HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Patron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without tiring me, and am doing all my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. GUNS COVER ROAD TO ATHENS PALACE

Russia Reported to Favor Deposing King.

NO INTERVENTION BY U. S.

American Minister Says We Will Not Interfere in European Affairs—Athens Garrison Deserts to Revolutionists.

Machine guns have been mounted in the streets of Athens to sweep the approaches to the king's castle. A rapid firer stands upon the roof of the Greek parliament building. The streets bristle with bayonets.

It was indicated by a despatch that British forces may be landed at Piraeus and Athens, if the French and Italian troops already on the scene are seriously menaced. Hostile demonstrations by the populace in front of the Italian, French and British embassies are reported.

A report is current that Russia is in favor of the immediate removal of Constantine from the Greek throne and the substitution of a Russian, probably a grand duke. Russia is understood to be opposed to the establishment of a republic in Greece.

Constantine, a London Daily Mail correspondent wires, in an interview with the British minister to Athens, complained bitterly of the action of the allies in recognizing the provisional government at Salonika. According to the despatch, the king told the minister that as the allies had deprived him of all power they had better address their proposals to Venizelos. The monarch made certain proposals which the British diplomat considered of no importance, and he recommended that Constantine change his entire policy.

Twenty-five officers and 600 men of the Athens garrison have gone over to the national government and left for Salonika, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch. Janina, in Greek Epirus, it is reported, has also gone over to the revolutionists.

The Greek provisional government, headed by M. Venizelos, has issued a proclamation calling to the colors the military classes of 1916 and 1914. The latter are reservists. The Venizelos government also invites the refugees now at Salonika to join the revolutionary army.

According to Paris despatches Greek soldiers are now co-operating with the French and Italian forces in Athens. A despatch said that Greek cavalry is patrolling the streets. A body of Greek reservists was parading the streets and shouting "Long live the king," in front of the municipal theatre when it was charged by French cavalrymen. It was dispersed, but another collected and began shouting protests against the landing of allied troops. Again the mob was charged by Greek cavalrymen and put to flight.

Extremely turbulent conditions were reported as existing on Wednesday night in a despatch from Reuter's correspondent at the Greek capital. Greek reservists, he said, had taken the law in their own hands, despite the presence of strong entente detachments of marines who were given virtually no assistance by the Greek authorities in maintaining order.

The London Echo's correspondent wires: "The American minister, Mr. Dropers, has made the following reply to Greeks who presented a petition asking the aid of the United States: 'The United States will not intervene in European matters.'"

Secretary of War Newton D. Baker when shown a despatch in Elmira, N. Y., quoting him as comparing the Mexicans with the American revolutionists, said:

"It is too absurd to be worthy of notice. I couldn't think of such a thing, to say nothing of saying it. It is entirely wrong. I didn't say anything that could possibly be interpreted that way."

GERMANS SMASH 3 "TANKS"

Trenches Taken by British in Recent Somme Battle Recaptured.

The greater part of the trenches on the road between Eau court L'Abbaye and Le Barque which were captured by the British on October 18, were retaken by German troops in an attack, according to the official statement issued at army headquarters in Berlin.

In the last great attack against the German positions in the Somme region the British used several tanks and three of them were destroyed by the German artillery fire, says the statement which continues:

"As only now reported the English during the last great attack also used some of their much trumpeted armor ed automobiles or so-called tanks. Three of them are lying before our lines having been destroyed by our artillery fire."

Attempts made by British detachments to advance north of Courcellet and east of Le Sars, the statement adds, failed.

John L. Bessler, a Pennsylvania railroad special policeman was killed, and Harry L. Chubb Harrisburg, Pa., also a special policeman, dangerously wounded by two negroes whom they were attempting to arrest near West Fairview for illegal train riding.

A posse of railroad employes and residents of the neighborhood was hastily organized and chased two negroes to the shore of the Susquehanna river, where they were arrested. They were immediately taken to the hospital and confronted with Crubb.

The railroad officer asserted that one negro, who gave the name of Archie Miller, of Charleston, S. C., had done the shooting. Miller admitted that he had shot several times. The other negro, who gave the name of Joseph Fletcher, Gainesville, S. C., denied shooting. Both admitted that they had thrown away revolvers.

