per annum, but is to be increased from year to year until it reaches a capacity of 60,000 hides. One of the five bodies found a day or two ago in the drifts of New river, near Bluebonnet, had on a shirt marked with the initials J. M. A. A well-known young man of Richmond, James M. Anderson, has been away from his home since April 11, and his family fear that he was one of the drowned, as the initials form his name. MISS LILLY KING, of Upper Clifton, London, E., was drowned in the mill pond near the celebrated falls in Falling Spring Valley, Alleghany county, She, with her brother, Thomas King, and several others were bathing when the accident occurred. Miss King was a young lady of most excellent character and considerable wealth, and had devoted her whole life, aided by her means, in the mission of redeeming the criminal poor of London, working in connection with Miss Octavia Hill. Miss King had been in America only about ten days, having come on a visit of recuperation to the family of W. O. Tule, in Alleghany county, who were English settlers. THOMAS A. BLACKFORD, for two years past commandant and professor at the Augusta Military Academy, has accepted a position as commandant and professor at Kanyon Military Academy, Gambier, Ohio. Mr. Blackford is a native of Lynchburg and a distinguished graduate of the Virginia Military Institute. He is a son of Dr. Benjamin Blackford, superintendent of the insane asylum at Staunton. JEROME J. W. MYER and associates, of Philadelphia, have bought the Rockbridge Hotel at Glasgow, and made a cash payment of $5,000 thereon. Estimates have been obtained as to the cost of completing the hotel, which will be about $12,000. REV. V. W. WHEELER, of the Baltimore Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church South, has been exonerated by a committee of ministers from charges involving his ministerial character. MR. W. R. SLECHMAN, of Occoquan, has just completed a raft of 8,000 twenty-five-foot piles to fill a government contract for dikes in the Rappahannock river. MRS. MARY L. ARGENBRIGHT, wife of Geo. L. Argenbright, of Augusta county, died aged 88 years. THE Richmond Chamber of Commerce has requested Judge W. W. Crump to write a history of that city. A BATTLE WITH TRAMPS. They Held Up People and Robbed Them of Their Possessions. A gang of ten tramps, armed with revolvers and with considerable jewelry about them, took possession of the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee Railroad junction and made life a burden to everybody in the neighborhood. A saloon-keeper was held up at the point of a revolver and relieved of a gold watch and some money. The police were notified and three officers had a pitched battle with them, the tramps hiding in the woods and opening fire first. The officers responded, and over forty shots were exchanged, but owing to intense darkness, their aim was necessarily bad. The officers succeeded in capturing three of them after a hard fight, and one of them, giving the name of George J. Wilson, was so badly cut and wounded that he was covered with blood. He fought desperately, and shot twice at Detective Durr during the scuffle, but missed his mark. On his person were found a fine revolver, the saloon-keeper's watch and a kit of burglars' tools. After the battle the tramps escaped in the darkness, and meeting Patrolman Starr, who was attracted by the firing and hastening to the scene, they surprised him, and at the point of a revolver compelled him to throw up his hands, while they leveled him with his hands and revolver. A leveled him with his hands and revolver. A large squad of policemen searched all night for the other tramps, but were unsuccessful.

A WOMAN'S TRIAL.

BY RUFUS HALE.

APTAIN BERTRAM'S wife, Lily, was a frail, delicate young woman, with blue eyes, brown hair and a soft, low voice. "In fact, she looks as if a breath of wind would blow her overboard," said the captain, one morning to his mate, as they stood on the quarter-deck of his ship, the Flying Arrow, which was standing along past the coast of lower Guinea, Africa, on her way to the Cape of Good Hope. "Aye," said the mate, glancing toward the pretty wife, who sat not far off, talking to her son, a little boy of six years. "But in spite of what you say, I have no doubt she has courage. Her accompanying you on a sea voyage proves that." "Courage! She has none at all. I have known her to be frightened by a mouse! You yourself witnessed her terror in the storm we had a few days ago." "I think I have heard you say she is a good shot with the rifle." "Yes; all habit. Her father was a great sportsman, and he taught her not to be afraid of a gun. But she would tremble at the thought of shooting a bird—that I know. She could never be persuaded to fire at anything but a wooden target." "In case of an emergency, however—" "Nonsense, man!" laughed the captain. "She would be as women always are in time of peril—too hurried—too excited to do anything, how much so ever she might have the wish to be otherwise. But I like her none the less for this feminine failing," added Bertram, who, being a strong, powerful, decided man, seemed an excellent match for his frail looking, gentle partner. "But persons like her sometimes show more real courage than larger and more masculine women." "All bosh! People say that, but they seldom really think so." On the day after this conversation, a gale from the west drove the ship toward the coast, compelling the captain to anchor within a hundred yards of the land, in a small sheltered bay, to save his craft from going ashore. By the next morning the gale had subsided, but the breeze soon fell away to a dead calm, preventing the skipper from sailing. He had lowered his gig to enable some of his men to repair certain damage which the cabin window had sustained during the tempest. At night, the men not having yet finished their work, the boat was left astern, with the warp attached to a pin aboat. Little Thomas, the captain's six-year-old son, was in the cabin just after the men left the boat. The night was very dark, and none of the occupants of the craft observed the movements of the younger, who, when the cabin was deserted, opened the window, seized the warp of the boat, and, drawing the latter close to the vessel, got into it. An hour later, Mrs. Bertram, missing her little boy, went on deck to look for him. But she could not find him. The captain and his men joined in the search, but it was soon evident that he was not aboard. At length it was discovered that the boat which had been left astern was gone. The pin to which the warp had been fastened was found broken, showing that the boat had got adrift. "I see," said the captain. "Thomas must have got into the boat, and begun pulling on the rope, in this way parting the pin." "My boy! My boy!" cried Mrs. Bertram, in anguish. "Where is he? Where can he be?" The captain tried to laugh away her fears. "The boat has drifted ashore," said he. "The current sets that way. Don't worry, Lily; we will soon have him back." He lowered a boat, and was soon