SPIRITED FIGHT ACROSS BORDER

Mexicans and U. S. Troops Exchange Shots.

WERE NO AMERICAN LOSSES

Cavalry Patrol When, Attacked Near San Jose Returns Fire in Skirmish Formation.

American troops and Mexicans clashed near San Jose, Texas, in the Big Bend country, according to a report received by General Funston from Colonel Josepha Gaston, commander of the district.

The fight lasted forty-five minutes. No losses were suffered by the Americans and information is lacking regarding loss among the Mexicans.

Colonel Gaston's report said that a band of about thirty Mexicans opened fire on a detachment composed of twenty-three men of the Sixth Cavalry and Texas National Guard Cavalry squadron, engaged in patrol duty between Presidio and Ruidosa. Lieutenant Cudington, of the Texas Squadron, commanding the troops, ordered his men to return the fire.

A vigorous exchange of shots continued for a period of forty-five minutes, the Americans and Mexicans firing in skirmish formation from covered positions on either side of the Rio Grande. Information from Colonel Gaston did not indicate that the United States troops crossed in pursuit of the Mexicans. After the fight Lieutenant Cudington returned to Ruidosa, with his command.

Whether the Mexicans were defeated government troops or member of a bandit band was not known by General Funston. He is awaiting a detailed report of the action.

Colonel Gaston reported that Major A. V. P. Anderson, of the Sixth Cavalry, has gone to San Jose to investigate the incident. Colonel Ricjos, commander of the Carranza garrison at Ojinaga, has gone to the scene of the fight for the same purpose, according to Colonel Gaston.

MINE RESCUER DIES

Six Others Overcome Trying to Save Entombed Men.

L. M. Jones, a mining engineer sent to Barrackville, near Fairmount, W. Va., in charge of a trained crew from the Pittsburgh station of the bureau of mines to conduct the work of rescue at the Jamison mine, where more than a dozen men had been entombed by an explosion, was asphyxiated in the workings.

Jones, with seven other men, had reached the bottom of the shaft, where canary birds were released to test the air. All the birds were almost immediately killed, and Jones, who had advanced further into the workings also fell to the tracks. His companions advancing to his rescue felt the force of the gas, and one by one were overcome.

When they did not return to the surface, another party entered the mine and brought them out. All quickly recovered except Jones, who had apparently died in the mine.

The body of Matthew Allison, the chief electrician, who was at work in the mine when the explosion occurred, was brought out. Three other bodies were recovered, among them Allison's assistant, A. W. Vance.

GIRL AND BROTHER FOUND MURDERED

Bodies Were Near Home in Rosedale, Md.

THEIR HOUSE WAS ROBBED

The Murderer Tried to Burn the Man's Corpse—Possé Seeks the Assassin.

A double murder was unearthed when the bodies of Andrew Frey, thirty, and his sister, Marie, twenty, were found in a lonely spot, not far from their home, near Rosedale, Md., on the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington railroad.

There is no clew to the slayer and the search for them is made more difficult by the fact that the bodies have been lying where they were found since Sunday night.

The murderer had tried to destroy the body of the man by pouring oil on it and setting it afire. According to detectives it is evident also that the girl had been criminally attacked.

After the murder the house was robbed of everything of value.

Signs of a fierce struggle were apparent. The grass in front of the house was torn up and a log, bespattered with blood lay at the man's side. The skull of the man had been crushed by the log.

The girl's body, clad only in a night gown, was found a short distance from her brother's. There was a fracture at the base of the skull, and the flesh was bruised and torn in many places.

The bodies were discovered by a man, who gave his name to the police as Bhioka. Former Marshal Dehman and Patrolman Dotterwisch, of the Baltimore county force, hurried to the scene and a posse made up mostly of farmers and storekeepers started a search for the slayer.

Tx-Marshal Dehman made a careful examination of the footprints on the lawn and of the fingerprints on various objects in the house, and these are the only clews, if clews they prove to be, in the possession of the authorities as to the identity of the murderer. It is believed that only one man was implicated in the crime.

Kills Neighbor's Wife.

Jealousy is believed to have been the cause of the murder of Mrs. Mylosenly, thirty-nine years old, mother of five children, by Ila O'Brien, thirty-four years old, of Lebanon, Pa., the father of five children.

Following a quarrel at the Mylosenly home at East Lebanon, O'Brien, a neighbor, drew a revolver and shot the woman three times, two bullets lodging in her lungs and the third in her heart, killing her instantly.

When Johann Mylosenly, the husband, grappled with O'Brien for the revolver, the latter took a shot at himself, but inflicted only a flesh wound. After being relieved of the weapon, O'Brien drew a pair of scissors from his pocket and inflicted several ugly wounds in his abdomen, which, however, are not regarded as serious. The murderer is at the Good Samaritan hospital under surveillance.

Two Negroes Lynched.

A mob of more than 500 persons stormed the county jail in Paducah, Ky., and lynched two negroes within two miles of the city.

After the bodies were cut down they were thrown on a burning brush heap and cremated. The lynchings followed a forenoon of terror, during which the mob was virtually in control of the city.

One of the negroes, Frank Kinley was accused of having attacked Mrs. Etta Rose last Friday night. The mob took him to the Rose home, two miles from the city, and she identified him as her assailant. The other negro, Jesse Thornhill, was hanged because he boldly declared he would have committed the same crime.

Slain by Stranger.

Harry W. Mathews, a breakman, who sought to turn pianist, died because a stranger didn't like his music according to the police of Cumberland Md.

"You're a h— of a player," shouted a man who gave his name as John Whannstreat, of Grafton, W. Va. "Quit that racket."

"You're a liar," retorted Mathew from his perch on a saloon piano stool, the while continuing his drumming.

Whannstreat flashed a razor, drawing it across Mathew's throat.

Woman Found Slain.

Mystery surrounds the murder of Mrs. Peter Bloom, thirty years old, whose body was found in her home at Bovard, near Slippery R. ck, Pa. with a gunshot wound in the head.

The body was found by the woman's husband, who, the police assert, feeling that all was not well at home returned after starting to his work. A shot gun belonging to the husband and containing an empty shell was found on the floor near the body.

Asks Aid for War Victims.

Governor Brumbaugh issued a proclamation to the people of Pennsylvania urging them to help the Armenians and Syrians who are facing famine as the result of the war. The proclamation follows:

"Whereas, it has been brought to my attention anew that more than four million people, non-combatants, war-oppressed, living in Armenia and Syria, are in dire distress, facing famine, disease and death as the winter settles over their stricken countries, the call of these people for relief should touch every philanthropic and patriotic heart, and I earnestly ask the people of Pennsylvania to make such contributions as the providence of God and their own industry has made possible to succor these most deserving people."

Woman Commits Suicide in Prison.

Prison officials in Trenton, N. J., refused to permit Anna Rickett to wear fancy clothing she brought to the prison, and she committed suicide by hanging.

The woman was serving a sentence of four to seven years for larceny, committed in Essex county. She came to the prison January 29, 1915, and had been troublesome since her incarceration.

The woman engaged in a controversy with the matron, over wearing the prison garments. Later Headkeeper Richard Hughes admonished her for abusive talk to the matron. She was found about an hour afterward dead on her cot. She had choked to death, with a strip of muslin pulled tightly about her neck.

Held for Wife Murder.

A charge of murder was lodged against Harry G. Smith, twenty-two years old, of Lancaster, Pa., who on Saturday at midnight shot and killed his wife, thirty-one years old, upon her refusal to live with him after numerous attempts at a reconciliation.

Recently they had been living in York, but on Saturday Mrs. Smith came to Lancaster to visit and Smith followed on a later train. As she stepped from a car near her sister's home, Smith jumped from behind a tree and after a few words began firing. He then turned the revolver on himself, but the bullet only pierced his hat.

Girl, 13, Kills Father.

Lena Bonafiglio, thirteen years, was taken to jail charged with killing her father, Frank Bonafiglio, as he slept in their home, at Kelley Hill, near Clarksburg, W. Va. The police say the child complained bitterly of her father's treatment of her.
